OTHER DISTRICTS MENACED

Nearby Volcanoes Showing Activity—Fall of Ashes Covers a Wide Area.

TOKIO, Wednesday, Jan. 14.—Japan is heroically meeting a double affliction—famine in the north and earthquakes and volcanic eruptions in the south. In the south the islands of Kiushiu and Shikoku are in the grip of seismic disturbances. Craters have suddenly discharged great volumes of flaming rock and ashes, carrying destruction and terrifying the Southern Empire. Ashes are falling as far north as Osaka.

Although the fate of the inhabitants of Sakura Island is not certain, it is believed the great majority of them have escaped in boats to the mainland. Many of the people of Sakura have escaped from the danger zone in a maimed and burned condition.

The cruiser Tone has sent a wireless dispatch to the effect that Sakura has been entirely evacuated. This morning the Foreign Office received a dispatch from the former Minister to China, H. Ijuin, now a resident of Kagoshima, sent from that city only a few hours before, saying, "About ten persons have been killed and thirty injured. The whole city is in great confusion."

The Foreign Office thinks this indicates that the early reports as to the loss in the city were vastly exaggerated, but that probably 200 or 300 in all the island lost their lives.

A steamer which succeeded on Monday in touching the eastern coast of Sakura reports that it rescued 300 persons, but was unable to take more. The police and soldiers of Kagoshima made many heroic rescues.

The men and women accustomed to participation in the festivals to commemorate the eruption of 1779 did not realize the extent of the disaster, and it is feared that many of them were killed before reaching the seashore. Thousands, pursued by a rain of fiery stones, knelt on the beach half submerged in water and gesticulated wildly to the steamers and fishing boats. The heat is described as infernal. Junks report that stones fell hissing into the bay.

The refugees from Kagoshima fled across the heaving land caused by the rapid succession of earthquakes.

The whole southern half of Kiushiu is enveloped in ashes and smoke. Sakura-jima, however, appears to be the only volcano dangerously active at present.

The Emperor is profoundly distressed over the disaster, and has ordered additional warships to proceed immediately to the affected district. He has sent a representative to Kagoshima.

The seismologist Omori has departed for the south. He thinks the greatest danger may lie in tidal waves. The eruption of Kirishima, in his opinion, would not be so serious as that of Sakura-jima, because few persons live at the foot of the mountain.

Advices from Nagano, capital of Nagano Prefecture, and Asama-Yama in the island of Hondo, report great eruptions. Asama-Yama is a lofty volcano about ninety miles northwest of Tokio with a crater of 1,000 feet in diameter.

The scene is described as sublime, smoke and flames soaring thousands of feet into the sky. In the Utsunomiya district the sky is overcast and every roof is covered with white ashes.

Many crevasses formed at Kagoshima, and owing to the snake-like movement of the surface of the earth the fugitives were forced to advance on all fours.

Thousands took refuge on the top of the famous Mount Shiro-yama, fearing a tidal wave. Many of the houses at Kagoshima collapsed and there are three feet of ashes in the streets. They are said to contain poisonous gases.

Other mountains in the island of Kiushiu are showing extreme activity, include Aso, Kirishima, Takauma, and Onsen, and the greatest consternation prevails throughout the island.

Miyazaki capital of the province of the same name, and the fortified city of Kumamoto, thirty-five miles east of Nagasaki, are believed to be in great danger.

Many persons were rescued by junks, but several junks were capsized by hot boulders.

Slight earth shocks were felt in Tokio last night.

A small tidal wave swept over the coast at Uwajima, in the island of Shikoku, but it is not believed to have done much damage.

Earthquakes have occurred at Hiroshima and Okayama.

A postal employe who fled from Kagoshima states that the big Post Office Building there collapsed during the earthquakes and tidal wave, and that a great number of residences were ruined, while many persons were killed or injured.

Quiescent for a Century.

Sakura-jima had been quiescent for more than a century, although it rears its cratered peak in a veritable land of volcanoes.

Directly to the south of it on one of the three lower tips of Japan stands Kiamon-dake, which is constantly active, while directly north of it are Kirishima-yama and Shiratori-san. Both are active, and from the former in 1895 came a tremendous and destructive outburst. The contour of hill and valley throughout the region all tells of volcanic origin and activity, and the higher ridges are scarred and serried with runs of lava, marked by precipitations of ash and cut and torn by the convulsive earth shocks which have attended the more serious disturbances.

LADY HOLLAND A BRIDE.

Widow of Banker Who Never Used Title Now Mrs. M. W. Harris.

Some of her New York friends were surprised yesterday to learn that Mrs. George W. Holland, who is widely known abroad and to some extent here, as Lady Holland, had been married in Washington on Jan. 8 to Marion W. Harris of Washington. Mr. and Mrs. Harris are now in St. Louis on an extensive wedding trip through the South.

The former Mrs. Holland was the widow of a well-known banker and broker, who lived in Europe for many years. Mrs. Holland explained to a TIMES reporter some time ago that her first husband's father, Sir Thomas Holland, had come over from England and settled in Philadelphia, but that he had never become a naturalized American. His son had never used the title, but she found it a convenient thing when traveling in Europe, because one was better looked after when traveling alone.

She and her first husband used to spend a great part of each year in Florence, and in the Anglican Church there is a beautiful memorial window which she gave in his memory.

Mr. and Mrs. Holland made two trips around the world, the first of which was undertaken twenty-five years ago. Only about six weeks ago Mrs. Holland arrived at the Waldorf from her third trip, during which she visited many of the places she saw in her first world trip, and as a result of which she was able to draw some interesting comparisons between the Orient of a quarter of a century ago and of to-day, to the disparagement of the modern Orient in point of interest, as she put it.

In December Mrs. Holland's plan, as she told a TIMES reporter, was to remain in New York until Jan. 1, when she would proceed direct to Italy, to spend the Winter there. However, romance got in the way, and she is seeking warmer climes on this side of the Atlantic. She is reported to be very wealthy.

Her marriage took place in St. John's Episcopal Church, the ceremony being performed by the Rev. Rolland Cotton Smith. Mr. Harris, who is a lawyer, is an elder brother of W. M. Harris, bond attorney in the office of the Attorney General of Texas, and of Dr. R. A. Harris of Winnsboro, Texas.

It is the intention of Mr. and Mrs. Harris, after a visit to Texas, to return to New York and sail for Egypt, where, after a trip up the Nile, they will go to Italy. They expect to live in Europe.

FIRST WOMAN DIPLOMAT.

Miss Hoegh, a Norwegian, to be a Secretary of Legation.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Wednesday, Jan. 14.—A Christiania telegram to The Daily Mirror says:

"The first woman to take up the diplomatic service as a profession has just been appointed here. Miss Henrietta Hoegh, a pretty woman of 27, is to be First Secretary at the Norwegian Legation in Mexico. She passed examinations in international law and political economy two years ago.

"As First Secretary she will have the privilege of wearing the usual diplomatic uniform with the exception of the ornamental sword and gold-braided breeches."

FORTUNE FROM AN "AD."

Special to The New York Times.

BURLINGTON, N. J., Jan. 13.—Mrs. Beatrice Gordon, a widow, was forced last month to advertise in a local newspaper for boarders in order that she might support her family and continue to send her two little sons to school. Chance threw the newspaper carrying the advertisement into the hands of a Burlington man now in the West. Glancing over the home paper his eye caught the name in the advertisement. He was searching the legal columns of a Western paper at about the same time. In a corner was an advertisement inserted by Pierce & Pierce, a law firm of Homesville, Neb., asking for information regarding a "Mrs. Beatrice Gordon of Pennsylvania or New Jersey."

He called the attention of the law firm to the advertisement. Thus it came about that Mrs. Gordon received a letter to-day from the Nebraska lawyers suggesting that she was the long sought heir of a portion of the estate of Sarah Jane Sparks, a wealthy widow who died last year in Nebraska, leaving properties valued at several hundred thousand dollars.

BOSTON ELECTS CURLEY.

Congressman Chosen Mayor by 6,000 Majority Over Kenny.

BOSTON, Jan. 13.—Congressman James M. Curley was chosen Mayor to-day by a majority of 6,000 votes over Thomas J. Kenny, President of the City Council. Of a total of 80,000 votes, polled on the coldest day of the Winter, the victorious candidate received 43,309 and Kenny had 37,250.

The Congressman began his political career as a City Councilman in 1900. Since that time he has been elected to the State House of Representatives, the Board of Aldermen, and to Congress, where he is now serving his second term.

In 1903 Mr. Curley was convicted by a jury in the Federal Court of conspiring to defraud the Government by impersonating another man at a civil service examination. He served a sentence of two months in the Charles Street Jail without interruption to his political fortunes.

Both Mr. Kenny and Mr. Curley are Democrats in national politics, although they ran without political designation, and the Democratic voters in the city were divided in their support. President Kenny, in addition to having the backing of most of the Democratic Ward Chairmen, was indorsed by the Citizens' Municipal League, a non-partisan organization in which many Republicans are prominent, and was supported by local Republican leaders.

Although the Citizens' Municipal League failed to elect its candidate for Mayor, two of its three candidates for the City Council were successful. They were Councillor Daniel J. McDonald and George W. Coleman. The other successful candidate for the council was William H. Woods.

The city made its usual pronounced declaration in favor of license.

UNDERWOOD SEES BUSINESS REVIVING

HUMPHREY OPENS ATTACK

Gives Long List of Idle Mills and Says a Million Idle Workmen Are Losing $2,000,000 Daily.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—Mournful pictures, drawn by Republican speakers in the House of Representatives today of the extent and character of the industrial depression, caused a decided stir on the Democratic side of the chamber, finally leading to a retort by Mr. Underwood, the majority leader, who prophesied a great revival of business within a year.

Representatives Mondell of Wyoming and Humphrey of Washington were the chief speakers for the Republicans.

"Democrats would do better to occupy themselves with prayer rather than paens of praise," said Mr. Mondell, replying to Mr. Reed of New Hampshire, who had told of the excellent conditions in his State.

Mr. Humphrey asserted that a million men at work a year ago were now idle, and gave a list of the plants which, according to him, were working only part time.

In his reply Mr. Underwood said:

"I represent a great iron and steel district myself. Practically everything made in my district has been put on the free list. We have not received very high prices for our commodities, but the mills, furnaces, and factories have been running. Since the holidays I have seen in one of the papers that one of the great concerns in that country has put men to work in double shifts.

"Our Republican friends may not accept Democratic authority, but there are great merchants whose standing in the Republican Party as politicians and before the country as business men can't be questioned."

Predicts a Great Revival.

Mr. Underwood then read extracts from the speech of John Wanamaker made before the Union League Club in Philadelphia when he said "the breeders of panics ought to be deported."

"That statement," he said, "comes from a man whose faith cannot be doubted, and whose great business interests bring him in contact with the great heart beat of the people.

"What I have to say to the birds of ill-omen who preach disaster, hoping to bring their party back into power is this:

"The industrial depression we have been passing through has lasted for more than a year. It began before Woodrow Wilson was elected. Before the coming elections next Fall there will be an industrial awakening that will put to shame the panic preaching brokers who cry disaster in order to bring about depression."

According to Mr. Humphrey's figures, there are 280,000 miners out of work, and an annual pay roll of $746,000,000 has been wiped out since President Wilson entered the White House.

Challenging Mr. Humphrey's allegations, Representative Hardwick of Georgia shouted:

"You gentlemen on the Republican side would be performing a more patriotic service if you could manage to hush the wails with which you are constantly afflicting this House and the country. It is simply the wail of a lot of discredited politicians bemoaning the loss of their power, and the American people know it."

Representative Humphrey replied:

"If preaching these facts be preaching calamity, then make the most of it. I challenge any one to deny the correctness of the figures that I give here to-day. But why should the Democratic Party whine and complain because these facts are made public? Their slogan has been 'Pitiless publicity.' Why is it that they are so anxious for publicity when the Republicans are in power, and so solicitous for silence now?"

A Roll of Idle Blast Furnaces.

Here are some of the specific instances which Mr. Humphreys gave of blast furnaces that had been blown out since March 1, 1913, and which he asserted were now idle:

WRIGHT, MASTER OF FLYING IN AMERICA

Federal Court Decision Gives Orville Control of Heavier-Than-Air Machines.

The Wright brothers were again hailed yesterday as the pioneer inventors in aviation and their patent was upheld by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals in the suit that the Wright Company brought against the Herring-Curtiss Company. The judgment of Judge Hazel in the Federal District Court in favor of the Wright Company was sustained, and this gives the company control of all flying in heavier-than-air machines in this country. Similar suits have been brought in other countries.

The suit was begun in 1909 in Buffalo, when Wilbur and Orville Wright sought to restrain Glenn Curtiss and his associates from manufacturing and selling their machines on the ground that they were essentially infringments on their own inventions. The contest turned upon the ailerons, or the movable tips to the planes, by which the balance of the machines was maintained in the air. They were fastened to the rudder in such a way that they moved with the rudder, and it was this part of the mechanism that the Wright brothers said was their own.

In its answer the Herring-Curtiss Company asserted that the Wright patent was invalid. The defendants said that the Wrights had acknowledged that the inclined or curved planes and forward and rear attachments were old, and that Curtiss had evolved an entirely different method of maintaining the balance. Heavier-than-air machines, they said, had been patented by Maxim long before the Wrights began their experiments.

Judge Hazel, however, decided in favor of the Wrights, and the Herring-Curtiss Company appealed. Judges Lacombe, Coxe, and Ward have now dismissed the appeal. In doing so they said in part:

"We are fully in accord with the reasoning by which Judge Hazel reached the conclusion that the patent in suit is a valid one and that the patentees may fairly be considered pioneers in the practical art of flying with heavier-than-air machines.

"The court is satisfied that during some part of their flight the defendants' machines used the rudder synchronously with the wings, so that by their joint action lost balance may be restored or a threatened loss of balance averted. Such use of the rudder constitutes infringment, and a machine that infringes part of the time is an infringement."

It is expected that the case will now be taken to the Supreme Court. The suit was begun before the death of Wilbur Wright left his brother Orville in control of their company.

ORVILLE WRIGHT PLEASED.

Inventor Says He May Collect Damages and Royalties.

Special to The New York Times.

DAYTON, Ohio, Jan. 13.—"I am pleased at the finding of the court, but I knew in my own mind from the start that there was only one decision which the court could honestly reach. We took special pains to present our case fairly and at the same time get before the court all of the evidence, and I am not surprised at the result," said Orville Wright to-night when informed of the decision of the Circuit Court of Appeals. Mr. Wright said that he could not talk further on the matter until he had an opportunity to confer with his attorney.

"I do not know what action will be taken now," he said, "but it is probable that we will ask that the defendants in the case be ordered to turn over to us all royalties. We may ask also for damages." Mr. Wright expects to start for Italy soon to sell the rights on his hydro-aeroplane.

EUGENIC LAW IN COURT.

Wisconsin Admits Doctors Cannot for Legal Fee Make Test Ordered.

Special to The New York Times.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Jan. 13.—The eugenic law test case of A. C. Peterson, who wants to get married and asserts that he cannot find doctors who will issue a medical certificate to him for the legal fee of $3, came up in court to-day.

The State made an important admission at the outset, announcing that no defense would be made to the contention that the Wasserman test could not be performed for the legal price.

The first witness for the physicians who object to the law was Dr. Horace Manchester Brown, who led the strike of medical men against it. He declared that the wording of the law made it impossible for a doctor to issue a eugenic license without the Wasserman test without perjuring himself. Other doctors who are in the strike testified similarly, and the day closed with Dr. M. P. Ravenel, the State University bacteriologist, declaring that there were not twenty-five doctors in the State fitted to give the Wasserman test.

ARRESTED HERE FOR $40,000 BANK THEFT

Henning, Ex-Grocery Clerk, Accused of Looting Institution He Organized in Illinois.

Detectives Clare, Raftis, and Sheridan of the Greenwich Street Police Station last night arrested Frank M. Henning, 27 years old, of 206 East Thirteenth Street, who hails from Schaumberg, Cook County, Ill., on the charge of being a fugitive from justice. Henning is accused of having stolen $40,000 from the Farmers' Bank in the little town of Schaumberg. His arrest was brought about through a private detective agency, whose operators induced him to visit an office on the seventh floor of the Woolworth Building, where he was turned over to the police.

At Headquarters later Henning readily admitted his guilt, the police say, and asserted that he was willing to waive extradition. He told a remarkable story of a sudden rise from the position of clerk in a country grocery store to that of a Director in a prosperous country bank.

In 1907, during the panic year, he told the police, he tried a little stock flier with his savings and his speculation netted him $1,500. Then he gave up his job as a clerk and obtained a minor position in a bank at Elgin, Ill. A few months sufficed to convince him that banking was his special field, and he returned to Schaumberg, where he induced a number of well-to-do citizens to join with him in organizing the Farmers' Bank with a capital of $25,000. Henning subscribed for $1,000 worth of the stock.

He became the bank's assistant cashier, he explained, and this gave him access to bank drafts bearing the signature of H. W. Friese, the cashier. A number of these drafts he filled out for various amounts and deposited them to his account in a large Chicago bank and engaged in stock speculation with the money. He intended, he said, to cover his tracks by making good when he got on the right side of the market, but fortune was against him.

Finally, on New Year's eve, he said, he realized that his operations would soon become known to the officials, and he decided to make a clean breast of the whole affair. Consequently, he said, he wrote letters to each of the twenty-four stockholders, assuring them that he would do his best to make good the amounts taken. He quit his desk and came to New York, where he vainly attempted to matriculate in the law school of Fordham University.

"I told the Directors that if I could not make good inside of six months I would return and give myself up," he said. "I could not bear the separation from my wife and baby longer than that period."

Henning appeared to be much surprised that the Directors had not given him the opportunity to recoup his losses as he desired.

"The depositors will not lose a cent," he said. "The stockholders are responsible under the form of organization to the extent of the liabilities. The combined assets of the stockholders is more than $600,000, and the amount of deposits in the bank is about $100,000."

Henning's whereabouts were discovered through a friend in Schaumberg, to whom he wrote recently, inclosing a message to his wife. In spite of Henning's plea for six months' respite, the Directors and stockholders of the bank offered a reward of $150 for his capture. When arrested he had $600 in his pockets, and is said to have on deposit in a local bank more than $2,000. The detectives quizzed him upon this subject, but he declined to commit himself.

Henning is of prepossessing appearance. He is 5 feet 11 inches in height, of slender build, smooth shaven, and has light brown hair and blue eyes. He was well dressed when arrested.

STOPS MURPHY'S $3,500 PAY

Controller Prendergast took steps yesterday to have the name of John J. Murphy, a nephew of Tammany Leader Charles F. Murphy, removed from the city pay roll. The Controller discovered some time ago that Mr. Murphy was receiving $3,500 a year from the city as a clerk to ex-Supreme Court Justice Gerard, who resigned from the bench last August to become Ambassador to Germany. Since then, the Controller discovered, Mr. Murphy has been reporting daily at the former Justice's office, and there has been no work for him to do.

A representative of the Controller called upon Justice Ingraham, presiding Justice of the Appellate Division, several days ago, to find if there was not a way by which Mr. Murphy could be dropped. Justice Ingraham, it is said, took the view that the only way out of the difficulty was for Mr. Murphy to resign or for ex-Justice Gerard's successor to dismiss him. So far no successor to Gerard has been appointed.

The City Charter, according to Mr. Prendergast, forbids payment by the Controller to anybody who does not work, and yesterday he decided to notify Mr. Murphy that he no longer would pay him his salary, and that his name would be stricken from the roll.

PARESIS OPERATION FAILS.

Patient Into Whose Brain Serum Was Injected Dies Under Shock.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 13.—The patient in St. Mary's Hospital upon whom surgeons yesterday performed a rare operation in an effort to save him from the progressive ravages of paresis died to-day, and surgeons who had watched the case with keen interest said that one of the most heroic experiments in surgery had come to nought. In an effort to save the man, who was declared to be hopelessly afflicted, surgeons bored a series of holes in his skull and injected into the diseased brain a serum used only in the most dangerous of all blood diseases. The patient was 51 years old.

The operation, performed twice in Paris, had proved of benefit in arresting the disease. The operation yesterday was the first of its kind performed in this country. It is said the patient did not revive sufficiently from the shock because of previously weakened vitality.

SEEK LINER MISSING WITH 120 ABOARD

ON LEDGE IN BAY OF FUNDY

Special to The New York Times.

HALIFAX, N. S., Jan. 13.—Intense anxiety prevails here regarding the fate of the Royal Mail steamer Cobequid from the West Indies for St. John's, N. B., with 120 souls aboard, which was reported by wireless this morning as stranded on the treacherous ledges at Brier Island, near the mouth of the Bay of Fundy. No trace of the steamer has been found. At 9:40 A. M. the stranded ship was in communication with Sable Island, but since then not a word has been heard of her.

The wireless stations have flashed out repeated calls, but have received no response. The steamer J. L. Cann, dispatched from Westport, made a complete circle of Brier Island, but saw nothing of the Cobequid, or of any wreckage. A heavy snowstorm is prevailing, with zero temperature and a gale of wind, over the Bay of Fundy, and this has added greatly to the alarm. Other searching steamers have failed to find any trace of the ship.

It was before dawn to-day that the first wireless cry for help came from the Cobequid. A few hours later came the final flicker of her radio, saying the ship was filling.

The Cobequid, in command of Capt. Hawson, was completing her first round trip over the St. John-West Indies route. She had a crew of 102 men, a number of second class passengers and the following in the first class cabin: L. S. Navarro, L. Botta, W. C. Zoller, Mrs. Zoller and child. The ship had called at Bermuda, but most of her passengers were from points south of there.

Whether the Cobequid had survived an all-day battering by hurricane seas and would hold together until one or more of a fleet of nearly a dozen rescue boats could reach her was a matter of increasing hourly anxiety to-night. Up to dark no trace of the vessel had been found on the east shore of the Bay of Fundy, nor could a glimpse be had through the vapor which shrouded the west side of Grand Manan, on one of whose numerous ledges it was later believed she might rest.

The Cobequid, formerly the Goth, had been pressed into the Winter service between the Maritime Provinces and the tropics. She sailed from Halifax on Dec. 5 for West Indian ports, and started north again on Dec. 30 from Grenada. She called at Bermuda on the 9th, and then cleared for St. John.

Caught in a Blizzard.

Approaching the Bay of Fundy, famous for its swift tides and mountainous seas, a blizzard descended upon the steamer. Capt. Hawson was heading for Gannet Rock Light, the guide to the western side of the bay, and a warning of the ledges which stretch ten miles to the southward of Grand Manan. It was nearly sunrise when the operator at the wireless station at Cape Sable, across the bay, picked up the Cobequid's cry for help.

The message said that the vessel had struck a ledge off Brier Island, which is on the east side of the bay, and needed immediate assistance. For the next few hours fragmentary messages were received from the stranded steamer, one of which said that the forward hold was filling. At 9:40 A. M. came the last gasp of the fading wireless to the effect that the engine room was flooded, the batteries were exhausted, and the operator was unable to get any sparks.

In the meantime both the Canadian and the American Governments had begun active measures for rescue. The German steamer Kronprinzessin Cecilie, off Sable Island on her way to New York, was urged to change her course and head for the Cobequid, 200 miles to the northward. The Government steamer Lady Laurier was started out from this port for the run of 150 miles to Grand Manan. The steamers Belvidere, Helena, and Landsdowne were asked to help, and the United States revenue cutter Woodbury, in command of Lieut. Ridgely, on her way from Portland, Me., to Rockland, Me., was ordered to steam full speed for the scene.

Toward night it was discovered that the cable steamer Tyrian was at anchor behind Campobello, only forty miles from Gannet Rock Light, and a message was sent to her skipper urging him to proceed immediately to the aid of the Cobequid. But the Tyrian was still at anchor at Campobello to-night waiting for better weather conditions. The gale and the zero temperature continued and snow was falling in the Bay of Fundy.

Navigator Probably Confused.

When the keeper of the Brier Island Light was notified of the accident, in the hope that he might give some information regarding her, he replied that he had seen no trace of the Cobequid. This was subsequently confirmed by the steamer John L. Cann, which made a circuit of the island during the day.

On a rereading of the first message from the Cobequid, the opinion was reached that the navigator was at a loss as to the real position of the steamer and that she was in reality on the west side of the bay. Unfortunately, communication with Grand Manan had been cut off some time before through the breaking of the cable, so that no information could be obtained from there.

It was expected that some of the steamers would be off Gannet Rock Light by midnight, and that the revenue cutter Woodbury would reach the scene by 5 A. M. Hope was felt that they would be able to sight the Cobequid.

The Grand Manan ledges have been the scene of many disasters, but loss of life has been comparatively small. Twelve years ago the steamer Warwick struck on Murr, one of the most extensive of the ledges, and eventually went to pieces, but not until all on board had been brought ashore and much of the cargo, including hundreds of cases of whisky, had been lightered by fishermen. The steamer Hestia was lost on Old Proprietor ledge four years ago, but without loss of life.

The Goth, now the Cobequid, was built for the Union Castle Mail Line at Belfast, in 1893. She is of steel and registered 4,700 tons gross and 2,970 tons net. She is 400 feet long and equipped with twin screws.

MAYOR SURPRISES WOMEN.

They Are Not Men's Intellectual Equals, He Tells Suffragists.

PATERSON, N. J., Jan. 13.—"I do not regard women as the intellectual equals of men," said Mayor Robert H. Fordyce of this city to-day in explaining to a committee from the Paterson Woman Suffrage League why he had refused to appoint a woman to membership on the Board of Education. The Mayor is married and has two daughters.

The committee that waited on the Mayor was composed of Miss Jennie Pierce, Mrs. John Paul, and Mrs. Peter Lees. They were greatly taken back by the Mayor's statement.

STRIKERS YIELD TO PUBLIC.

Coal Teamsters Return to Work During the Cold Weather.

Chairman Michael Cashal of the District Council of Teamsters announced yesterday that 400 coal teamsters of Brooklyn who had gone on a strike, had returned to work yesterday out of public-spirited regard for the needs of the public these cold days for coal. The demands of the teamsters will be arbitrated. Fifteen firms are involved.

Mr. Cashal added that a general strike of 2,500 coal teamsters had been avoided by fixing wages at $12 a week for single trucks, $14.50 for teams, and $17 for three-horse trucks. Negotiations for a settlement of the differences of the teamsters and employers, he said, were now being completed.

FIVE HURT IN COLLISION.

Auto Truck Driver Loses Control and Strikes Carriage.

Early last night a large motor truck, owned by Franklin Simon & Co. of 414 Fifth Avenue and driven by Joseph Elliot of 494 Ninth Avenue, crashed into a carriage driven by Arthur Waldon of 138 Riverdale Avenue, Yonkers, at 261st Street and Broadway. In the carriage were Mrs. Margaret Sherry and her daughter, Mary, aged 6 years, both of Rockledge Manor, Yonkers. All three occupants of the carriage were thrown out and were cut and bruised. The carriage, which is owned by Peter Havey of 428 North Main Street, Yonkers, was wrecked.

In trying to avoid the collision, Elliot, whose hands and arms were stiff and numb with the cold, lost control of the steering gear and drove the heavy truck into a telegraph pole. He was hurled to the sidewalk and his left leg was broken. His helper, Daniel McGowan of 184 Ninth Avenue, Manhattan, was also thrown from his seat, and suffered concussion of the brain and possible fracture of the skull.

The two injured men were hurried to St. Joseph's Hospital in Yonkers in an automobile. The three occupants of the carriage were attended by Dr. Bartnett of that hospital and went home.

LEAVES HIS HOME TO 'PETE.'

Dog's Wealthy Owner Also Provides $1,200 a Year to Keep It Up.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Jan. 13.—The will of John Chancellor Crafts of Brighton, a coal merchant, was filed to-day. Robert W. Nason is named as executor and is directed to pay Miss Mary M. Preston, who was housekeeper for Mr. Crafts, $750 for the care and support of "Pete," a dog, at such times and in such amounts as she may need to use the same for such purposes. The registered name of the dog is "Mr. Francis," but the testator says he is usually called "Pete."

Miss Preston is to have the use of the testator's house, 77 Lanark Road, with its contents, free of rent, and the trustee is to pay the expenses of maintaining it out of the estate.

On her death the use of the house is given to Anna Crafts and Emma Smith during their lives for the purpose of continuing a home there for the dog until its death. The trustee is to pay them $1,200 a year in monthly instalments of $100. The testator makes this provision so that the dog may spend the remainder of its days in the household of which no children or boarders shall form a part and where he shall be free of any annoyance.

CUT MRS. E. GOULD'S TAX.

$915 Imposed on Her in 1912 Is Canceled by Court.

Supreme Court Justice Guy yesterday relieved Mrs. Sarah C. S. Gould, the wife of Edwin Gould, of a personal tax of $915 that had been imposed upon her for the year 1912. The relief was based upon sworn testimony given by Mrs. Gould before George O'Reilly, Chief of the Bureau for the Collection of Arrears of Personal Taxes. Mrs. Gould testified that she lived at Ardsley-on-Hudson. Asked if she did not occasionally make her home at the Hotel Gotham, she replied:

"Yes, I was stopping there at that time," meaning the time the notice of the assessment was served upon her.

"Where did you claim your legal residence on the first day of October, 1911?" she was asked.

"Ardsley-on-Hudson."

"Have you ever had a permanent or legal residence in New York City?"

"No."

"Does your husband pay personal taxes and vote in Ardsley-on-Hudson?"

"He does."

"Has your husband, to your knowledge, declared himself from time to time to be a resident of Westchester County and not New York?"

"Yes."

Otto H. Hack appeared as the attorney for Mrs. Gould.

It will continue cold and fair, according to the Weather Forecaster, for another twenty-four hours.

For the first time in fourteen years, the thermometer registered 4 degrees below zero last night, and in the bitter cold and sharp wind, death came to three persons in New York City, and to three others in the near-by districts. Many were overcome by the cold, which brought suffering to thousands of poorly clad men, women, and children. The Charities Department and private institutions for the relief of suffering were taxed to their utmost capacity, and the Municipal Lodging House was swamped by the throngs that came there early in the night, begging for shelter.

The last time it was as cold in New York as it was last night was on Feb. 10 and 11, 1899. Then the mercury dropped to 6 degrees below zero. It is thirty-five years since New York has had such cold weather in January. On Jan. 10, 1875, it was 6 degrees below zero. It was said at the Weather Bureau last night that 6 degrees below zero was the lowest temperature recorded for this city. On Jan. 13, 1912, the thermometer registered 3 degrees below zero.

Chauffeur Froze to Death.

The death of Frank E. Berry, a chauffeur, in the cold was one of the most remarkable ever brought to the attention of the police. Berry was employed by Mrs. Elizabeth Eaton of Detroit, Mich., and he was found frozen to death on the seat of the Eaton auto at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon. He had driven Mrs. Eaton and her daughter to Carnegie Hall, where they attended a lecture. When they left the hall at 5 o'clock and the attendant flashed the call number of their auto they waited for ten minutes, and when it did not appear Mrs. Eaton requested a man to go down the line of waiting automobiles and see what had happened to her car.

The automobile was found at its proper place in the line. On the seat, sitting upright, was the rigid figure of Berry. He was dead. Dr. H. Edward Russell of 323 West Eightieth Street, at whose home Mrs. and Miss Eaton are visiting, was summoned. After examining the body, Dr. Russell said he thought that death had been due to the intense cold to which Berry had been exposed.

Another unusual death due to the cold was that of Walter Hoag, a driver for Fleck & Co., butchers, of Bergen Street, and Nostrand Avenue, Brooklyn. He was found dead standing up against his wagon yesterday afternoon. He had delivered a load of beef to Brooklyn College, Carroll Street and Nostrand Avenue, and had expired apparently as he was about to climb to his seat. For half an hour the body of the man reclined against the wagon body before it was discovered that he was dead.

The body of a man supposed to have been that of H. Kiefer, whose address the police have not learned, was found in the hallway of 208 First Avenue yesterday morning. The man was seen to enter the building at 4 o'clock yesterday morning, and four hours later Samuel Goldstein, a tenant, found the body. On the man's shirt was the name, H. Kiefer. The body was poorly dressed, and the only thing found in the pockets was a crust of bread.

There were three other deaths from cold in the neighborhood of this city, one in Edgewater, N. J., one in Millville, N. J., and the other in Yonkers. John J. O'Brien, a night watchman employed by the telephone company, was found unconscious outside the doors of the telephone company at 611 Cliffside Avenue, Edgewater, yesterday morning by two young men who were on their way to the Fort Lee Ferry. Dr. M. F. Brewster was called, and O'Brien was taken into a nearby house, where he died two hours later. Dr. Brewster said that death had been due to exposure. O'Brien leaves a wife and four little children.

Woman Killed by Cold.

The death in Yonkers was that of Mrs. Anna Johnson of 32 Palisade Avenue, whose body was found behind a billboard by A. S. Tomlinson of 4 Cornell Avenue, that city. The woman had been overcome evidently by the cold while on her way home Monday night and sought shelter from the wind behind the fence, where she perished.

Many persons suffered accidents as a result of the cold. Joseph Block, a plumber, of 341 Snedeker Avenue, Brooklyn, was crossing Lafayette Street, near Grand Street, yesterday morning when he was caught by a gust of wind and thrown underneath a moving auto truck. The wheels of the truck passed over his legs, breaking them near the knee.

William Barrett of 250 West Thirty-first Street was another who was blown under an auto by the high wind. He was all but blinded by his overcoat collar blowing high up over his head and was crossing Seventh Avenue at Thirty-third Street when the wind whirled him into the path of a motor car driven by Michael Fender of 143 West Eighty-second Street, which was running slowly. Barrett was not injured seriously.

Bernard Arnow, an electrician, of 1,169 Teller Avenue, the Bronx, was crossing Teller Avenue at 167th Street yesterday morning, when the wind pushed him in front of a crosstown car. He was taken to Lebanon Hospital, suffering from concussion of the brain.

Overcome Near Central Park.

Policeman McHugh of the West Sixty-eighth Street Station, found a man overcome by the cold at Central Park West and Sixty-eighth Street yesterday morning. When the man recovered consciousness he said that he was Charles Dalton of 244 West Sixty-first Stre . He was removed to his home in an ambulance from the Polyclinic Hospital.

Mrs. Anna Jennung, an elderly woman, of 251 West Forty-first Street, was found overcome by the cold at West End Avenue and Seventy-sixth Street yesterday afternoon. She was on her way to visit friends and was exhausted by her battle to make headway in the teeth of the icy wind. She was unconscious when she was found, and she was taken to Bellevue Hospital.

Persons passing the Church of St. Paul the Apostle at Columbus Avenue and Sixtieth Street just before dark yesterday afternoon, saw a woman sitting on the steps of the church. The attention of a policeman was called to her. She was Mrs. Mary Horton of 41 Vandam Street, who had been overcome by the cold. She was taken to the Polyclinic Hospital.

George Murder, a driver of 1,001 Washington Avenue, the Bronx, was taken to the Reception Hospital early last night, suffering from cold, by Dr. Rau, the ambulance surgeon.

"I'm freezing, please lock me up," was the plea of a thinly clad old man, who said he was Theodore Becker, 64 years old, no home, to Lieut. Collins in the East Sixty-seventh Street Station at 9 o'clock last night. He wore no overcoat, and his clothes were thin and torn. He was locked up charged with vagrancy, and as he was led to a cell he murmured, "Thank God."

Nelson Johnson of Seabright, N. J., was found unconscious from the cold on the trolley tracks near Steinway yesterday afternoon and he was removed to St. John's Hospital, Long Island City. When he had recovered he said he went to North Beach to look over property he proposed to purchase. After waiting some time he concluded the trolley cars had stopped running and started to walk along the trolley tracks from the Beach to Steinway when he was overcome by the cold. He will recover.

Police Aid Child-Mother.

Faint with hunger and her thin cheeks pinched and blue with cold, Mrs. Annie Sanovitch, 17 years old, was found late last night huddled in the doorway of the home of Mrs. Benjamin Breverman at 318 Rockaway Avenue, East New York. In the folds of her thin shawl was sleeping her infant son, Peter, 11 months old. The child-mother explained that her husband had become insane and had left her. She had not seen him in two months. Inability to pay the rent of her squalid two-room apartment in Brownsville had led to her being dispossessed.

Mrs. Breverman took the girl to the Brownsville police station, where Lieut. William Eggers saw to it that she was provided with warm food and drink. After the policemen had taken up a purse to assist her, she was turned over to the matron, who gave her shelter for the night.

Mrs. Anna Leventhal, who is 76 years old, returned from a prayer meeting in a synagogue near her home at 37 Belmont Avenue, Brooklyn, yesterday morning, and as she entered the house she heard her aged husband, Hyman L. Leventhal, crying for help. The old man is bed-ridden, and Mrs. Leventhal had moved his bed near the kitchen stove when she left to attend the meeting. Her husband's bed had caught fire and his clothing was ablaze when Mrs. Leventhal entered his room. Leventhal was burned mortally.

City Institutions Crowded.

More than 1,700 unfortunates, among them several women and little children, sought the protection of the city institutions from the bitter cold last night. At 12 o'clock Supt. Yorke of the Municipal Lodging House at the foot of East Twenty-fifth Street said that nearly 2,000 persons had applied for shelter, among them thirty-four women and seven children. Of this number 600 were accommodated in the lodging house, while the rest were sent to the East Twenty-sixth Street Pier. The women and children were among those accommodated in the lodging house.

The Superintendent and his assistants realized early in the evening that the night was going to be one that would tax the city's ability to care for the homeless, and orders were given to have plenty of coffee and soup for all who came and doctors were on hand. The capacity of the lodging house was soon overtaxed, and after that all who applied for shelter and food were fed and taken then to the Twenty-sixth Street pier and put on the city steamboats Lowell and Thomas S. Brennan.

So great was the congestion at the lodging house, and also on board the steamboats, that Commissioner of Charities Kingsbury arranged with Dock Commissioner Smith for the use of the recreation pier at the foot of East Twenty-fourth Street.

When the rush of the homeless to the Municipal Lodging House was greatest last night Chief Inspector Schmittberger of the Police Department, with two of his aids, called at the lodging house to find out if Supt. Yorke would be able to care for all the unfortunates who came to him for shelter and food. The Chief Inspector told Mr. Yorke that to accommodate the overflow from the lodging house he would, if necessary, order every station house in Manhattan thrown open to the homeless, which would at least enable them to rest in well-heated quarters until morning. Supt. Yorke thanked the Inspector, but said he thought he would be able to care for all who applied for shelter.

"Last night," said Commissioner Kingsbury, "we housed over 1,050 more than the capacity of the Municipal Lodging House in our boats of the department and in the waiting rooms of the Charities Department and the chapel of the Morgue. This crowded condition of the municipal accommodations is very great this Winter, more so than ever before.

"I have arranged with Commissioner of Correction Davis to use the Correction Department boats, whose capacity will be about 400 additional. I have been down on the docks and boats nearly every night, sometimes as late as 3 o'clock in the morning, studying this very pressing problem of caring for the overflow of New York's homeless, which this Winter is far greater than ever before. In 1912 the department sheltered 8,986 on the boats and piers. In 1913 14,315, and since Jan. 1 there has been on an average of 800 to 1,000 to care for thus every night. The Municipal Lodging House cares for about 700 men and women, and we aim to care for the women there first.

"I consider that the present provision for this overflow is absolutely inhumane, inadequate, and indecent. The men are packed like sardines on the floors of the waiting rooms and docks and suffer severely from the cold. We have eight boats in the department, but only three of them have been in use. They are the Thomas W. Brennan, the Lowell and the Muiry. Arrangements have been made so that a more humane way of taking care of this army of homeless will be in effect in the Recreation Pier, and if necessary we will use the two boats that Commissioner Davis has so kindly put at our disposal."

Housed by Salvation Army.

The Salvation Army cared for a great number of persons last night, its woman's lodging house at 248 Bowery housing more than 100 women, while the lodging house at 83 Bowery sheltered 300 homeless men. The Bowery Mission also kept open house and gave shelter to more than 400 unfortunates throughout the night.

Several hundred homeless persons were cared for last night at the Rescue Society's Midnight Mission, in the Old Chinese Theatre in Doyers Street. Supt. Noonan announced that during the cold wave the building would be open all night. Nearly 18,000 persons received temporary assistance in this way last Winter.

The New York Home for Homeless and Friendless Boys at 443 East 123d Street announced yesterday that it would open its two mission halls just across the street from the home to homeless men for the severe weather. The two missions will accommodate about 100 persons, and the home will undertake to shelter and feed this number until there is a break in the weather.

For more than four hours yesterday morning a boy battled with wind and wave in the lower bay in order to bring assistance to a helpless tug that was being swept seaward in the icy gale that raged in the vicinity of Sandy Hook. The boy was Clifford Boyce, a deckhand, and the craft was the tug Newport. At midnight yesterday the Newport had been drifting helplessly about in the lower harbor since 9 o'clock Monday night. A consultation was held in the pilot house, and it was decided that if the Newport was not to be blown out to sea some on must row ashore in the tug's boat.

"I'll tackle the job," said Boyce, "and in a few hours I will have a tug on the way to take you in tow."

For four hours he battled, and time and again it seemed certain that the boat would capsize and Boyce would be lost. About 4 o'clock he made the shore, and, although he was numbed through and through and hardly able to walk, he managed to get to a telephone where he called up the Pennsylvania Towing Company and informed William Reimer, a clerk who answered the telephone, of the Newport's peril. At 6 o'clock rescuing vessels found the Newport and towed her to Hoboken, where she was tied up for repairs.

Ships Beset by Gales.

From all points along the coast came reports yesterday of terrific gales and of vessels in distress. The reports showed that from the Grand Banks of Newfoundland to New York bad weather prevailed. In the Bay of Fundy the Royal Mail liner Cobequid was ashore with a storm raging about her, and rescue ships were hurrying as best they could through turbulent seas and in the teeth of fierce winds to the rescue of the imperiled ship.

From Nantucket came word of the sinking in Nantucket Sound of the three-masted schooner John Paul, and it was feared that the crew of six men had gone down with the ship. Off Cape Cod two other sailing ships were in distress, and life savers were trying to reach them to take off the crews. The Greta, another schooner, had anchored in Nantucket Sound on Monday night, but at daylight yesterday nothing could be seen of her, and fears are entertained for her safety.

For the first time in three years Great South Bay is frozen over. Since yesterday morning the water has been closing up fast and this morning the ice extends as far as can be seen, and there are but few open holes in the ice from the Rockaways through to Shinnecock. The oyster industry is at a standstill and only the oysters on hand can be shipped. None now in the water can be taken up.

The heavy offshore wind that at times attained more than seventy miles an hour yesterday drove the water out of the North and East Rivers to such an extent that the Subway power stations could not get sufficient water to generate the power needed for the scheduled operation of the subway trains. General Manager Frank Hedley announced early in the afternoon that the speed of trains would have to be reduced and that passengers must be patient. For the same reason the company was unable to heat its trains to the degree desired.

SPECIAL ORDERS FOR POLICE.

Fixed Posts Abandoned for Night or Time Shortened.

Police Commissioner McKay, who had been watching the steadily falling mercury, sent out instructions late last night that the fixed post regulations should be modified.

The Commissioner directed that the Captains or Lieutenants should use their discretion in maintaining such fixed posts as were deemed absolutely necessary for proper police protection and that the others should be discontinued for the night.

In the case of such fixed post details as were continued, he suggested that the order requiring the patrolmen to stand in the middle of he street should not be enforced, and that they should be permitted to seek the friendly shelter of adjoining doorways. All fixed post men should be relieved regularly at half-hour intervals throughout the night, the Commissioner directed, by the policeman patrolling the beat.

COLD HINDERS FIREMEN.

Theatre Crowds See Blaze in Broadway Pawnshop.

Pieces of fire-fighting apparatus rushed along Broadway last night as audiences were leaving the theatres in the Times Square district. The zero weather sent most of the theatregoers shivering into taxicabs or the Subway, but nevertheless several hundreds, including a large number of women, gathered near the Pawnbrokers' Sales Store at 1,440 Broadway, between Fortieth and Forty-first Streets, where the fire had started.

The blaze was on the ground floor, where a large quantity of jewelry was stored. The firemen with numbed hands lifted the fire hose about with difficulty, but a few minutes after the alarm had sounded streams were playing on the flames and freezing instantly into ice whenever the water splashed on the sidewalk and walls of the building.

The shuddering spectators saw a stream flow from the shop front, spread over the sidewalk, and turn into an ice sheet. Several times a misdirected fire-hose nozzle shot a new volume into the street to be hardened into ice within a second. Several persons who slipped through the police lines stepped on the glassy surface, slid, and fell flat. In a few minutes the fire was out and the office was a grotto of icicles. The damage was about $3,000.

NEW YORK COLDEST STATE.

Snow, Wind, and Frost Cause General Suffering—Many Frost-Bitten.

In many sections of the country yesterday was the coldest day of the present Winter. In some places it was the coldest in many years. The lowest temperature reported was that of Mountainview, Franklin County, N. Y., where unofficial thermometers registered 47 degrees below zero. In the Adirondacks the temperature varied from 20 to 30 degrees below zero.

Going up the Hudson River from the city the cold gradually grew more severe. The ferry between Nyack and Tarrytown was tied up by ice in the stream for the first time this season. Last Winter the ferryboats continued their trips until Feb. 7. At Newburg the temperature reached zero, and was reported 10 to 12 degrees below in the surrounding country.

At Middletown the day was the coldest in ten years, the mercury standing at 7 degrees below zero all day. In neighboring communites it was from 12 to 16 degrees below zero. Last night the mercury was dropping steadily.

A thirty-mile wind blew over Albany while the temperature varied from 8 to 14 degrees below zero. Trolley wires, contracted by the cold, broke all over the city. Almost a foot of ice had formed in the Hudson River. Harvesters are ready, but no cutting of ice has been done because it is forming too rapidly.

It was 22 degrees below zero at Amsterdam and several degrees colder in the suburban towns. Railroad traffic was at a standstill and the trolley service interrupted by the frequent snapping of wires.

A blizzard swept Monticello, where the thermometer registered 10 degrees below zero. Few ventured in the streets and outdoor work of all kinds was given up.

The mercury registered 20 degrees below zero at Utica, the coldest weather known there in two years. It was 29 below zero at Rome, the coldest since February, 1906. Early in the morning it was 22 below zero at Syracuse. All the public utility services in this city were more or less crippled. Pupils were dismissed from five schools and hundreds of frost bites were treated by physicians. Pompey was the coldest spot in Onondaga County, with a temperature of 36 below zero.

The official temperature at Rochester was 10 below zero, the severity of the weather being increased by a northwest wind of almost the intensity of a blizzard. At Elmira it was 6 below, and at Malone 35 below.

At Ithaca it was 4 below zero, cold enough to tie up the trolley service. At Binghamton the mercury varied during the day from 5 to 12 below. A high northwest wind and blinding snowstorm swept over Auburn, where the temperature was 12 below zero, the lowest in two years. Country roads were blocked by the storm.

Buffalo announced that it was 8 below zero at 8:30 yesterday morning. [illegible] over Northern New York it was colder yesterday than it had been for ten years. The mercury showed 34 below at Watertown, 42 below at Remsen, 36 below at Lowville, 39 below at Canton, 40 below at Massena, and 40 below at Potsdam. The ice on the St. Lawrence River was so thick at Watertown that crossings were made. Trains were running far behind their schedules because of failure to make steam. Hundreds of persons were frostbitten. Children were dismissed from several of the schools.

New England Swept by Gale.

The weather generally over New England was colder than it had been for three years, the temperature dropping rapidly before a gale from the St. Lawrence River. The mercury touched 6 degrees below zero in Boston. The temperature at other New England points was as follows: Northfield, Vt., 24 below; Burlington, Vt., 22 below; Concord, N. H., 14 below; Portland, Me., 9 below; St. Albans, Vt., 38 below; Pittsfield, Mass., 28 below; Springfield, Mass., 14 below; Norfolk, Conn., 20 below.

At Worcester, Mass., the temperature dropped from 22 above zero to 10 below zero in less than twenty-four hours, this being the most radical change in temperature recorded for seventy-five years. Telegraph wires in parts of Vermont and Southern Massachusetts were blown down. The maximum wind velocity was seventy-two miles an hour a. Cape Cod.

At 9 A. M. yesterday it was 11 above zero at Philadelphia, the coldest weather registered there in two years.

The Allegheny River froze over at Pittsburgh last night, and for the first time in a number of years the ice was strong enough to support highway traffic. Christian Clark, a farm hand, was found frozen to death near Etna, Penn.

At 7 o'clock yesterday morning it was 10 above zero in Chicago.

In Indianapolis, Ind., the mercury jumped from 10 to 14 degrees above zero, although the Weather Bureau predicted a drop to zero.

Zero weather had been predicted at Cleveland, Ohio, but instead the mercury, which had been as low as 11 above zero on Monday night, rose gradually yesterday.

At Columbus, Ohio, the thermometer registered 7 above zero yesterday, the lowest in two years.

At Detroit it was 5 above zero yesterday at its lowest. It was the coldest day of the year over Michigan generally.

Boy Succumbs Adrift on Delaware Bay—Father Unconscious.

Special to The New York Times.

MILLVILLE, N. J., Jan. 13.—An oyster sloop this afternoon sighted an open boat adrift on the Delaware Bay, in the bottom of which Dunham Earl of Bower's Beach, Del., was found unconscious from exposure and beside him lay his sixteen-year-old son, Charles, frozen to death.

The two were tonging for oysters in the Maurice River Cove late yesterday afternoon when a heavy gale struck their small craft and drove them toward the Delaware shore. They were drifting seaward to-day when picked up. The boat was towed into the Maurice River to-night and physicians are making every effort to restore the man to consciousness.

POLICE MAROONED ON A BAR.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Jan. 13.—Police Sergeant Samuel Scott, head of the "strong arm squad" here; Patrolmen Walter Blair and Walter MacDonald, and Scott's brother-in-law, James K. Lurker, went up the bay yesterday on a fishing trip near Little Beach.

They had started back, when their engine broke down, and they were blown upon a sand bar. The tide went out and left them marooned. They worked for three or four hours to get the boat off, but finally gave it up. They were found to-day by Sergt. Lacey, who went to hunt for them. He managed at high tide to get the boat off the sand bar.

Chauffeur Kills Woman Who Resented His Lighting a Fire.

TRENTON, N. J., Jan. 13.—Angered because there was not sufficient heat in the house, Andrew Rever, a Spaniard, employed as a chauffeur in Pennington, N. J., arose early yesterday morning and descended to the kitchen of his boarding house in that village and began to tamper with the stove.

The mistress of the house, Mrs. Katie Potts, attempted to drive him away from the stove, whereupon he drew a revolver and shot her in the chest, inflicting a wound from which she died later in the Mercer Hospital in this city. After the shooting Rever escaped, and the police are now searching for him.

USED FURNITURE FOR FUEL.

Two Girls and Four Men Arrested in a Basement.

When Detectives Daily and Maimoli of the Fifth Inspection District broke into the basement of a furnished room house in East 114th Street last night as the result of complaints received in the last few days by Inspector Cohalane they found the occupants of the room to be two 15-year-old girls and four men. In the middle of the room glowed a red-hot stove and a pile of broken furniture showed where they got the fuel.

The girls identified themselves as Julia O'Donnell of 226 East 114th Street and Mary O'Neill of 251 East 125th Street. They were locked up charged with juvenile delinquency. Two of the men were arrested on grave charges and the other two were held for disorderly conduct. They gave their names as Timothy Foley, 20, of 446 East 119th Street; Frank Collins, 20, of 117 East 114th Street; Frederick Englebrecht, 22, of 78 East 122d Street, and Harold Fritz, 19, of 171 Park Avenue.

Sues White Star Line for $20,000.

Catherine Culver began yesterday in the Federal District Court through her attorney, Archibald Palmer of 320 Broadway, a $20,000 damage suit against the White Star Line. She alleges that while a passenger on the liner Adriatic on Aug. 29, she stumbled over an iron obstruction, which had been left negligently in the steerage dining room by the employes of the company, and had consequently been crippled for life.

Too many adding machines?

Nonsense! There aren't half enough.

Five years from now, twice as many will be in use.

Adding is not a mental process. It is mechanical. And it should be done by a machine.

Writing is not a mental process. It is mechanical. It, too, should be done by a machine.

The "Ellis" machine does both —adds and typewrites.

It is a duplex, full equipped, 81-key adding machine and a full equipped 42-key typewriter, all in one.

With it you can do things you would not dream of doing with an ordinary adding machine.

PORPOISES AT PLAY DISPLAYED IN FILMS

New York Zoological Society Reports at 20th Annual Meeting a Successful Year.

BAN ON PLUMAGE IMPORTS

Prohibition in Tariff Law Was Inspired by Dr. Hornaday—Membership Now More Than 2,000.

The "porpoise dive," as shown in motion pictures in the grand ballroom of the Waldorf last night, was witnessed with as much interest as the tango by members of the New York Zoological Society at its twentieth annual meeting. The pictures were taken during the society's expedition to Cape Hatteras to procure the school of porpoises now on exhibition at the Aquarium, and they were put on the screen last night for the first time, while other films illustrated big game in Alaska and Siberia and the life of the fur seal in the rookeries on the Pribilof Islands, in Bering Sea.

More than a thousand members of the Zoological Society and their guests were present, and Prof. Henry Fairfield Osborn, the President, was in the chair.

One of the most important achievements of the society last year was stated to be the inclusion in the Tariff bill, largely through the efforts of Dr. William T. Hornaday, director of the Bronx Zoological Park, of a clause prohibiting the importation of the feathers, plumage, or any parts of wild birds.

"This is a sweeping victory for the birds of the world," said the report of the Executive Committee, "and similar measures are pending in Great Britain, Germany, and France."

It was brought about, the report said, largely through the publication and free distribution, at a cost of $10,000 raised by special subscriptions, of 13,000 copies of a book by Dr. Hornaday, entitled "Our Vanishing Life." Copies were furnished to Congressmen and State legislators and officials.

Buoyed up by the success, the Zoological Society cabled this resolution to the Zoological Society of London:

> Resolved, That the Zoological Society of New York, having been largely instrumental in securing the passage of our national measures for the protection of the birds of the world, by preventing all importations for purposes of fashion or millinery, hereby extends its greetings to its fellow-members of the Zoological Society of London, and expresses the hope that the society, which represents the other great metropolis of the world, will lend its unanimous support to the Hobhouse bill, now before Parliament, which is designed to reinforce the protective measures passed by Congress.
> The effect of the American bill has been instantaneous and widespread, and is now receiving unanimous support all over the United States. The very passage and enforcement of the bill has created a sentiment for wild life protection in many quarters where it did not exist before. The millinery trade has adapted itself to the new conditions, and the law is acknowledged to be most beneficial in its results.

Another resolution was adopted by the Zoological Society calling on the President and Senate to take steps, by treaty or otherwise, to protect the walrus and other marine mammals of the north Pacific and arctic. Hoffman Nickerson, Roy C. Andrews of the Museum of Natural History, and Dr. Arthur W. Elting of Albany were appointed by Prof. Osborn a committee to represent the Zoological Society in negotiations undertaken for the protection of these marine mammals.

The members of the Board of Managers elected for 1914 were:

> Henry Fairfield Osborn, Lispenard Stewart, Charles F. Dieterich, George F. Baker, William Peirson Hamilton, Edward S. Harkness, William C. Church, H. Casimir de Rham, James J. Hill, Grant B. Schley, Robert S. Brewster, William B. Osgood.

Madison Grant, Chairman of the Executive Committee, stated in his report that the society for the first time in its history had more than 2,000 members, having now 2,038, as compared with 1,947 last year.

At the Park the society now has 4,729 specimens of mammals, birds, and reptiles, representing 1,290 species, and at the Aquarium 6,698 specimens of fishes, designated as fresh water, marine tropical, and marine local, representing 192 species.

The attendance at the zoological park during the past year was 1,943,653, an increase of 235,228 over 1912, and at the Aquarium was 2,205,729, an increase of 61,374. The cost to the city of these institutions during 1913 was .057 cent for each person who visited them.

"The society is in a sound financial condition," said Mr. Grant, "because we try to live within our means. The only accounts that need attention are the funds for the National Collection of Heads and Horns, and the library both of which will need special subscriptions before any notable acquisitions can be made."

The endowment fund at present is $319,062, during the year a bequest of $10,000 having been received from Henry Iden and a $5,000 subscription from Archer M. Huntington.

The Executive Committee report showed that the society during the past year spent $23,069 for animals. These included:

> A giraffe, cowfaced antelope, oryx antelope, gibbon, great ant eater, cassowary, a pair of lammergeirs, two rat kangaroos, ocelot, two snow leopards, zebra, Grant zebra, foruss, Rocky Mountain sheep, a pair of ostriches, leopard, tortoise, paradise crane, two yaks, tree kangaroo, Grevy zebra, three hyrax, gibbon monkey, bushmaster, lancehead snake, and tapir.

Among the new buildings at the park was mentioned a hospital and quarantine for sick animals, on which work will be started at an early date. A fund has been started for a gallery of oil paintings of American wild game threatened by extinction, such as the prong-horn antelope and the snow leopard. Several paintings to be included in this collection are already in the Administration Building.

The boxes were occupied by the members of the Board of Managers, with their families. Among those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Agnew, Mr. and Mrs. George P. Cammann, Mr. and Mrs. Goelet Gallatin, Mrs. Hugh J. Chisholm, Mrs. Charles A. Dana, Miss Dorothy Mitchell, Mr. and Mrs. Ogden H. Hammond, Mr. and Mrs. William B. Osgood Field, Miss Barnes, Col. and Mrs. Anthony R. Kuser, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Thorne, Watson B. Dickerman, Mr. and Mrs. Emerson McMillin, Prof. and Mrs. Henry Fairfield Osborn, George B. Agnew, Mrs. Dr. G. Grant, Dr. and Mrs. William T. Hornaday, Madison Grant, Mr. and Mrs. B. V. H. Schultz, De Forest Grant, Mr. and Mrs. William R. Coe, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Grant, H. C. de Rham, Dr. and Mrs. Lewis R. Morris, Lispenard Stewart, Mr. and Mrs. William W. Niles, Mr. and Mrs. Grant B. Schley, Mr. and Mrs. George C. Clark, Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Hamilton, Miss Marion Clark, Major and Mrs. W. Austin Wadsworth, Col. and Mrs. William C. Church, Miss Marbury, Mr. and Mrs. Edward M. Townsend, Jr., Miss Rhett, Miss Josephine Gibson, Mr. and Mrs. Cleveland H. Dodge, Dr. and Mrs. Charles H. Townsend, Mr. and Mrs. Percy R. Pyne, Mr. and Mrs. Frank K. Sturgis, Mr. and Mrs. M. Taylor Pyne, Mrs. Stephen H. Olin, and Mrs. J. Borden Harriman.

"ROOSEVELT IN 1916."

Will Be a Candidate if Wanted, Says Riis—Wilson "a Wonderful Man."

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, Mich., Jan. 13.—"Theodore Roosevelt will be a candidate for the Presidency in 1916 if the people want him," said Jacob Riis, Roosevelt's close friend, here to-day. "His acceptance of the Republican nomination would be conditional on that party espousing all the doctrines Roosevelt stood for in 1912, but I think the Republican Party is dead. Strange that a man so brilliant in mentality as Senator Root should bring his party to such a pass!

"Wonderful, isn't it, how malice hangs around the name of Roosevelt. After the drunkenness charges had been laid out cold at Marquette came the story that Roosevelt was an epileptic and that there was insanity in his family. But the other day came the most novel story of all from Chicago to me, to find out if it was true that when Roosevelt became Commissioner of Police in New York he invented a spiked club to use on the heads of union labor strikers."

Commenting on President Wilson, Mr. Riis said:

"At last the Democratic Party has found a man that will make it work—for the first time since the civil far. I am amazed at the development of will power and force of character displayed by President Wilson. He is a wonderful man."

Mr. Humphrey said that connected with the steel industry and the iron and metals trade were 28,800 separate establishments, employing 2,000,000 men. He went on:

"There are 958,000 miners directly affected by this depression in the steel industry. The output of coal has decreased 40 to 50 per cent. There are 270,000 miners now out of work.

Figures Wage Loss Two Millions Daily.

"The wage-earners are losing $63,000,000 per month. An annual pay roll of $756,000,000 has been wiped out. A sum equal to $2,000,000 a day that the American workmen were receiving a few months ago has been taken from them and paid to the foreigner, or not paid at all.

"Is it any wonder," asked Mr. Humphreys, "with this sum daily taken from labor that there is a general business paralysis?

On Nov. 1, 1913, there was a "shortage" of 1,942 cars in the county, Mr. Humphrey asserted. On Jan. 1 there were 138,850 cars idle.

Mr. Humphrey said the United States Steel Corporation had orders for 7,852,000 tons on Jan. 1, 1913, and for 4,250,000 tons on Jan. 1, 1914.

Mr. Humphreys gave these figures for men discharged:

Pennsylvania Steel Company, 4,000 men; Lackawanna Steel Company, 4,000 men; Bethlehem Steel Company, 4,000; Illinois and Indiana Steel Companies, 7,000; Carnegie Steel Company, 10,000; Jones & Laughlin Steel Company, 6,000; Baldwin Locomotive Works, 4,000; United States Steel Corporation, about 40,000; Alan Wood, Iron and Steel Company, 1,000; American Locomotive Works of Richmond, 3,000; total, 88,000 men.

The idle men in the automobile industry, he said, were 3,000 around Cleveland, 35,000 in the Detroit district, and 12,000 in other Middle Western States, a total of 50,000.

INCREASE TO TELEGRAPHERS.

Arbitrators Decide for Men Employed on Cleveland Belt Line.

Special to The New York Times.

CLEVELAND, Jan. 13.—An increase in wages of $5 a month was granted to telegraphers on the Wheeling & Lake Erie, Wabash, Pittsburgh, Columbus and West Side Belt Line Railroad today by the Board of Arbitrators, which has been sitting here for ten days.

The increase is granted in place of a general 15 per cent. increase, demanded by the 180 men. A minimum wage of $65 a month was also fixed by the arbitrators. Better working conditions were also obtained for the men. Where bonds are required premiums will be paid by the road. Vacations with pay will be given all employes after two years' service.

The report was signed by Alexander Hadden and James R. Garfield, mediators; S. J. Konenkamp and E. G. Ramsey of Chicago, representing the telegraphers, and D. R. Webner and M. E. Chapman of Cleveland, representing the railroad.

3,000 BACK IN CHICAGO MILLS.

Illinois Steel Company Official Thinks Outlook Bright.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 13.—More than 3,000 men went back to work to-day in the mills of the Illinois Steel Company at South Chicago. When running at its full capacity, the plant employs 10,000 to 11,000 men. The call that went out to-day increases the number employed to over 6,000.

William A. Field, Superintendent of the plant, said that the next few weeks might see all the men employed.

"The situation looks mighty bright," he went on, "and there is reason to believe that by the end of January we may be running at our full capacity."

WORK FOR 10,000 IDLE MEN.

Plants in Western Pennsylvania Are Resuming Operations.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 13.—Plants which are resuming operations early this week are giving employment to 10,000 idle men. Fourteen hundred employes of the Standard Sanitary Manufacturing Company's Woods Run plant are going back to work after having been idle since Dec. 31. At the same time almost 3,000 employes of the Standard Company in other places will go back to work.

Six mills in the No. 2 department of the Allegheny Steel Company at Brackenridge resumed operation to-day. It is expected that the No. 1 department will start on Jan. 15. The upper plant of the American Sheet and Tin Plate Company at New Kensington began work after having been closed down several weeks. It is expected that the lower plant, now operating at two-thirds capacity, will be at full capacity in three weeks.

The Tarentum Business Men's Association is trying to obtain a site for the Structural Tube and Steel Works, backed by Pittsburgh capital, which will employ 509 men.

GANGS ARE COWED, DETECTIVES REPORT

CORONER HOLDS SUSPECTS

Coroner Feinberg granted the request of Assistant District Attorney Deacon Murphy yesterday morning to hold "Dopey Benny" Fein and his three followers, "Waxie" Gordon, "Little Abie" Beckerman, and Rubin Kaplan, for forty-eight additional hours without bail. Mr. Murphy's request indicated that the police, who have been working up the case against the four men accused of murdering Frederick Straus, the veteran City Court Clerk, shot down on Friday evening during a gang attack on Arlington Hall, 19-23 St. Mark's Place, were not yet ready to divulge the information on which they hope to convict them.

Ex-Magistrate Charles G. F. Wahle, who appeared for the prisoners, objected in vain to Mr. Murphy's request. He pointed out that his clients had already been in custody for three days, without anything more than short affidavits by policemen being produced against them. He said that there was nothing to show that any of the four men had committed an overt act, and asked for their immediate discharge. He said that unless some definite evidence was produced on the hearing on Thursday he would apply for writs of habeas corpus in the Supreme Court to compel the release of his clients.

Deputy Police Commissioner Dougherty declined to indicate just what information the police were seeking in order to be able to make out their case on Thursday. Mr. Dougherty and Inspector Faurot interviewed several more eye-witnesses of the shooting, and said that they were making progress.

Mr. Dougherty said last night that the activities of special squads of police sent to search resorts of gangsters for weapons had been successful in driving the gangsters to cover. He said that few of them had left town, but that most of them were keeping away from the saloons and behaving themselves generally. He added that the special squads had been disappointed by the fewness of those on whom they found weapons.

One squad under Lieut. Richard McKenna combed east side resorts from Madison Square Garden to Tenth Street last night and bagged but one violator of the Sullivan law, Giuseppi Franzino, who runs a basement restaurant at 313 East Twelfth Street. Franzino had two fully loaded revolvers in his desk, and complained bitterly when arrested that he had to have them in order to protect himself and his customers from the visits of hold-up men.

On their trip the detectives arrested three men charged with jostling on a Fourteenth Street crosstown car at Third Avenue. Jostling passengers on cars to distract their attention is a familiar device of pickpockets. All three of the men arrested had been arrested before. They were John Izno of 240 East Twelfth Street, John Martino of 18 Irving Place, and John Ramonio of 24 Division Street.

At Madison Square Garden the detectives met the crowd coming out of the prize-fight and warned a stream of thugs, pickpockets, hold-up men, and other criminals to leave town. The warning was taken sullenly by the crooks, who in other days, the detectives said, would have openly jeered at the police. Mayor Mitchel's statement in favor of the use of clubs on known criminals and Commissioner McKay's instructions that uniformed men were not to be brought up on charges for clubbing any person who could not prove a good character have cowed the underworld, the detectives said. Several pool parlors and cafés which have been the resorts of dangerous gangsters were deserted even by their proprietors last night, the squads found.

Louis Cohan of 66 Suffolk Street, arrested by Detective Herbert of the Clinton Street Police Station for attempting to rifle a woman's handbag on Rivington Street, complained to Magistrate Harris in Essex Market Court yesterday that he had been beaten in the station house. He showed the Magistrate several bruises. The detective told Magistrate Harris that Cohan had offered him $5 to be allowed to escape, and that when this bribe was refused he fought to escape. Magistrate Harris found Cohan guilty and sent him to the Workhouse for thirty days.

tendent respectively of the Royal Mail Steam Packet Company; two Sisters of Charity, Wallace Gallant and the Misses Marguerite and Dorothy James.

ST. JOHN, N. B., Jan. 13.—The fate of the Cobequid was the subject of anxious conjecture here to-night.

The possibility that the Cobequid might still be clinging to the Murr Ledges was accepted by the more hopeful of those interested in the steamer here. Among others grave fears were expressed that the steamer had slid off the rock on which she struck and had gone down with all on board.

No passenger list of the Cobequid is available, but it is known that among those on board were the Misses Marguerite and Dorothy James, girls of 16 or 17 years, children of the late H. R. James, who was formerly Mayor of St. George's, Bermuda. The girls were coming here as the guests of Joseph A. Likely, a timber merchant, intending later to go to private school at Windsor, N. S.

Word was received here late to-night by the Cobequid's agents that the Government seagoing tug Helena, which left this morning to search for the Cobequid, had been forced by the terrific sea to put into Beaver Harbor. The Captain of the Helena reported that he had found no trace of the disabled vessel.

At the New York office of the Royal Mail Steam Packet Company it was said that the Cobequid had a passenger capacity of ninety, including fifty first cabin and forty second cabin. On her trips north at this time of year the steamer generally carries few passengers. Including stewards and others not engaged in working the vessel, the total number of the crew, it was said, was about seventy-five.

SCHOONER'S CREW MISSING.

John Paul, Picked Up Abandoned, Sinks—Schooner Greta Vanishes.

BOSTON, Jan. 13.—North pole weather rushed down on New England on a mile-a-minute gale to-day. The schooner John Paul sank in Nantucket Sound while being towed to Vineyard Haven by the revenue cutter Acushnet, which hed picked her up abandoned. Not a word has been heard from her crew of six. Unless picked up by some other craft it is feared they have been lost.

A longboat, apparently empty, has drifted into the ice of the Monomoy Shoals. Life savers were unable to get near enough to the boat to find if she belonged to the John Paul, and they question whether the longboat from the schooner could have reached that point. A dense vapor offshore made it impossible to make observations for any great distance. The John Paul was loaded with granite, from Stonington, Me., for New York, and was commanded by Capt. E. J. Hutchinson of Deer Isle, Me.

The British schooner Greta has mysteriously vanished. She was sighted at dark last night anchored close to Half Moon Shoal, with her topmast gone and flying signals of distress. No trace of her could be found to-day. Life savers say there is a possibility that she worked clear of the shoals and proceeded for shelter.

On land the gale brought widespread suffering and low temperatures unequalled in years. Many schools and factories closed. In Burlington, Vt., a part of the city was without light and power because of the solid freezing of the Winooski River. Temperatures between 25 and 30 degrees below zero were common in Northern New England.

In Manchester, N. H., Fred S. Morrill, a fireman, was blown from his seat on his engine while responding to an alarm, and was reported to be dying at the Elliott Hospital. Railroad traffic was crippled. Engines were unable to make steam properly, and trains were from one to six hours late.

In spite of the cold, a dozen swimmers took their daily plunge at the L Street baths and reported that the water was "fine."

Two schooners dragged ashore during last night's gale the Charles C. Lister, South Amboy for St. John, N. B., was brought here to-night in tow of the tug John G. Chandler. She had lost both anchors, the windlass was disabled, and the vessel was leaking freely. While thus crippled she went ashore on Point Gammon, but was hauled off to-day. Not far away the G. M. Porter, New York for Calais, went ashore on Kill Pond Bar, off Bass River. The revenue cutter Acushnet was standing by the schooner to-night.

RESCUE THREE IN ICY GALE.

Men on Stranded Barge Taken Off by Nantucket Life Savers.

NANTUCKET, Mass., Jan. 13.—A nine-hour battle in a freezing gale for the lives of three men ended late today when the Coskata life savers reached the stranded Lehigh barge 788 off Great Point and brought her frost-bitten crew ashore through the heavy sea.

The barge broke loose from the tug Irvington in the sixty-mile blow last night, while bound light from Boston for New York. With the thermometer only two degrees above zero, the men on the barge were unable to stay on deck long enough in the fierce gale to haul a hawser aboard after the Irvington had ventured near enough to cast them a heaving line. Shortly afterward the barge piled up on one of the bars off Great Point, where she was sighted by a patrol from the Coskata station.

At sunrise the surf boat was launched, but twice it was hurled back on the beach. Not until the gale moderated slightly late in the day were the efforts of the life savers successful.

The men rescued were Capt. Bessany Oliveria, Solomon Derrick, and Henry Hazell. Capt. Oliveria said that the barge was leaking slightly, but that if the gale continued to decrease he believed she could be floated.

Capstan Clue to Burned Schooner.

TAMPA, Fla., Jan. 13—The only mark of identification on the hull of the burned schooner towed into port yesterday is the imprint on an iron capstan: "By Windsor, Nova Scotia, Foundry Company." A telegram from a shipping firm in New Orleans to-day claimed the hull as that of the bark Malwa, abandoned in the Gulf in the Christmas storm. The local Collector of Customs reported to Washington, however, that the derelict was the Lord of Avon.

TO STUDY CURRAN REPORT.

McKay Takes Up Recommendations for the First Time.

The Police Department extended its first recognition yesterday to the report on police conditions made by the Curran Aldermanic Police Investigating Committee. Police Commissioner McKay sent a request to Alderman Henry H. Curran for several copies of the report, and Alderman Curran immediately sent six copies to Police Headquarters.

The Curran report was rejected by the Board of Aldermen on June 17 by a vote of 45 to 25. The report recommended many radical changes in the Police Department, but only a few of the recommendations were finally adopted by the board after they were included in a minority report which was submitted by Alderman Frank Dowling, leader of the Tammany forces in the board. It was said yesterday that Mayor Mitchel had ordered his Police Commissioner to study the report carefully with a view to having some of its recommendations carried out.

EX-MINISTER TO BE SENATOR

Maryland Upper House Decides to Admit F. E. Williams.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Jan. 13.—The Senate Committee, appointed to investigate the status of Senator-elect Frank E. Williams of Cecil County, decided this afternoon that the evidence he offered was sufficient proof that he was no longer a minister of the Gospel. Mr. Williams probably will be sworn in to-morrow.

Opposition to the seating of Mr. Williams was based on a clause of the State Constitution providing that no clergyman should be eligible for membership in the Legislature.

act middle of a small round island in the Gulf of Kagoshima directly in front of the City of Kagoshima, capital of the Province of Satsuma. It is 4,000 feet high and before the present eruption had two craters. One of these had been closed and silent for many years; the other, a huge, ragged opening in the mountain crest, has for centuries given off small quantities of steam. Around its base are several hot springs, evidence of subterranean conditions, and several draws in the rugged sides show runs of lava which extend to the sea.

The island and its volcano are scenically beautiful, and both Japanese and foreigners in large numbers constantly visited them. The permanent population was considerable, running probably to 25,000. Much of the soil of the island was rich, and sugar cane, fruit, and vegetables were extensively cultivated.

Sakura-jima had its last general eruption in 1779, and while accurate information as to the suffering and damage which it inflicted is not available, the occasion so impressed itself upon the people that the eruption was commemorated by a monthly festival. This day is still observed by many of the people, and for decades no boats were allowed to leave the island during the celebration, a rule which is said to have had its origin in superstition.

The surrounding coasts and the country in several directions are heavily populated, and the number in the danger zone is hundreds of thousands. The chief city in danger is Kagoshima, which lies almost in the shadow of the volcano, and is separated from it by a narrow strait.

Kagoshima is the centre of a large pottery and porcelain industry, which employs thousands of artisans and laborers of both sexes.

Ashes Fall in Nagasaki.

The heavy ash fall extends far to the north and has already inveloped the important cities of Nagasaki and Kumamoto, as well as many small cities and towns. Of these Nagasaki alone has any considerable foreign population. They have ample opportunity to escape to sea if a serious condition confronts the city.

Local scientists do not anticipate that there will be much loss of life from the constant earthquakes, because the buildings are all of light material and low, but they do fear that thousands will be overwhelmed in Kagoshima and the surrounding towns. The railways are cut, escape by sea is open only to limited numbers, and blind flight upon foot is the one recourse for the great bulk of the population.

The tragedy of the South, whose measure may only be guessed at this time, has deeply moved people and Government, and every resource of succor and aid will be called to meet the crises. The Army, the Navy, the State-owned railway system, and the steamship companies will unite in a series of relief expeditions by land and sea, and these will be backed by citizens' movements everywhere. Warships are already groping their way through the ash clouds that hang pall-like over Kagoshima Gulf, and during the day, it is expected, their wireless instruments will begin recording the accurate details of the disaster despite the discouragement of their first efforts.

The great naval base at Sasebo is within less than a day's steaming of the stricken district, and the Admiralty officials announce that every available vessel will be hurried to the scene with medical relief and supplies of food.

Kagoshima is one of the historic cities of Japan. It is the old capital of the famous Satsuma clan, so conspicuous in both the old and the new Japan, and the scene of the last battle of the Satsuma rebellion. The great Saigo, who led the revolution, committed hara-kiri when he saw his last line waver and fail, and the graves where he and hundreds of his warriors lie constitute one of the great national shrines.

When Japan refused to give satisfaction for the murder of the Englishman, Richardson, in 1862, Great Britain dispatched a squadron of seven ships under Admiral Kuper, who bombarded and burned Kagoshima. The later fame of the city rests on the manufacture of the well-known Satsuma crackle ware.

NAGASAKI, Jan. 13.—Despair and panic reigned among the inhabitants of Kagoshima when the volcano of Sakura-jima broke into eruption yesterday, burying villages in streams of lava.

A refugee who arrived here to-day from Kagoshima says the eruption started with columns of thick black smoke and flame from the crater of Sakura-jima. The inhabitants of the small island in the Gulf of Kagoshima, where Sakura-jima is situated, rushed to the beach and leaped on board junks and steamers, which carried them across three miles of water to Kagoshima, ashes and particles of lava falling all the while on the decks.

At Kagoshima the heat was intense, and a hail of glowing cinders made it impossible for the citizens to remain.

The horror was increased by incessant slight shocks of earthquake, which rocked the houses all day.

The people fled in disordered droves along the highways leading west and north of the city. They had abandoned everything in their flight, and soon they were suffering also from lack of food and drink.

The witness describes the volcano of Sakura-jima as resembling, when he left Kagoshima, an enormous set-piece of fireworks, glowing from the foot of the mountain to the summit.

Other reports say hundreds of persons perished beneath the molten lava, and that many were drowned.

The Government authorities declare it impossible as yet to estimate the extent of the disaster. Doctors and hospital attendants have been sent to the scene, but it is difficult to reach the spot, as railroad communication is impeded by the heaps of ashes and the tracks have been dislocated by the earthquakes.

The violence of the eruption of Sakura-jima was so great that showers of dust are falling here to-day, although the distance between Nagasaki and the Island of Sakura is about ninety miles.

DR. E. C. SPITZKA, ALIENIST, IS DEAD

Succumbs to Apoplexy on Eve of Trial of Joseph Gershgall's $50,000 Damage Suit.

WEAKENED BY OPERATIONS

Noted Neurologist, Who Was Radical in His Opinions, Suffered from Necrosis of Jaw—His Career.

Dr. Edward Charles Spitzka, the noted neurologist, anatomist and alienist, who has been ill for some time of necrosis of the upper jaw, died suddenly yesterday morning of apoplexy at his home, 66 East Seventy-third Street, at the age of 61 years. Dr. Spitzka was stricken at about 4 o'clock. Word was at once sent to his son, Dr. Edward A. Spitzka, who lives in Philadelphia, by Mrs. Spitzka, and he reached this city shortly before 11 o'clock.

"Father died in my arms at 11:10 o'clock in the morning," he said. "He had been very ill and had been operated on four times for necrosis of the jaw, but his death came as a great shock to us. He had never suffered from apoplexy before."

For many years Dr. Spitzka had been recognized as an authority in mental diseases and as a specialist in the branches of the science of medicine dealing principally with the nervous system. He was one of the scientists selected to witness the first execution by electricity in New York State—that of William Kemmler at Auburn on Aug. 6, 1890—and he also testified at the trial of Guiteau, the assassin of President Garfield, declaring that in his opinion the man was insane.

Mrs. Gershgall Told of Death.

On Nov. 12 last Dr. Spitzka, then ill at his home, was sued in the Supreme Court for $50,000 damages by Joseph Gershgall, a jeweler of 906 Simpson Street, the Bronx, for alienating the affections of the plaintiff's wife, Mrs. Minnie Gershgall. According to a stipulation entered into in Part II. of the Supreme Court yesterday and approved by Justice Guy, he was to appear at the Court House on Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock to submit to a preliminary examination by Alexander A. Mayper, attorney for Gershgall.

The lawyers, including ex-Senator James D. McClelland, counsel for Dr. Spitzka, were arranging for the adjournment when, according to McClelland, Mrs. Gershgall called up on the telephone and told them of Dr. Spitzka's death.

Mr. McClelland said that Dr. Spitzka had been served with the papers in the alienation suit just two days after he had been operated upon for a cancerous growth of the jaw and while he was in a very weak condition.

Mrs. Gershgall was one of Dr. Spitzka's patients, according to the complaint in the case.

Expert in Insanity Cases.

Dr. Spitzka was born in this city on Nov. 10, 1852, the son of Charles Anthony and Johanna Spitzka. He attended the College of the City of New York from 1870 to 1873 and obtained his degree of M. D. from the University Medical College. He studied in Leipsic and Vienna for the following three years, and then entered into practice as a specialist in internal diseases, particularly of the nervous system. He was looked upon as an expert in cases of insanity or injury to the brain or spinal column. Dr. Spitzka was a porfessor of medical jurisprudence and neurology at the New York Post Graduate Medical College from 1885 to 1887, and later a consulting neurologist at Sydenham Hospital. He was the discoverer of the interoptic lobes of the reptilian brain.

From 1881 to 1884 Dr. Spitzka was the editor of The American Journal of Neurology. He was Vice President of the Section of Neurology of the Ninth International Medical Congres in 1887, Chairman of the Section of Somatology of the Medical Congress at the St. Louis Exposition in 1904, a member and former President of the American Neurological Association and of the New York Neurological Society, and a member of the Association of American Anatomists. His book, "Treatise on Insanity," was published in 1883.

Dr. Spitzka was married on June 30, 1873, to Catherine Watzek of Vienna. Their only son, Dr. Edward Anthony Spitzka, professor in the Jefferson Medical College in Philadelphia, has a wide reputation in his field, that of anatomy, especially that of the brain. He performed the autopsy on Czolgosz, the assassin of President McKinley.

Student of Criminal Psychology.

Dr. Edward C. Spitzka was at times radical in his opinions, and had at times advocated eugenic marriages and State supervision of child bearing. He had contended that suicide was justifiable under circumstances, and had other unusual theories. Criminal psychology was of particular interest to him, and he engaged in many spirited controversies with Lombroso and other criminologists. Once he expressed the conviction that there was an international society of murder, whose victims were monarchs and statesmen, and the promulgation by physicians of the doctrine that regicide was the product of insanity, and that the slayers of Presidents, Kings, and Prime Ministers were irresponsible persons affected by a desire for martyr glory aroused his antagonism.

Dr. Spitzka, with Dr. George F. Shrady and Dr. Carlos F. MacDonald, was selected to observe the execution of William Kemmler at Auburn in 1890. There was much agitation then against the introduction of electricity as a means of executing condemned prisoners. After the execution, Dr. Spitka said:

"Never before have I felt as I do now. What I have seen has impressed me deeply, not exactly with what you would call horror, but rather with wonder and doubt. I have seen hangings that were immeasurably more brutal than this execution, but I have never seen anything so awful. What I have seen has suggested so much that I have not satisfied every question that has arisen in my own mind, but I do say that after witnessing all I would scale the methods of capital punishment for humanity, simplicity, and reliability as first the guillotine, second the gallows, and last electrical execution."

MITCHEL SEEKS AID OF NATION FOR PORT

Impresses House Committee in Plea for $13,400,000 to Clear River Channels.

NOT A NEWSPAPER CENSOR

He Tells Congressman in Colloquy on "Pork Barrels"—Editors Letting Him Alone for a Time.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—John Purroy Mitchel, Mayor of New York City, heading a large delegation of business men and city officials, appeared before the House Rivers and Harbors Committee to-day with a strong plea for the adoption of the project of Col. Black of the Army Engineer Corps for the improvement of the East River. This project calls for an ultimate expenditure of about $13,400,000, and seeks an immediate appropriation of $500,000 for the removal of Coenties Reef and Diamond Reef.

Mayor Mitchel sketched a graphic picture of the needs of New York Harbor, spoke at length of the rôle the city itself was playing in the effort to care for future commerce, and urged the nation to contribute its full share, which it had not done in the past. He told of the plans for the New York Central improvements along the west side of Manhattan Island, the South Brooklyn dock development, the proposal to construct freight tunnels under the Hudson, and explained the relation of the Black project to these important works. Emphasizing that Coenties Reef was in the direct line of the proposed new Brooklyn subway, Mayor Mitchel told the committee that if provision for the reef's removal were not made at once blasting the reef after the completion of the subway tunnel might menace the subway and traffic through it.

The case as presented by Mayor Mitchel and other members of the delegation seemed to appeal strongly to the members of the committee, and when Mr. Mitchel left the stand Chairman Sparkman said:

"There is no disposition on the part of this committee whatever to neglect the great harbor of New York City. We propose to take care of it the best that we can. However, we have not yet determined whether we will recommend any new projects in this bill. We will decide that point soon."

Reef Obstructs Subway.

The point Mayor Mitchel dwelt on was the necessity of removing Coenties Reef before the new subway to Brooklyn was completed.

"The new subway line," said the Mayor, "running from Whitehall Street to Montague Street, in Brooklyn, under the East River, will pass directly under Coenties Reef. The excavation of the reef will be carried down to the thirty-five-foot level. If done in the future it could only be at such imminent risk to the subway under the reef as to be a tremendous hazard of life when the tubes are in operation, or to the entire property.

"New York City and private capital combined are spending $300,000,000 on our new subways. The city's contribution to that sum is very large. These tubes are an integral part of the general plan. They will rest right under Coenties Reef at a given depth. The rock roofs of the tubes would be affected in tearing this passage. In doing that the drilled holes would go down over that rocky roof to a depth to bring them within eight or ten feet of the actual roof of the tube. A blast of dynamite set off at that point over the tubes, the engineers think, would expend its force downward and destroy the rocky roof of the subway tube. In other words, there will be a very actual and real menace to these subway tubes if they are placed as projected and the Government afterward undertakes to excavate Coenties Reef to a thirty-five-foot depth.

"We are about ready to advertise for contracts for the construction of these tubes. They are to be completed in three and one-half years. If this Coenties Reef is allowed to wait another year, the construction of the subway will probably have reached a point where excavation of the reef will be a great menace to the tubes. The $500,000 we now ask will take care of Coenties Reef sufficiently to protect the tubes, and also ships against the most menacing conditions on Diamond Reef."

Editors and Pork Barrels.

A humorous feature of the hearing which drew peals of laughter was a colloquy with Representative Small of North Carolina. Mr. Small is a veteran member of the Rivers and Harbors Committee, an advocate of Atlantic deeper waterways and has always resented press characterizations of river and harbor measures as "pork barrel bills."

"Can you tell me," asked Mr. Small of the Mayor, "why your great metropolitan newspapers refer to the Rivers and Harbors bill as a 'pork barrel'? Why do they condemn these rivers and harbors bills unreservedly? Why do they make this sweeping, undiscriminating discrimination? I could name a great metropolitan newspaper that came out a year ago with a vicious editorial attacking rivers and harbors legislation."

"I am afraid," responded Mr. Mitchel, "that I can only answer it this way: That it has not yet been vouchsafed to the Mayor of New York to have any jurisdiction over newspaper editors."

"Newspaper editors," insisted Mr. Small, "presumably reflect the sentiment of that city that contains their constituency."

"I hope not in this respect," quickly retorted the Mayor. "I cannot interpret the minds of the editorial writers. I do not recall the editorials, but I think all I have said does reflect the sentiment of the people of New York.

"I reflect their sentiment when I say that New York City rejoices to see the development of any part of the nation, because measurably, at least, such development rebounds to the benefit of New York."

"How about the inland waterways?" asked Mr. Small.

"Even the interior waterways," answered the Mayor.

"But," interrupted Mr. Small, "I want your opinion as to whether these wholesale criticisms in the New York newspapers reflect the sentiment of the people of that city."

"Again," responded the Mayor, "I am afraid I cannot give you an answer as to the opinions of the press. Perhaps I might say they do not reflect the sentiment of the people in that respect any more than they represent the sentiment of the people of New York in their attacks on the Mayor of New York City."

"I understand they have now stopped their criticisms on the Mayor," said Mr. Small.

"Only for a time," laughingly replied the Mayor, causing a gale of laughter.

City Not Fairly Treated.

Mayor Mitchel told the committee that New York had not had a fair share of river and harbor appropriations, and gave statistics in support of this assertion.

"Comparing imports and exports for 1913," he said, "we find they were $4,278,000,000 for the nation; for the Atlantic ports they were $2,424,000,000, and for New York City they were $1,966,000,000. The percentage of imports and exports of New York was 46 per cent. of those of the nation, but of the appropriations of the Government up to date for rivers and harbors New York State got $41,921,000, or 6 2-3 per cent. of the total appropriation for the nation. That sum includes the Ambrose Channel work and work at the New York lake ports. For New York City alone the river and harbor improvements made by the nation has aggregated about 2 per cent. of the total.

What the City is Doing.

"New York City has already begun to carry its own burden in this matter. The city has taken long steps forward toward the development of its port terminal facilities. We are constructing long docks from Forty-fourth Street northward to accommodate the transatlantic liners. The necessities of that situation and its relation to the requests of the city for the temporary extension of the Chelsea piers are apparent. The Secretary of War, after a long debate, consented to allow the city to maintain the extension of piers in the Chelsea district until the long docks in the Forty-fourth Street district were completed, and we are therefore holding the great transatlantic liners until we can permanently accommodate them in the forties. That project is costing the city $4,000,000.

"Besides, a tentative agreement with the New York Central, which will go through in the present administration, will mean marine terminals on the west side of Manhattan Island practically from the Battery all the way north. It will mean that the west side of Manhattan from the Battery north will be put in direct rail touch with the entire territory of the United States over the rails of the New York Central.

"In addition, the city is taking up, or will take up, the bringing of rail tunnels under the Hudson River from the Jersey meadows to connect with the rail terminals that the city will ultimately construct on the west side of Manhattan.

"That project of the New York Central Railroad, as now planned, will involve an expenditure of about $40,000,000, and to it the city will contribute a certain proportion.

"The city has also initiated a great terminal improvement in South Brooklyn, where it is proposed that the city shall ultimately acquire all the privately owned rail facilities along the water front from Sixty-third Street to the Brooklyn Bridge. It is proposed that the city construct there walls and docks, to be municipally owned and operated. A part of that plan, which will ultimately be adopted, when the financial condition of the city justifies it, involves the acquisition of the whole water front under a plan that will make itself self-sustaining and not increase the municipal debt."

"These schemes are all directly related to the improvement which we ask the Government to make in the East River."

Control of Waterfront.

Chairman Sparkman wanted to know whether New York City proposed to take over absolute control of the docks so as to prevent private companies obtaining a monopoly of them.

"Yes, Sir," replied Mayor Mitchel. "Broadly speaking, it is the city's policy to acquire its waterfront and either operate it itself or secure its operation under strict municipal control to insure against monopoly or discrimination in rates or service."

"That," interjected Chairman Sparkman, "is a very important point with this committee and with Congress to make sure that when the Government develops a harbor private companies cannot obtain a monopoly in the matter of charges."

This discussion of leases and wharf rights led Mr. Mitchel to refer to the proposal to open the Harlem Hills to a depth of eighteen feet, which is part of the project of Col. Black.

"That," said the Mayor, "would give direct connection between the East River and the entire Bronx waterfront, and with the North River by the Harlem River and the ship canal.

Effect of Erie Canal Opening.

"With the opening of the Erie Canal there will be an enormous increase in barge traffic, as a result of which it will be absolutely necessary to have that connection from the Hudson to the East River. All these barges will have to go all the way down the Hudson and around the Battery through waters now already tremendously congested with traffic, or else they will have to go down through the Harlem River into the very vortex of Hell Gate.

"The danger and menace of that route is so great that it is practically impossible and the tugboat or barge Captains would prefer to go around by the Battery, if this improvement is not made."

"By opening up the 35-foot channel to the Bronx and removing the pinnacles of rocks, you make it possible to develop the Bronx water front for all kinds of shipping, and to that extent relieve the congestion on the west side and at all points in the harbor. These rocks are in the middle of the channel.

"If you remove those rocks you will give us a clear access to the water front of the Bronx. Off Hunt's Point, where this development should take place, there is a shoal or a mud bank that can be dredged out easily. That water front will be enormously valuable when access can be had to it through the East River, and when the private persons who are developing there have dredged out the mud to give access to their water fronts. Those things are being done to-day.

"It is simply to meet those large investments of private and municipal capital that we want this relief for the development of the East River channel by the nation. Opening up the East River channel would also give all the large New England boats a safe inside route. Many New England boats pass through the Sound to-day, but every time they go through Hell Gaate there is a great menace."

MITCHEL SEES WILSON.

New York City Politics Not Discussed at White House Luncheon.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—Mayor Mitchel of New York had luncheon with President Wilson at the White House today.

Reports that the President and the Mayor would discuss the reorganization of the Democratic Party in New York City were not fulfilled. They talked about other things and did not go into New York politics.

MITCHEL SCOUTS INQUIRY.

Whitman, Too, Says He Has No Campaign Fund Investigation.

Both Mayor Mitchel and District Attorney Whitman denied yesterday that they knew anything about an investigation of contributions to the Mitchel campaign fund last Fall which, according to The New York American, is to be started by the District Attorney. According to the story H. S. Kerbaugh contributed $1,500 to the Mitchel fund, and this and many other contributions were not accounted for as required by law.

The publication of the story revived the rumors current for the past two weeks that Mayor Mitchel and William R. Hearst are no longer friendly. Mayor Mitchel returned from Washington last night, accompanied by Dock Commissioner R. A. C. Smith.

"I know nothing about the stories about campaign contributions," said the Mayor. "All contributions that were sent to me personally were turned over to the proper authorities. I filed the necessary certificate of receipts and expenditures, and as for the contributions to the various committees they were all accounted for in the regular way so far as I know. I did not receive any money or checks from Mr. Hearst personally, and I do not know whether he sent any to the general campaign fund. It is news to me that there is to be any investigation of any funds connected with my campaign."

District Attorney Whitman denied that he had started any investigation.

"There is not a word of truth in the report that I have started such an investigation," he said. "I've issued no subpoena for any one in the matter. I was asked last night by telephone if I would act if a complaint was laid before me, and I replied that I naturally would take action upon any complaint, as it was my duty to do so."

Up to the time the District Attorney left his office no complaints had been made to him. According to one report, the League of Mitchel Clubs received contributions amounting to $14,771, and no report regarding these contributions was filed with the Secretary of of State.

The report of the "break" between Mr. Hearst and the Mayor has to do with the appointment of a Corporation Counsel. It was said that Mr. Hearst had asked the Mayor to appoint Montgomery Hare to the office, and that when the Mayor refused to do so Mr. Hearst withdrew his support from the Mitchel administration. It was reported last night that the Mayor had made up his mind to appoint his former law partner, George V. Mullan, Corporation Counsel.

REFUSES TO NAME SIEGEL RECEIVERS

Judge Hough Says Reasonable Time Must Be Allowed for Equity Proceeding.

DEPOSITORS TO TRY AGAIN

Will Examine Bank Partners—New Records of Loans Found—Senate Hearing To-day.

Judge Hough, in the United States District Court, denied yesterday the application made the day before to appoint receivers in bankruptcy for the banking firm of Henry Siegel & Co. In a memorandum acocmpanying his decision, Judge Hough said that information that had reached him indicated that unless the Siegel stores were kept together and going, the depositors in the bank would have nothing to protect them.

"The petitions contain no allegations regarding acts of bankrucpty," said Judge Hough, "except upon information and belief. The petitions show no reason for the appointment of receivers except a desire on the part of the attorneys presenting the petitions to examine Messrs. Siegel and Vogel under Section 21 A of the Bankruptcy Statute. An examination of these defendants will be had in the equity proceeding under the direction of the court. The comparative advantages of equity and bankruptcy were considered at great length before any receivers in equity were appointed.

"From the facts then presented to me, (and every more recent development has confirmed the belief,) the opinion was formed that unless the mercantile businesses affected by the equity proceeding could be kept together and value put in their stocks, the loss, especially to depositors in the so-called bank would be almost total. A reasonable time must be allowed for efforts at rehabilitation.

"During that time all the allied and dependent businesses should be kept together under one control. The appointment of bankruptcy receivers (no matter who they are) will do no good and may do harm.

"It follows that there is no necessity of appointing receivers in bankruptcy at present, and the applications are severaly refused."

Despite the refusal of Judge Hough to appoint receivers in bankruptcy, Abraham Gruber of the law firm of Olcott, Gruber, Bonynge & McManus, representing the petitioning creditors, announced yesterday that he would go right ahead with his action in bankruptcy. He said he felt that Judge Hough had expressed very good reasons for denying a receiver in bankruptcy at the present time, but added that such an appointment of receivership was not yet essential. This morning, Mr. Gruber said Henry Siegel and Frank E. Vogel, the partners who constitute the banking firm of Henry Siegel & Co., would be served with summonses in the bankruptcy proceedings. They will have ten days in which to put in an appearance and five more days in which to file answers. Then the case will be put on the calendar.

"These proceedings are merely to determine whether any acts of bankruptcy have been committed," said Mr. Gruber. "If that is proved, the firm can be adjudged in bankruptcy and a receiver in bankruptcy then appointed."

Store Stock with Bank.

Daniel P. Hays of the law firm of Hays, Hershfield & Wolf, who is to serve as counsel for the Senate Committee on Banking at its inquiry into the Siegel bank case in the Aldermanic Chamber this morning, wrote to the receiver of the bank, Henry Melville, yesterday, asking for copies of the bank's accounts and of such statements as it might hold from Henry Siegel and Frank E. Vogel for the protection of its depositors' money.

There are three such signed statements in the possession of Mr. Melville. Two are undated. One statement, signed by Henry Siegel, without date, accompanies 2,500 shares of common stock of the Siegel Stores Corporation and 1,000 shares of stock of the Henry Siegel Company of Boston, and explains that they are left in the bank as collateral for loans made by the bank to Henry Siegel personally.

The other two statements, signed by Mr. Siegel and Mr. Vogel, accompanied stock to cover the bank for loans extended to the Siegel stores. One statement, dated Jan. 17, 1910, accompanied 10,000 shares of common stock of the Siegel Stores Corporation belonging to Henry Siegel, and 5,000 shares of the same stock belonging to Mr. Vogel. The other statement, undated, was attached to 15,000 shares of common stock of the Siegel Stores Corporation belonging to Henry Siegel, and 2,105 shares of the same stock belonging to Frank E. Vogel; and 2,615 shares of the Henry Siegel Company belonging to Mr. Siegel, and 1,960 shares of the same stock belonging to Mr. Vogel. All told, the two partners thus left with the bank to protect its depositors against loans made to the stores or to Mr. Siegel personally, 34,605 shares of Siegel Stores Corporation stock and 5,575 shares of the Henry Siegel Company. The former stock a day before the receivership was quoted at 12. The stock of the Henry Siegel Company, Mr. Melville said, was practically worthless. The bank holds none of the $2,500,000 preferred stock of the Siegel Stores Corporation nor any of its bonds.

Nearly all of the $1,000,000 preferred stock issued last week by Siegel, Cooper & Co. of Chicago, the paying member of the Siegel Stores Corporation, was understood yesterday to have been subscribed. Just how this $1,000,000 issue will help the creditors of the local and Boston concerns, was explained yesterday by Joseph M. Hartfield of the law firm of White & Case, representing the committee of mercantile and banking creditors of the Siegel firms. He said it would wipe out $1,000,000 of notes of the Chicago store, outstanding at 6 per cent. plus brokerage fees of one-quarter of 1 per cent.

Chicago House Freed.

"Although the preferred stock is a 7 per cent. stock," he added, "the dividends are contingent upon the firm's earning them. The notes, on the other hand, have been pressed for payment, and the interest of 6 per cent. on them, plus brokerage fees, has not been a contingent matter at all. Once relieved of the pressure of these outstanding notes, the Chicago firm, which is a money-maker, can continue freely to divert its profits to the help of the embarrased firms here and in Boston."

Mr. Hartfield, who returned yesterday from Boston, where, with Pierre Jay, Chairman of the Creditors' Committee, and John S. Sheppard, Jr., one of the receivers for the Siegel stores, he investigated the condition of the Boston store, was unwilling to discuss the result of his investigations.

Late yesterday afternoon Receiver Sheppard and his counsel, James N. Rosenberg, visited Judge Hough and were closeted with him for some time. Mr. Rosenberg would not discuss the nature of his conference with Judge Hough, but it was understood to have had to do with the report on the Boston store and the reports made to the receivers here.

Much stress was laid by all connected with the present receivership proceedings on the importance of the hearing before the Senate Banking Commission at the City Hall this morning. At that hearing not only Henry Siegel and his partner, Frank E. Vogel, have been subpoenaed to appear and answer questions, but also many others connected with the Siegel enterprises. Mr. Vogel was said yesterday to be in Chicago, and Mr. Siegel said he had no statement to make.

Depositors of the bank with claims aggregating more than $400,000 gave powers of attorney to the law firm of Coudert Brothers yesterday to act for them. More depositors were coming in steadily.

The committee of ten appointed by the depositors met in the temporary office of the bank, at 43 West Thirteenth Street, yesterday. It was decided to send a delegation to the Senate committee hearing this morning and to petition the committee to procure a statement of present status and intention from Henry Siegel or some one else closely connected with the bank. The depositors' committee will also meet in the loft at 43 West Thirteenth Street at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

TRUNK MURDER CASE SOLVED BY POLICE

Victor Muravlof, Russian Mechanic, Confesses He Directed Disposition of the Body.

DRUG MAY HAVE BEEN USED

Other Men and Women Who Lived in Flat Where Man Died Now Sought by Detectives.

Victor Muravlof, a graduate of the Imperial Russian Railroad Technical Institute of Moscow and employed in the projectile works of E. W. Bliss & Co., Brooklyn, was arrested yesterday, charged with complicity in the murder of Ivan Martysewicz, or Kremen, whose body was found in a trunk on Dec. 29 at noon in front of 47 Pitt Street. Deputy Police Commissioner Dougherty and Inspector Faurot said that Muravlof, who is also known as Taxt, admitted that he was the man who directed the dumping of the trunk on the sidewalk and hired 14-year-old Morris Feinberg of 59 Pitt Street to guard the trunk after he had smoked a big cigar, to give the pushcart man time to get away.

The police investigation led to a flat at 529 East Eleventh Street, where it is believed a practice was made of luring Slavic laborers newly returned to this city with the proceeds of months of labor in up-State contract camps, for the purpose of robbing them by the administration of "knockout drops." Pending an autopsy on Martysewicz's body, the police have adopted the theory that he was killed by an overdose of some such drug as chloral, given to him in an alcoholic beverage.

At the time he died Martysewicz did not have more than $7 in his possession, although he had returned only two days before from the camp of the J. F. Donovan Company at Garrison. He had sent all the rest of his earnings, some $60, to his father in Russia. The police announced positively that the dead man had been identified as a native of the town of Chrisy, Province of Grodno, Russian Poland.

Mr. Dougherty praised highly the detectives who had brought about the arrest of Muravlof by an arduous search made while several other matters were absorbing public attention and while the homicide theory of Martysewicz's death was the subject of considerable skepticism.

At the flat to which Martysewicz was finally traced there resided, the Deputy Commissioner said, the prisoner Muravlof, a man named Charley Draniewicz, manager of the flat, and three women, one of whom was named Mary Bodner. The search was led by Capt. Cooper of the Thirteenth Precinct detectives, with Lieut. Steinkamp and Detectives McGee, Barney, Pflaster, Jessup, and John Challon. To Challon Mr. Dougherty gave most of the credit for the arrest.

Traced by the Trunk.

Challon discovered that the trunk in which the body was found had been sold by a Mrs. Henry Goldman of 242 First Avenue. This discovery was made after a canvass of all the trunk stores on a list supplied by the Petersburg Trunk and Bag Company of Petersburg, West Va., as the complete list of their dealers in this city. The trunk had been identified on the day the body was discovered as a trunk newly made by the Petersburg Company. Challon traced the trunk which had been bought by two men and a woman to the flat at 529 East Eleventh Street, and by a search of the house and inquiries in the neighborhood to the flat of Draniewicz.

The police records revealed that one of the women inmates of the Draniewicz flat was arrested Jan. 9 on the complaint of a Slavic laborer that he had been robbed of his watch, chain, and money, after being lured to the flat by Mary Bodner. She is under arrest in the Tombs in default of $2,000 bail awaiting trial under this complaint.

Muravlof was put through a severe examination by Mr. Dougherty and Inspector Faurot and made conflicting statements and damaging admissions. He identified a photograph of the dead man as that of Martysewicz and said that he was the man whom he saw sleeping in the apartment of Draniewicz on the Saturday before the body was found in the trunk. He said that Martysewicz was snoring loudly when he first saw him. He then said that he saw Martysewicz lying on the bed on Sunday night prior to the Monday noon the body was found, and that Draniewicz and Miss Bodner told him that the man was dead. The next morning he went around to the trunk store on First Avenue with Miss Bodner and Draniewicz and bought the trunk.

He admitted that he was one of the men who took the trunk to the Pitt Street address and said at first that he did not know what was in it. He said his curiosity was excited when the trunk was dumped on the sidewalk, because he knew that Draniewicz had nothing so heavy in his house as the trunk's contents. Later he admitted that he had seen the body tied up and put in the trunk before he went out with the push-cart and told how he had waited on the sidewalk puffing a cigar to allow the push-cart shover to get away before he called the little boy from the corner candy stand to watch the trunk.

May Have Been Put in Alive.

The theory that Martysewicz was drugged would account for the fact that the first autopsy suggested that Martysewicz might have been alive when put in the trunk and died either of suffocation or of having his neck broken when the lid of the trunk was slammed down. It would also account for the fact that Muravlof might have believed Martysewicz dead. Physicians said yesterday that persons under the influence of a heavy dose of chloral have been apparently dead, so far as a layman could determine without the use of a stethoscope and other scientific tests for the existence of life, for thirty to forty-eight hours. Hence, the assassins of Martysewicz might well have believed him dead when they put him in the trunk.

Dr. Edgar T. Ray, the Coroner's physician on the Martysewicz case, said yesterday that no final report on the contents of the dead man's stomach would be available until to-morrow. Inspector Faurot said that the use of "knock-out drops" to rob newly returned laborers from up-State contract camps was very common. He cited one case in which members of the gang killed one of their number by using him to test the efficacy of their mixture. The callousness of Muravlof was indicated when he told the police, without any sign of feeling, that he and the other inmates of the Draniewicz flat had slept there on Sunday night without being disturbed by the fact that they believed Martysewicz to be lying dead on a couch near by.

According to the story told by Mrs. Goldman of 242 First Avenue, she sold the trunk for $3.50 and gave the purchasers an extra key. She gave a description of the parties to whom she sold the trunk which was of great help to the police in forcing admissions from Muravlof.

The police also traced the pushcart in which the trunk containing the body was moved. It was not, as first believed, one supplied from the pushcart livery of Joseph Steir at 57 Sheriff Street, but was furnished by the Musckow pushcart stable at 514 East Eleventh Street, a few doors from the Draniewicz flat.

Acting Capt. Cooper brought the Feinstein boy, who had watched the trunk, to the Clinton Street Station, and confronted him with Muravlof. The boy failed to recognize him, and Muravlof spoke up:

"He doesn't recognize me because I have shaved off my mustache."

Muravlof repeated his admissions before Coroner Timothy Healy yesterday, who held him without bail on the charge of homicide, and sent him to the Tombs for forty-eight hours to await further action by the police. Up to a late hour Draniewicz and a third man who helped in disposing of the body had not been placed under arrest.

Afer the body was disposed of and the pushcart returned, the three men returned to the flat and ate their midday luncheon, according to the story told by Muravlof.

HAWTHORNE BOOKS SOLD.

Three books formerly owned by Nathaniel Hawthorne were among the valuable and interesting items in a three days' sale begun yesterday by Auctioneer R. E. Sherwood in the George H. Richmond Company's auction room, 19 East Forty-fifth Street. "The Annual Register," London, 1770, with Hawthorne's autograph signature in two places, brought $25; "Collectanea Graeca Minora," 1819, with Hawthorne's autograph signature in three places, his woodcut stamp and "Mon Droit" in his handwriting, went for $31.50, and Adam Hodgson's "Remarks During a Journey through North America," New York, 1823, with Hawthorne's signature and the book plate of his uncle, Richard Manning, sold for $27.50.

A three-page quarto letter from Eugene Field to E. C. Stedman, Chicago, Aug. 15, 1887, was bought by P. F. Madigan for $35. George D. Smith paid $100 for the same author's "Ye Crewell Sassinger Mill," three stanzas, written on vellum, with illuminated initials.

The Hebrew text of Joshua, Judges, Samuel I. and II., with Commentary, also in Hebrew, of Don Isack Abranenel, printed on vellum, a folio dated 1521, went to Mr. Lamport for $62. Prof. Morris Jastrow says that it is the first Hebrew volume he ever saw printed on vellum. Abranenel was Minister to Spain. His commentary was written in 1484, when he was residing in that country.

A document signed by President Lincoln and dated Washington, Nov. 5, 1862, was knocked down to F. W. Morris for $17.50. A document by William Penn, "thirtieth day of the third month, 1691," constituting the "Body Politique" of Germantown, Penn., brought $42.50. The autograph petition of Lord Stirling, Trenton, Jan. 2, 1781, to the New Jersey Legislature for a pension for his services as General in the American Revolution, went for $9. Mr. Madigan paid $15.50 for a letter of Voltaire, June 28, 1761, signed "V." Manuscript notes by John G. Whittier upon his poem, "The King's Missive," brought $18. Dr. Joseph Martini gave $31 for "Le Livre d'Heures de la Reine Anne de Britagne," folio, Paris, 1840, illuminated in gold and colors and in binding by Riviere. James F. Drake obtained for $26 a third edition of Lord Byron's "English Bards and Scotch Reviewers," London, 1810. The original transcript of the writings of Robert Dinsmoor, "The Rustic Bard," sold for $25. The manuscript of William Godwin's "St. Leon: A Tale of the Sixteenth Century," brought $22.

The sale will be continued this afternoon.

Receiver Appointed for Cloak and Shoe Houses.

Judge Mayer in the United States District Court appointed William Blau receiver yesterday for Frazin & Oppenheim, shoe dealers, at 340 Sixth Avenue, under bond of $130,000; and at the same time appointed Alexander T. Mason receiver under bond of $20,000 for the A. Morton Oppenheim Company, dealers in cloaks, suits, and shoes at 358 Sixth Avenue. Petitions in bankruptcy were filed by Lesser Brothers, attorneys for these creditors: Against Frazin & Oppenheim—Henry Weiss, $500, Henry Lavers, $250, and M. D. Malbon and Company, $46; against A. Morton Oppenheim—Henry Weiss, $500, M. D. Malbon Company, $400, and the Manufacturers' National Bank of Lynn, Mass.

The petitions allege insolvency and an admission of inability to pay debts. The receivers, were appointed with authority to continue business for twenty days, on application of attorneys for the creditors, who stated that the liabilities of Frazin & Oppenheim are more than $100,000, with assets of $80,000. The firm has also a store in Newark with stock valued at $20,000. The assets of the A. Morton Oppenheim Company were estimated at $40,000, and it was said the rent for December and January, amounting to $5,000, had not been paid.

Frazin & Oppenheim were incorporated in May, 1909, in the interests of creditors of the partnership of Frazin & Oppenheim, with a capital stock of $60,000, which was reduced in November, 1909, to $30,000. Mrs. Louis Frazin was President, Louis Frazin Secretary, and A. Morton Oppenheim Vice President. On February 3, 1909, a petition in bankruptcy was filed against the firm of Frazin & Oppenheim, alleging liabilites of $1,122,430; and efforts to put through a composition failed.

Acknowledgment.

THE NEW YORK TIMES has received $2 from "F. F. G." for Anton Piekert of 540 West Fifty-third Street, who, out of employment, said that he was forced to beg.

REACH AGREEMENT IN VAN NESS WILL CASE

Mrs. Pierce, Mrs. Morse, and Mrs. Parsons to Get $25,000 Each and Counsel Fees.

REMAINDER GOES TO WIDOW

Settlement Papers Submitted to Justice Greenbaum — Fight Over $800,000 Started Two Years Ago.

The contest over the Cornelius H. Van Ness estate that has occupied much of the time of the courts during the last two years came to an end yesterday. Charles Blandy, representing the contestants in the present action before Justice Greenbaum of the Supreme Court, announced that the lawyers had reached a tentative agreement. The papers were handed to the Justice, who may decide this morning whether or not he will sanction the arrangement entered into by the contestants.

The last action was begun by Mrs. Marie B. H. Pierce and Mrs. Harriet B. Morse, nieces of Mr. Van Ness's second wife. They sued for the entire estate, aggregating about $800,000, left to Mr. Van Ness by the second Mrs. Van Ness. They allege that it was bequeathed to him under an agreement that it was to go to the nieces after his death. All that he was to have, according to the plaintiffs, was a life interest in the income. Mr. Van Ness transferred nearly all of his property to his third wife, Mrs. Alice Wood Van Ness, before he died, and in his will he left her all the rest.

Both the plaintiffs, Mrs. Alice Van Ness Parsons, the daughter of Mr. Van Ness by his first wife, and Mrs. Alice Wood Van Ness, were in court when the trial of the case was begun.

The tentative agreement provides that the two plaintiffs shall receive $25,000 each, and their counsel, Wallace MacFarlane, and his two associates shall receive $10,000, with $7,500 for costs and disbursements. Mrs. Parsons is to receive $25,000, and her counsel, Charles Blandy, is to receive $5,000. All the rest of the estate is to go to the young widow, Mrs. Van Ness. Her counsel include United States Senator O'Gorman, George Gordon Battle, and Almuth C. Vandiver. All interested in the case feel certain that Justice Greenbaum will consent to ratify the agreement, although he said that before doing so he would look carefully after the interests of any infants whose welfare might be involved in the settlement.

Mr. Van Ness's first wife was Miss Deborah Bradt, whom he married in 1845. She divorced him in 1867. She is still living at the age of 90 years. In 1875 he married Mrs. Emma Louise Burr Wright, who brought him the money that has caused so much trouble. His third wife was Alice Wood of Port Jervis. Surrogate Fowler, in refusing to probate the will, said of the decedent:

"The crude and careless fashion in which the aged husband transferred (his property) gave signs of senility and incompetence."

Mr. Van Ness reserved nothing for himself, except the income of a trust fund left for the nieces, and he transferred even this to his young wife within a short time after their marriage. This trust fund amounted to $375,000. The attorney who represented Mrs. Van Ness in the earlier stages of her fight for her husband's property got $40,000. This lawyer hailed from Port Jervis and was an old friend of Mrs. Van Ness.

One of the interesting phases of the long litigation was the acceptance, by Judges and lawyers, of the fact that when a young and pretty woman marries an old and broken man she does it for something more material than romance. In opening the case for Mrs. Van Ness Senator O'Gorman said:

"When an old man marries a young girl he expects to provide for her liberally, and when a young girl marries an old man she expects him to provide for her liberally."

The one who comes out best of all in yesterday's settlement is Mrs. Parsons. All that she could have won, no matter how successful the suit was from her viewpoint, was $25,000, which is the sum she will now receive and with all her legal fees settled in the bargain. This sum was left to her in the last will made by Mr. Van Ness, but later he made a codicil which cut her off entirely.

SUES ON GIFT TO BARONESS.

Appleby, an American, Would Recover $20,000 on String of Pearls.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 13.—A string of pearls valued at $30,000, presented to Baroness de Pallandt by a wealthy American, is the subject of an interesting suit soon to be heard in the high courts here. Considerable secrecy has been shown regarding the identity of the American who is the plaintiff, his name being simply stated as Appleby. He brings suit against the Baroness, who is well known in New York and Paris, for the recovery of $20,000 under a guarantee in connection with certain bills of exchange. Appleby, who is at present at Monte Carlo, will not reach London until next week.

Marshall Hall, K. C., appearing for Appleby to-day, asked that the case be heard next week. The defense was that there was an immoral consideration with regard to the giving of the indemnity. The matter started from the purchase of a string of pearls for $30,000, and the vendor of the pearls brought suit against the plaintiff for $30,000, and obtained judgment. The Baroness, however, was still in possession of the pearls. Unless Appleby was in court, said his counsel, they would be unable to deal with the plea of immoral consideration.

Counsel for the Baroness stated that she had been in bad health and that she recently left New York, where she had been ill, and was now ordered by her doctor to Egypt.

Eventually it was ordered that the case be heard next week.

Baroness de Pallandt, who is an American, sued to recover insurance on a $15,000 black pearl brooch, about the size of a dollar, which she lost at or after the Shakespeare ball in the Albert Hall in June, 1911. The Baroness possessed jewelry valued at $125,000, which she insured for a year, paying a premium at the rate of a guinea per cent. The insurance company, according to her attorney, had threatened to put her on the stand to make a full statement about her life.

LEEDS WINS ITS FIGHT.

Striking Municipal Workers Accept the Council's Terms.

LEEDS, Jan. 13.—The citizens of Leeds who have been acting as amateur lamplighters, gas and electric workers, street car drivers and conductors, and street sweepers since Dec. 23 have won their fight against the striking municipal workers, who to-day agreed to accept unreservedly the terms offered by the Municipal Council.

The men had demanded increased wages, but when prominent professional and business men, including doctors, lawyers, and clergymen, took up the various municipal duties in relays and expressed their determination to continue the work, the men gave in and said they would return to work at their former wages if the Council would reinstate all the strikers.

This the Council refused to do, and the men finally yielded to-day, when the Council agreed to give work immediately to about half their number and to take the rest of them back when opportunity offered.

FRENCH TAX ON CAPITAL.

Anxiously Awaited Measure Is Laid Before the Chamber.

PARIS, Jan. 13.—The Cabinet's project to meet the immense additions to the military expenses of the country by an annual tax upon capital was laid before the Chamber of Deputies when it reassembled to-day. It has been anxiously awaited by the propertied classes of France.

Joseph Caillaux, Minister of Finance, the author of the measure, estimates that it will produce $38,000,000 in the first year, and more in the years following.

The new tax begins with fortunes amounting to $6,000. After deducting $1,000 for each child, an assessment of 12 cents is to be made on each $200. The assessment then rises gradually up to 50 cents per $200 upon fortunes of over $2,000,000. This tax is to be supplemented by an income tax.

The Government in drafting the bill kept two considerations in view—not to drive capital from the country, and yet to add considerably to the Government's revenue.

Paul Deschanel was re-elected Speaker of the Chamber of Deputies, and the Abbé Lemire one of the Deputy Speakers.

Frost-Bitten Firemen Win Battle to Save Notre Dame Cathedral.

MONTREAL, Jan. 13.—Fire in the business centre of Montreal this afternoon caused damage estimated at $500,000. The four-story warehouse of Frotheringham & Workman, hardware wholesalers, was wrecked completely. Adjoining buildings caught, and for a time the historic Notre Dame Cathedral was threatened. The flames reached a building adjacent to the cathedral, but were checked.

Battling in a temperature 25 degrees below zero, the firemen were not only hampered by the bitter cold, but by the fact that half a dozen other fires occurred almost simultaneously. At one time only seven pieces of apparatus were left with which to combat the central fire. Nearly every fireman suffered frost bites, and so serious were the injuries and the effects of the frost that offices near by were turned into a temporary hospital.

From the hardware house 150 employes managed to get out in safety.

JEROME ASKS FOR DELAY.

So Hearing on Thaw's Admission to Bail Will Be Postponed.

Special to The New York Times.

CONCORD, N. H., Jan. 13.—William Travers Jerome notified the clerk of the United States Court this afternoon that he would like to have the hearing on the question of the admittance of Harry K. Thaw to bail postponed until after the middle of next week. The hearing will probably be held on Jan. 23 and Mr. Jerome will be present, according to a statement which he made to his local assistant, Bernard Jacobs, over the long-distance telephone this morning.

Judge Aldrich will receive the petition of Thaw's counsel for a delay on the filing of their brief in the main habeas corpus proceedings to-morrow and will immediately reply.

M'CREERY WINS SUIT IN ENGLAND

Allegations That Fraudulent Attempts Were Made to Keep Him in America.

EVEN CHARGED WITH THEFT

Frisco Lawyer Agrees to a Judgment for Millionaire for Whom He Was Appointed Guardian.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Jan. 13.—Walter McCreery to-day won an action in the series that he is bringing before the High Courts to establish his sanity and his right to certain big estates in England and America. Proceedings have already been instituted in America for the revocation of the Californian court's order, with a view to the restoration of his estate in that State.

To-day's proceedings came before Mr. Justice Joyce in the Chancery Court in the form of a motion to restrain H. H. McPike, a San Francisco lawyer who was appointed McCreery's guardian, from parting with certain furniture taken from McCreery's residence, Bilton Park, near Rugby.

McCreery's counsel said his client's father, A. B. McCreery, emigrated to America from Ireland when young and amassed a huge fortune there, but never became a citizen of the United States. Walter McCreery was born in Switzerland, and was therefore a British subject.

Mr. McPike, said counsel, was appointed the plaintiff's guardian in San Francisco, and certain events led to McCreery being put in a sanitarium in California. He escaped, notwithstanding efforts to detain him by warrants and charges, which, said counsel, were unfounded. One warrant charged him with stealing a horse, a purely imaginary offense, and was issued for the purpose of getting him detained at an American port.

Counsel for McPike interrupted that this was not true.

McCreery's counsel continued that McCreery came to England and found his Rugby house cleared of furniture. McPike first heard of these proceedings in December, when in Chicago. Since then McPike had been in London, and, counsel understood, he was prepared to make a satisfactory ending of the matter in dispute.

McPike's counsel stated that an attorney was appointed by a competent court in California to be a guardian of the person and estate of McCreery. According to the evidence, McCreery was a citizen of the United States and domiciled there. His family belonged to America, and had always resided there. McPike had nothing to do with the earlier proceedings, and had only endeavored to protect McCreery and his property, subject to the direction of the Californian courts.

As far as Bilton Park was concerned, counsel said, McPike never had any intention to make away with it.

Counsel for McCreery said it had never been sugggested that McPike was dealing with it other than as a guardian.

Continuing, McPike's counsel said that from the evidence filed it appeared that McCreery was competent to manage his affairs. Under these circumstances, the defendant was prepared to hand over the furniture, submit to a judgment, and pay the plaintiff's costs in the action. He would take the risk of getting them awarded to him out of the estates in America by a Californian court.

The Judge said that must be settled in America. He remarked that McCreery's state of mind might have varied, and there was no charge of misconduct against McPike. He then formally gave judgment for McCreery.

President Poincare Sends Messages to President and Mrs. Wilson.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

PARIS, Jan. 13.—Mr. and Mrs. Francis B. Sayre were received at the Elysée this afternoon by President Poincaré. They were introduced by Ambassador Herrick. M. Poincaré gave Mrs. Sayre a message for President Wilson on behalf of himself and Mme. Poincaré, and the French people, and expressed regret that the Sayres were leaving Paris so soon, as he would have liked to give them a dinner at the Elysée.

Mr. Herrick also presented Major Spencer Cosby, the new American Military Attaché.

SEEKS TO PROVE MARRIAGE.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Jan. 13.—In consequence of the publication of incorrect statements regarding the forthcoming suit of the Countess de Gasquet-James against the Duke of Mecklenburg-Schwerin, the Countess's solicitor says the Countess, who is an American, was married in England on June 15, 1911, to Henry Borwin, Duke of Mecklenburg-Schwerin.

The validity of this marriage having been question in certain quarters, the Countess is seeking from the court a declaration of its validity.

WANTS MORE ALIMONY.

Mme. Billault Asks That It Be Increased from $3,600 to $14,400.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

PARIS, Jan. 13.—Mme. Marcel Billault, formerly Miss Edna James, an American, has commenced an action before the Civil Tribunal of the Seine for an increase of alimony.

She says her husband accustomed her to a life of great luxury and that the 18,000 francs ($3,600) allowed her annually is insufficient for her needs. She demands 72,000 francs.

STRUCK AMERICAN WOMAN.

Frenchman Who Assaulted Mrs. Hart of New York Gets One Month.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

PARIS, Jan. 13.—Mrs. Margaret Hart, an American artist, to-day obtained an award of 1,000f. ($200) damages against a commercial traveler named Menard, who was also sentenced to a month's imprisonment.

Menard, after accosting Mrs. Hart in the street, struck her in the face with a stick. A scar on her nose still remains.

The assault occurred last August. Mrs. Hart was returning to her studio in the Latin Quarter, when she was accosted by Menard, who sought to accompany her. Mrs. Hart at first paid no attention to the man, but when he became insistent she struck him with an umbrella. The man, in a rage, dealt her a heavy blow in the face with his cane.

ARCHDUKE'S SIMPLE LIFE.

Nephew of Heir to Austrian Throne Wheels Baby Carriage Himself.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Wednesday, Jan. 14.—A dispatch to The Daily Mail from Vienna says:

"The children of Archduke Karl Francis Josef, nephew of Archduke Francis Ferdinand, the heir to the Austrian throne, will not complain of the trammels of etiquette, which usually render the lives of the children of the House of Hapsburg miserable. Their only son, Otto, is often taken out by his parents in a motor car, the perambulator being packed at the back of the car. Out in the country, the Archduke and his wife dismiss the car and wheel the perambulator themselves in turn.

"The principal amusement of their children this Autumn has been watching the performances at a picture theatre at the Posendorff Palace."

WILSON TO ENGLISH CITY.

Thanks Carlisle for Good Wishes and Hopes to Revisit There.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 13.—At a meeting of the Carlisle City Council to-day a letter was read from President Wilson, whose mother's family came from Carlisle, acknowledging the presentation of an illuminated address to him from the city on his becoming President.

The President expressed the hope that some day it might be his privilege to visit Carlisle again.

GENERAL LABOR WAR IN SOUTH AFRICA

Trades Federation Orders Strike —Rand Miners Vote to Join It—Martial Law.

MAY SEND NATIVES HOME

Government to Return 200,000 to Their Kraals If Miners Go Out, and This Would Ruin Industry.

CAPE TOWN, Jan. 13.—A general strike throughout South Africa was proclaimed to-night by the Trades Federation, and the Rand miners, by a two-thirds majority, voted to join the movement.

Governmental retaliation was swift. It took the form of the proclamation of martial law.

This was the only step the authorities believed adequate to meet the situation, for the strike of the miners mean, not only the turning loose of the most turbulent spirits in the Rand, but raises the whole question of the position of the native workers.

If the miners actually obey the strike order the Government will imemdiately take steps to send the natives under escort back to their kraals. This means that about 200,000 natives must be marched back by road to their homes at enormous cost. It wil lbe most difficult after the strike to recruit them again.

In brief, such a step would mean disaster for the Rand for many years.

Although official reports from Johannesburg show an improvement in the train service, reports from other districts are less encouraging. In Natal the situation is one of great tension, and it is feared that the loyalty of the trainmen will not stand the strain much longer. An instance of the men's temper is shown by the action of an engine driver, who quit his train on the veldt and left the passengers stranded.

Practically no information is at hand as to conditions in the Orange Free State, but improvement there is no considered probable.

Hindus Aid the Authorities.

From the Government's standpoint, about the only ray of light to-day was the assurance from the Indian leader, Gandhi, that the passive resistence movement by the Indians against their grievances would be dropped during the present trouble.

The Union Government remains firm in its attitude. The Premier, Gen. Louis Botha, is said to have declared that he would 'guarantee that with the end of the present crisis there would not be another workers' strike in South Africa for a generation."

Feeling runs high between the Government's supporters and the strikers, and the chance of mediation is practically hopeless. The Supreme Court has granted an application compelling the Government to show cause why the strikers should remain in prison.

Premier Botha has addressed a circular to the natives advising them to obey implicitly the compound managers and assuring them of the fullest protection. The circular seems to have had an excellent effect.

The strikers are now making strenuous attempts to bring out the running staffs of the Cape Colony railways, but the pickets are not allowed to approach within a hundred yards of the quarters where the railway employes are housed.

All strike meetings to-day were remarkable for the moderate tone of the speakers, who advised the men to proceed with the organization of their own police force and to keep the peace so well that the tremendous display of force by the Government would be made ridiculous.

The Government is already threatening to institute a press censorship as strict as that which prevailed in war time.

Smuts's Warning to Rioters.

JOHANNESBURG, Jan. 13.—Gen. Smuts, the Minister of Defense of the Union of South Africa, in addressing the Committee of Public Safety here this afternoon, said as a warning to the strikers that if the citizens' defense force had to be called into Johannesburg they would not show the same Christian spirit as the imperial troops displayed when they refrained from firing after they had been attacked by mobs at the time of the labor disturbances last July. The burghers, he said, would not tolerate an attack without using their rifles in retaliation.

A mobile column composed of 200 war veterans has been concentrated here in readiness to proceed at any moment to the danger spots along the railroad and on the Rand, and the military preparations everywhere are practically on a war scale.

PRETORIA, Jan. 13.—Desperate efforts are being made by the authorities to repatriate as many as possible of the negro laborers at the mines before the expected clash occurs between the authorities and the workers. The natives are now prohibited from leaving their inclosure after dark.

The situation has become so tense here that members of the South African Cabinet are accompanied wherever they go by armed escorts of burghers.

More than 100,000 of the citizens' defense force are under arms, and more are swarming to the colors in response to the orders of the Government. In Pretoria and along the reefs of the Rand strong detachments are posted in stategic position in order to cope with eventualities.

LADYBRAND, South Africa, Jan. 13.—A train full of passengers was deserted to-day on the open veldt by the train crew, the members of which struck some time after the train left Durban at midnight.

The train, besides passengers, was carrying a heavy mail. It was taken to Allendale Siding, where the engineer uncoupled the locomotive and returned to his home, leaving hundreds of persons many miles from the nearest town.

NEW TUBERCULOSIS CURE.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 13.—What may lead to a remarkable advance in the operative treatment of certain forms of tuberculosis is said to have been achieved at Guy's Hospital. Briefly, the operation of the removal of the lower intestine has been applied to cases of tuberculosis, and the results are said to be in every way satisfactory.

The principle of the treatment is the removal of the cause of the disease. Recent researches of Metchnikoff and others have led doctors to suppose that many conditions of chronic ill-health, such as nervous debility, rheumatism, and other disorders, are due to poisoning set up by unhealthy conditions in the large intestine, and it has even been suggested that the lowering of the vitality resulting from such poisoning is favorable to the development of cancer and tuberculosis.

At Guy's Hospital Sir William Arbuthnot Lane decided on the heroic plan of removing the diseased organ. A child who appeared in the final stage of what was believed to be an incurable form of tubercular joint disease, was operated on. The lower intestine, with the exception of nine inches, was removed, and the portion left was joined to the smaller intestine.

The result was astonishing. In a week's time the internal organs resumed all their normal functions, and in a few weeks the patient was apparently in perfect health.

METCALFE WILL STICK.

Has No Intention of Running for Governor of Nebraska, He Says.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PANAMA, Jan. 13.—Richard L. Metcalfe, head of the Department of Canal Administration, when seen to-night by THE TIMES correspondent said:

"There is absolutely no truth in the report that I am planning to return to the United States to enter the race for the Governorship of Nebraska. I shall remain here until all the work that brought me here is finished."

George W. Perkins and wife of New York arrived to-day, and will be the guests of Col. Goethals. Mr. Perkins said his visit was one of pleasure only and that he would return to the United States on Thursday.

Commissioners for the San Francisco Fair, who have been touring Latin America arranging for exhibits, returned here to-day. They reported success among all the Governments of South and Central America.

DENIES TEUTON SUPERIORITY

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Jan. 13.—"It takes ten Germans to do the work of two Englishmen," said Prof. G. E. Armstrong, commenting upon the alleged superiority of Germans in research work at the Public School Science Masters' Conference at South Kensington. He added:

"It is perfectly obvious that we in England stand on a level with, if not higher, than the Germans. A German can get only one pot to boil at a time. We have only to consider the mediaeval conditions which exist in Alsace to realize that Germany is not a country where originality and individuality have developed."

Geographers Aid Shackleton.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 13.—The Royal Geographical Society to-night voted $5,000 toward the Shackleton expedition to the antarctic region.

Mme. Nordica Better.

THURSDAY ISLAND, Jan. 13.—An improvement has been noticed since yesterday in the condition of Mme. Lillian Nordica, the singer, who has been seriously ill for several days with pneumonia, brought about by shock and excitement at the time of the grounding of the steamship Tasman in the Gulf of Papua at the end of December.

OUR ENVOYS UPSET SEA SAFETY PLANS

Object to the Proposed Convention Because of the Arbitration Clause.

SAY COURTS MUST DECIDE

Also Reject a Suggestion by Lord Mersey That Disputes Under the Treaty Be Sent to The Hague.

LONDON, Jan. 13.—The International Conference on Safety of Life at Sea, which has been holding its sessions here since November, is in danger of splitting on the same rock that wrecked the first international commission, called in 1899 to settle the complications arising from the Alaskan boundary question.

In the boundary case the American, Canadian, and English Commissioners foundered on the question of arbitration, and the same disturbing element menaces the fate of the present commission.

With the Panama tolls question in her mind, Great Britain has demanded that all disputes under the proposed convention and all violations of the shipping laws shall be arbitrated between the parties in dispute.

United States Senator J. Hamilton Lewis of Illinois and Prof. A. B. Alexander of Washington, D. C., on behalf of the American delegation, unqualifiedly opposed the proposal, on the ground that it was contrary to the policy of the United States to allow any foreign nation to arbitrate the right of the courts of America to enforce the laws of that nation or of its States.

Lord Mersey, the presiding officer, then proposed that all disputes be sent to the International Court of Arbitration at The Hague, but this also was opposed by the Americans because of the distance of The Hague from the United States and the delay in reaching a settlement.

The French and German representatives also opposed this plan on the ground that "America always wins her contests at that tribunal through the desire of the other nations to preserve peace and harmony with her."

The French and Belgian committeemen suggest a conciliation board, reserving America the right to resort to the courts if the results of the board appear to be purposely or violently wrong.

This middle ground for a compromise is now under debate, but progress is practically barred by the American opposition to the arbitration feature and by the insistence of the United States delegates that any violation of the convention or treaty must be treated by the American courts as a violation of American law and punished accordingly.

ORLEANS SUIT AVOIDED.

Duke and Duchess to Submit Separation Questions to Arbitrators.

BRUSSELS, Jan. 13.—The Duke and Duchess of Orléans, desiring to avoid scandal and the cost of the proceedings, agreed to-day to withdraw from the courts the suit started by the Duchess for separation, alimony, and the restitution of large sums she had advanced to her husband. They agreed also to submit to arbitrators the questions of the property and of the amount the Duke should allow his wife after separation.

The bringing of the suit by the Duchess aroused great interest in Europe, where the Duke is recognized as the Pretender to the French throne, while the Duchess, to whom he was married in 1896, was formerly the Archduchess Marie Dorothea Amelia of Austria.

ALMOST AS OLD AS THE NATION

"A WAR-THIRSTY SOLDIERY."

Socialist's Description of Army in Debate on Zabern Affair.

STRASSBURG, Jan. 13.—The Government was interpellated on the Zabern affair in the Chamber to-day by representatives of all parties.

In replying, the Secretary of State, Baron Zorn von Bulach, studiously avoided criticising the military authorities. He denied that the trouble between the townspeople and the soldiers was due to any general hostility to the army. The excitement began, he said, with "the thoughtless words of a young officer who was hardly aware of their effect when publicly known." He suggested that transferring Lieut. Baron von Förstner, or sending him on furlough, would have allayed the excitement.

Baron Zorn von Bulach abstained from criticising Col. von Reuter, commander of the Ninety-ninth Infantry, stationed at the time of the trouble at Zabern. "The army," he said, in conclusion, "is the foundation stone on which rest the power and greatness of the Fatherland."

Deputy Knoepffer said that the recent trial had turned topsy-turvy all notions of law and justice. The Government, he declared, was unable to cope with the powerful military power.

Deputy Imbs (Socialist) said: "The result of the Zabern affair means the triumph of a war-thirsty soldiery." He sharply criticised the Crown Prince's telegram to Col. von Reuter.

MUNICH, Jan. 13.—Intervention by the military authorities without a requisition by the civil authorities would not be permissible in Bavaria, the War Minister, Baron Kress von Kressenstein, declared in the Chamber to-day.

Earle and Miss Herman in Court.

CHRISTIANIA, Jan. 13.—Ferdinand Pinney Earle, the American painter, and Miss Charlotte Herman, who are charged with having kidnapped Earle's eight-year-old son from a school in France, appeared before the court to-day in extradition proceedings. The court decided that there was no legal objection to their extradition. On confirmation of this decision by the Department of Justice steps will be taken to have Earle and Miss Herman returned to France.

Two Kinds of Gloves

There are two kinds of gloves: the good ones, that you can wear out; and the cheap ones, that you're ashamed to wear out. CROSS Gloves are low-priced—not cheap. They age respectably; they do not become shabby; they do not rip. You wear them in peace—not in pieces.

CROSS Gloves clothe the hand with the fashionable fulness of a well-cut garment; loose enough to afford freedom of movement; snug enough to be shapely.

But above all the tariff has reduced them in price—from $1.15 up.

$6000 Worth of Books of All Kinds to be Sold for Less Than $3000

In the handling of millions of books that are sold every year, some little damage is sure to happen to a few thousand—no more damage than would occur in the hands of the best book-users, and not so much as the average person would damage a book in a week's use—a little rubbing of the cover; a nail mark which may or may not take a magnifying glass to see; a small corner torn from one of the pages; a back injured about the same way that a careless reader would injure it—you see, the damage is almost nothing.

In this sale are represented the publications of the Macmillan Company, Doubleday Page & Company, Dodd Mead & Company, Bobbs-Merrill Company, A. C. Black & Company of London, and other prominent publishers.

Books of every subject are represented, including

Fiction

Medical Books

Fiction—There are easily 2,000 novels in this sale, some of them novels that are in our stock today at regular prices.

Medical Books—It is very rare to find books of this kind on sale in book stores at all. They generally are sold only by subscription. They are standard works on all sorts of medical subjects. These are all at exactly half price. A rare opportunity for medical students to get the books they need at prices they are glad to pay.

Standard Sets—only 40—that's warning enough!

We haven't room to list all the books and we can't list them by subjects because there are so many. You'll have to do some looking, and that is what we are paying you for.

Of some of these books there are only one, some only two, some three, and so on—so the old saying, "First come, first served," has a very particular meaning for you today and while this sale lasts.

A. A. M'LEAN GUILTY; SENTENCE IS STAYED

SEEKS BAGMEN'S CHIEF NOW

District Attorney Has a Secret Conference with McLean—He Is No Informer, Friends Say.

Arthur A. McLean, a wealthy liquor dealer and grocer of Newburg, Treasurer of the Democratic State Committee since 1897, a leader in Democratic State politics, and the personal adviser of Charles F. Murphy, pleaded guilty yesterday morning before Justice Davis in the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court to one of two indictments accusing him of accepting campaign contributions from corporations. The plea of McLean's lawyers for clemency was supported by District Attorney Whitman, and McLean was permitted to go free on a suspended sentence.

Although regarded as a great victory for Whitman the McLean incident is not expected to have far reaching effects. A report that McLean now would become Whitman's chief aid in the graft investigation was not taken seriously by men who know McLean. These men said that McLean was in no sense an informer. He had, they said, got out of a difficult situation as best he could.

What Whitman wants more than anything else is to fasten his hold on the man who gave the Tammany bagmen a list of State contractors with instructions to collect specified sums from them. McLean went into conference with Whitman after he left the courtroom, and the rumor was current afterward that Whitman had obtained the information he desired. There was no confirmation of this report. The impression prevailed that McLean would return to his home in Newburg and there try to live down the incident. McLean declined to talk with reporters and referred all questioners to Mr. Whitman.

John B. Stanchfield and Morgan J. O'Brien, the attorneys for McLean, conveyed the impression that they were meeting the District Attorney more than half way in advising their client not to stand trial. It was hinted that they would have fought the case bitterly if it had gone to trial.

The prosecution asserts, however, that Mr. McLean was caught hard and fast. He surrendered, it was learned, after his friends had pleaded in vain with the District Attorney to drop the case.

Whitman Stood Firm.

Among the friends who interceded for McLean, it is said, were Republicans of great influence. They asserted that McLean had not willfully done wrong. In the endeavor to obtain clemency for McLean two Republicans, known by name throughout the nation, it is understood, tried to knock the props from under the graft investigation by dealing directly with Whitman. To all intermediaries, it is understood, Whitman said: "McLean must plead guilty, or I'll convict him."

Stanchfield and O'Brien, it is said, started the negotiations which resulted in the plea of guiltq. Both of these lawyers have dealt many times with Whitman in the last four years. They knew that Whitman was not likely to surrender meekly after he had shown how the Democratic machine obtained money used in its political campaigns. When they learned that Whitman had no intention of halting the investigation they started in to gather letters from well-known men praising McLean's personal character. They presented these to Justice Davis yesterday to support their plea for clemency.

Sentence was suspended upon McLean shortly before noon and half an hour later Everett Fowler of Kingston, one of the bagmen who collected for the Democratic State Committee, appeared before Justice Davis to plead to a superceding indictment accusing him of the extortion of $250 from Seneca P. Hull, a contractor of Cortland, N. Y. He pleaded not guilty through Martin W. Littleton, his lawyer.

There is another indictment against Fowler which accuses him of soliciting the contribution which McLean, in his plea of guilty, acknowledged receiving. Fowler did not know of the action in McLean's case when he pleaded not guilty to the extortion charge. Neither did Littleton. They were in a happy mood as they left the court room.

Fowler and a friend went at once to the bail department and Littleton hurried in another direction. While reporters were talking with Fowler in the bail department a little later Littleton hurried in. He had heard the news about McLean and had come to inform his client.

Littleton was reminded that McLean had pleaded guilty to accepting a $400 check from the Dale Engineering Company a Utica corporation, and that Fowler had pleaded not guilty to the charge of soliciting this contribution from Harold V. Owens, secretary and treasurer of the company. Littleton was asked whether McLean's plea of guilty affected the Fowler case in any way.

"Not in the least," Littleton replied. "We'll fight it. That's all I have to say."

The procedure in the case, it is said, will be this: The superseding indictment on the extortion charge is broad in scope and in the regular course a demurrer will be filed by Littleton. The argument on the demurrer will be heard by Justice Davis. If the demurrer is not sustained Fowler will go to trial before Justice Davis. If it is sustained Mr. Whitman will appeal to the Appellate Division. From that court the fight may be carried to the Court of Appeals.

Littleton's whole fight is on the question of jurisdiction. It is clear that the contest over the points of law involved may take a year or more. It is possible, it was pointed out yesterday, that Whitman might be elected to some other office before the highest court had passed upon the case.

Surprise in McLean's Case.

McLean's appearance in court was a surprise. The case had been placed on the calendar late on Monday afternoon after Stanchfield had had a conference with Whitman. When McLean was called to the bar Stanchfield addressed the court.

Stanchfield explained that there were two misdemeanor indictments against McLean, one charging the acceptance of a campaign contribution of $1,000 from the Shaughnessy Construction Company and the other charging the acceptance of a campaign contribution of $400 from the Dale Engineering Company. McLean, he said, was prepared to change his plea of not guilty to guilty to the second indictment.

Ex-Justice O'Brien they called Justice Davis's attention to the fact that the law forbidding the acceptance of campaign contributions from corporations was placed on the statute books in 1906 to prevent the dissipation of stockholders' money in the interest of any political party.

"I ask your Honor," said O'Brien, "not as an attorney, but as an old personal friend, that a suspended sentence be granted. I believe that the interests of justice would be fully conserved by such action."

Thinks McLean Was Ignorant.

District Attorney Whitman then said:

"From my own investigation I am satisfied that the officers of the corporations who were responsible for contributions set forth in the indictments found against this defendant were not themselves aware that such contributions were in violation of law, and so general has been the custom throughout this State for corporations to contribute and campaign committees to accept such contributions that it is more than possible that this defendant himself was not aware of the gravity of the offense.

"Of course the fundamental purpose of a prosecution of this kind is the destruction of a system which has become more or less firmly established, contrary to law, and to prevent the repetition of the acts complained of, I believe that the purpose is accomplished in the conviction of this defendant."

Whitman then indorsed what had been said about McLean's personal character, and continued:

"These indictments are the first to be found in this State, so far as I am informed, in the effort to secure the enforcement of this statute, and I believe that this conviction will prevent its violation in the future.

"Under all the circumstances within my knowledge, I feel, if your Honor will permit me so to state, that a prison sentence in this case would be unduly harsh, indeed, would amount almost to cruelty. I think this defendant is more or less a victim of a custom, thoroughly bad, but for which he himself is not primarily responsible. There is no evidence whatever that he has profited in any way, directly or indirectly, on account of the official position which he held in the political organization of which he was a member, and I am willing to assume entire responsibility for the recommendation, which, I believe, is thoroughly justified in the premises, that your Honor should grant to this defendant the request that is made on his behalf on the part of those who have known him, many of them during most of his life, that sentence in this case should be suspended."

In reply to the attorneys Justice Davis said:

"I think the excellent work of the District Attorney in carrying on this investigation, which led to these indictments, and the wide publicity which has been given it will in the future secure an orderly observance of this law. Because of the request of the defendant's counsel, which has been so heartily indorsed by the District Attorney, and because of his excellent reputation, as evidenced by the letters which have been written me, I can see no other course of action than in adopting the recommendation as made. Under these circumstances I will grant the request, and sentence is hereby suspended."

On a formal motion by Stanchfield the second indictment against McLean was quashed. It is understood that the first indictment will not be pressed, but that it will stand against McLean pending the outcome of the graft investigation.

TELLS OF PAYING GAFFNEY.

Contractor Testifies Before Grand Jury About $30,000 Transaction.

The special Supreme Court Grand Jury started an investigation yesterday of certain circumstances attending the awarding of another of the big contracts on the Catskill Aqueduct. This is Contract 20, for the construction of the Moodna syphon near Cornwall-on-Hudson. This contract was awarded to Mason, Hanger & Co of Richmond, Ky., the lowest bidders, in June, 1909, on a bid of $3,492,511. In a civil suit brought in September last before Justice Tompkins in Nyack testimony was given that Harry B. Hanger had paid James E. Gaffney, a close friend of Charles F. Murphy, $30,000 for services in obtaining the contract. District Attorney Whitman long has been interested in this case.

According to Hanger, the $30,000 was given to Gaffney in two installments of $15,000 each. The payments were made in cash at Gaffney's office, 1 Madison Avenue. The matter, it is said, was recorded in the books of Mason, Hanger & Co., under the heading of "legal services."

Gaffney, investigation showed, was not a lawyer. It also was shown that he had nothing to do with Contract 20 or with any of the affairs of the Board of Water Supply. The Bradley Construction Company, a firm with many good Tammany friends, was the second lowest bidder for the contract at a bid only $4,500 more than that of Mason, Hanger & Co.

Hanger was the only witness before the Grand Jury yesterday. He will be recalled when the investigation is resumed to-morrow afternoon. It is understood that Hanger told practically the same story which he told in the civic action, but that he went more into detail. It is understood, for instance, that he said that he paid Gaffney the $30,000 a few days after he got the contract and not a few months after. When he testified before Justice Tompkins the impression was given that the $30,000 was paid two months after the contract was awarded.

CANCEROUS FISH IN STATE HATCHERIES

GERM CAUSE OF DISEASE

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 13.—After six years of careful study, Dr. H. H. Gaylord of Buffalo, Director of the State Institute for the Study of Malignant Diseases, has submitted a report to Gov. Glynn in which he sounds a note of warning provoked by the discovery that fish in the hatcheries of the State of New York, in common with the fish in nearly all the other fish cultural stations in this country where species of the salmon family are kept for breeding purposes, are more or less infected with cancerous diseases. The salmon family includes the various varieties of trout, so popular with the sportsman angler.

"How to check the spread of this disease among fish is the most serious and important problem in fish culture," says Dr. Gaylord in his report. "If the artificial propagation of trout is not to be deliberately abandoned, research will have to be instituted immediately to determine how fish culture may be carried on without the propagation of the disease also."

The disease, according to the report, has been transmitted successfully from the malignant growths in fishes to dogs and rats. Dr. Gaylord expresses the opinion that human beings susceptible to cancerous afflictions would acquire goiter were they to drink water coming from hatcheries, all of which undoubtedly contain the infected agent which is the cause of this disease.

Cases in Wild Fish Few.

In wild fish Dr. Gaylord has found specimens infected with cancer in only three instances. One case was in a brook trout which may have been transplanted from a hatchery. Another was in a whitefish from Lake Keuka in this State. Whitefish is never reared or fed artificially. The third case occurred in a land-locked salmon from Lake Sebago, Me. This large lake supplies the water to the City of Portland.

Dr. Gaylord, in the course of his researches, has observed the disease in sixteen specimens of salmon. The mouth and gills of an infected fish are affected first. Eventually the disease attacks muscles, bone, and cartilage. One tumor may embody all the various types of the disease.

Occasionally Dr. Gaylord has found the disease assume the nature of an epidemic. He has found its existence in ponds and troughs in which fish are reared and fed with raw liver and other meat—the ordinary foods of fish culture. In streams the disease has been found in a larger proportion down stream than near its source. Specimens as young as five months have shown signs of the disease, and the malignant growths have increased in number and size with age.

In Dr. Gaylord's experience the disease has never been transmitted directly from contaminated to healthy specimens, and the tumors themselves have never been transplanted successfully from one fish to another, not even by feeding them parts of other fish affected by the disease or human cancers. Brook trout brought from their wild state and transplanted into tanks of cement and fed with raw heart and liver have developed evidences of the disease at the end of the first year and visible growths in the second. Feeding of cooked liver retarded the growth of the disease. Fed with marine fish, mussels, and vegetable substances, trout retained their normal thyroids for eighteen months and then began to develop the disease.

Checked by Iodine and Arsenic.

In the way of remedial measures, Dr. Gaylord has tried a solution of iodine, of arsenic, or of mercury, which, poured into the water where the fish were being reared, checked the disease. Dogs and rats which drank of water in which diseased fish were kept developed the disease within six months.

Dr. Gaylord has reached the conclusion that what is known as gill disease, thyroid tumor, or endemic goiter is a malignant neophlasm, or cancerous growth. The investigation made by Dr. Gaylord has convinced him that the agent causing the disease is a specific germ. No evidence has been produced to indicate the direct transmission from one individual to another. Certain specimens of salmon have an almost complete natural resistance to the disease, and spontaneous recovery occurs in a considerable percentage of specimens, though in a higher proportion, in the earlier stages of the disease. The germ, acting as an agent of the disease, can be destroyed by boiling the water through which it is transmitted.

Though no mention is made of it in the report, it is understood that Dr. Gaylord is much interested in experiments which have been made in Germany to counteract disease of this character in fish bred at culture stations by inoculating them with curative serum. At the office of the Conservation Commission, which body is supposed to exercise supervision of fish culture in its every phase, the alleged German process was denounced as whimsical and impractical.

The report of Dr. Gaylord was accompanied by a number of colored photographs showing the malignant growths in specimens which had come under his observation. Unlike some investigators of this subject, Dr. Gaylord does not believe that the geological formation of the sources from which flows the contaminated water in which the disease occurs has anything to do with its origin.

DIVIDEND WIPES OUT CASH.

Day and Walbridge Resign from Coney Island & Brooklyn Board.

The new Board of Directors of the Coney Island & Brooklyn Railroad, in which a controlling interest is owned by the estate of Anthony N. Brady, voted a 6 per cent. dividend yesterday on the $3,000,000 stock of the company. Under this action $180,000 must be taken from the assets of the railroad and distributed in dividends before the absorption of the company by the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company.

A. N. Brady obtained most of the stock at $75 a share after the property of the railroad had fallen into such disrepair that dividends were no longer being earned. About ten days ago a sale of the stock of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company at $100 a share received the sanction of the Public Service Commission. After the dividend was voted yesterday W. A. Day, President of the Equitable Life Assurance Society, and J. H. Walbridge resigned as Directors. Mr. Walbridge said last night:

"The dividend was not justified by the condition of the railroad. It takes $180,000 to pay it, which practically exhausts the cash resources of the railroad.

"When parties interested in the A. N. Brady estate originally made the proposal to declare the dividend, most of the members of the old board, who had received stock from the Brady interests, resigned. Mr. Day and myself, whose stock had not been acquired through the Brady interests, remained.

"When the new Board of Directors considered the plan of voting the dividend we opposed it, for the reason that the business did not justify it, and that it would take all the railroad's available cash to pay it. When the Directors voted the dividend, in spite of these objections, we resigned."

Mr. Walbridge said he understood that the B. R. T. could not retire from its offer to purchase the stock and that he had been unable to learn whether the B. R. T. could protect itself from the loss of the $180,000 which it is proposed to take out of the railroad in dividends.

The profits of the purchase and sale of the stock, added to the dividend, makes a total gain to the Brady estate in these transactions of a sum in the neighborhood of $750,000.

Sir James Whitney Grows Weaker.

Sir James Whitney, Premier of Ontario, who has been ill in the Hotel Manhattan since early in December, is in a very serious condition. Dr. R. A. Pyne, his private physician, who has traveled with him since he left Ontario, said last night that his patient had taken little nourishment during the day and was weaker.

MORE FIELD GUNS ARMY'S URGENT NEED

None Now Available for Volunteers in Case of War, Gen. Wood Says.

HAS NEW PROMOTION PLAN

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 13.—Major Gen. Leonard Wood emphasizes in his annual report the necessities of public defense which of late have been described in sensational accounts of hearings before the House Committee on Military Affairs.

He urges, as he has done for several years, the creation of a reserve, by enlistment and service, of trained men large enough to bring the army up to statutory strength in case of emergency. In this connection he suggests a reserve of officers by selecting each year 400 young men from the graduating classes of military schools with army officers as instructors to be commissioned provisional Second Lieutenants in the army for periods of one year, subject only to physical examination.

He lays stress on the need for more field guns and ammunition. He also calls for the increase of the army so that there may be three infantry divisions, and he makes an appeal for the principle of elimination in providing promotion throughout the army.

Probably the most important part of the report from the standpoint of the national defense is that urging provision for more field artillery guns. The army is short by 42 per cent. of these armaments that have for years been recognized as indispensable. In case of war it would be impossible to buy such guns, and there would be no time for their manufacture under even the most fortunate combination of circumstances. Experts say there is no field artillery service in any army that surpasses that of the United States gun for gun. The three-inch gun, which is the most effective for the mobile army, with the one standard shell containing two high explosive charges, one in the head of the shell to detonate on impact, and another in the shrapnell chamber to detonate by time fuse, has no equal in any army, it is said. But Gen. Wood points out that if war came there would not be a single field artillery gun to put in the hands of the reserve, if there were one, or the volunteers on whom the United States always depends for the larger army required in war.

Throughout the army the suggestion of elimination will cause more of a stir than any other one subject discussed by the Chief of Staff. Gen. Wood says that there is too much dead material in the line, and there is no way of improving conditions. The "dead one" moves along with the alert and progressive officer, Gen. Wood says, in a sort of lock step, and good and bad get their advancement alike.

He would propose that a board of officers of superior rank select a certain number of officers in the lower grades for promotion on their merits, the rest of the grades taking their promotion by seniority as now. In this way there would be introduced an incentive for earnest and hard work and the entire service, he thinks, would soon show the effect of the new system.

Further, he recommends admitting to the Military Academy, upon physical examination alone, young men of proper character who have passed entrance examinations to schools and colleges whose tests equal requirements at West Point.

The report refers to the Mexican situation only in connection with the border patrol for the enforcement of the neutrality laws and the protection of the people on the border. Gen. Wood says that this work has been performed in an admirable manner, indicating a high degree of discipline. The division assembled at Texas City has been maintained in excellent condition, the camp sanitation reflecting great credit on the medical corps.

The General says that if the infantry regiments abroad are to be maintained at full statutory strength ten additional regiments must be provided. The Philippine scouts, he thinks, should not be included in estimating the strength of the army. Their exclusion would permit the organization of the infantry, field artillery, and engineers necessary to complete three tactical infantry divisions.

To encourage the development of the cavalry arm, now sadly deficient in the militia, legislation authorizing the maintenance of a limited number of horses for the guardsmen is suggested. New York, says Gen. Wood, is the only State which has made progress during the past year toward the completion of a divisional militia organization, and its militia may shortly be expected to complete the plans for passing smoothly into Federal service in case of need. The General favors Federal pay for the militia when it is promptly available for Federal service.

NAMES J. S. WILLIAMS AS CURRENCY HEAD

Wilson's Nomination of McAdoo's Aid Makes Him Member of Federal Reserve Board.

SENATE OPPOSITION WANES

Confirmation Expected After Short Inquiry Into Record—Republican Opponents Not Prejudiced.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—A few hours after his return to Washington to-day President Wilson sent to the Senate the nomination of John Skelton Williams of Virginia, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, in charge of fiscal matters, to be Controller of the Currency and ex officio member of the Organization Committee of the Federal reserve system and member of the Federal Reserve Board. As soon as the nomination was received it was apparent that opposition to Mr. Williams in the Senate, of which ominous rumblings had been audible for several weeks, was rapidly dwindling.

It is now believed that Mr. Williams will be confirmed after a short delay, unless the inquiry into his record, which some Republicans will insist on, should develop unexpected obstacles.

The day the Senate adjourned before the holidays, Chairman Simmons of the Committee on Finance polled the leading Republicans to ascertain if Mr. Williams could be confirmed then were he nominated. He found that a scrutiny of Mr. Williams's record would be insisted on, and the nomination was withheld.

In making the nomination the President knew an inquiry would be made by Senators, but he felt that such action would prove an additional advantage to Mr. Williams. It was understood that Senator Weeks, of Massachusetts, who was particularly insistent on time for a full investigation, had no personal feeling in the matter and would be convinced by a proper showing of the facts.

Mr. Weeks's position has been perfectly consistent. He voted for the currency bill on its final passage, but he advised banks to wait until they knew the personnel of the Federal Reserve Board before applying for membership. It is, therefore, particularly incumbent upon him to scrutinize all nominees to positions on the board. His own bank, the First National of Boston, has so far not applied, but the other big Boston institution, the Shawmut National Bank, was among the first to indicate its intention to join. The First National and the other national banks of Massachusetts are expected to follow the Shawmut's example in a reasonable time.

Around the Senate to-day the talk on the Democratic side was that opposition to Mr. Williams would come from Mr. O'Gorman of New York, Mr. Hitchcock of Nebraska, and Mr. Hughes of the President's own State of New Jersey. Mr. Hughes did oppose the appointment, sharply criticising Mr. Williams, but he is expected to acquiesce in the President's decision now that the nomination is made.

Mr. O'Gorman was not in Washington to-day, so that his position could not be ascertained. But reports of his disaffection are not causing alarm. Since his surrender to the Administration on the Currency bill it is thought that Mr. O'Gorman is in no position to resist the President on anything, and his possible opposition is lightly regarded.

As to Mr. Hitchcock, who fought to the end for amendments to the House Currency bill, many of which he succeeded in incorporating into the measure, he is not at all opposed to Mr. Williams. He feels that the charges against him are too vague to be taken seriously, while his official record is satisfactory to the Senator.

"I have found him an efficient executive officer in the position he now holds," said Mr. Hitchcock. "He was very prompt in handling the demands made upon him from banks in the country, and has displayed good ability."

Mr. Williams's nomination was referred to the Committee on Banking and Currency. Mr. Weeks is a member of that committee, but his insistence on an inquiry is not expected to prevent a favorable report for more than a short time.

Mr. Lafollette of Wisconsin criticised Mr. Williams when he was first named Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, but his opposition is not expected to be more harmful now than it was then.

What oppositoin there is to Mr. Williams comes from the fear that he may use his place on the Federal Reserve Board to seek revenge against Wall Street financiers with whom he has had unsuccessful encounters in the past. This animus is supposed to be directed chiefly against Thomas Fortune Ryan, who ousted Mr. Williams some years ago from the control of the Seaboard Air Line Railroad.

Mr. Williams is a Protestant, but the Catholic Cathedral in Richmond, Va., is to-day known humorously as the "John Skelton Williams Cathedral." The explanation is that Mr. Ryan is supposed to have built the cathedral with the money he gained from Mr. Williams in the Seaboard transaction.

Announcement of Mr. Williams's nomination followed a conference between President Wilson and Secretary McAdoo. So far as known, the President has made no other selections for the Federal Reserve Board.

Secretary Houston said to-day he did not plan to resign from the Cabinet to become a member of the board.

An attempt was made in executive session of the Senate to have the nomination referred to the Committee on Finance. Heretofore such a nomination would have been sent to the Finance Committee, but Senator Smoot called attention to the fact that the Banking and Currency Committee was created to deal with all matters pertaining to banking affairs, and Vice President Marshall ruled that the appointment came within the jurisdiction of the new committee.

Senator Owen, the Chairman, said the committee would take up the nomination in the near future.

CHICAGO BANKS TO JOIN.

Philadelphia Institutions Will Also Enter Reserve System.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 13.—Annual meetings and elections were held to-day by the stockholders of practically all the national banks of Chicago. Practically all the banks which had not already taken action definitely decided to join the new Federal reserve system now in process of organization under the Currency act. In some instances the compulsory feature of the law, which lies in the provision regulating the carrying of reserves as reserve agents, forced this action.

Most of the State banks are reserving action until they see how the new system works. One of the large trust companies, the Central Trust of Illinois, has already announced its intention to enter the new system, and its stockholders authorized the Directors to take the necessary legal steps to apply.

Similar action was taken by the Continental and Commercial National and the First National Bank stockholders.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 13.—Many National banks of this city voted at the annual meeting of their stockholders and Directors to-day to enter the Federal reserve bank system. Others signified their intention of taking similar action, while some left the question to the Directors.

At all the banks where the new currency legislation was discussed it was agreed that this city should be selected as one of the regional reserve districts.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Jan. 13.—When Secretary McAdoo of the Treasury and Secretary Houston of Agriculture reach Philadelphia on Thursday to hold hearings on the location of Federal reserve banks, a Cleveland committee will ask that the city have a bank with a capital stock of at least $11,000,000, to carry reserves of banks in the middle Northern States having a combined capital of $180,000,000.

BOSTON, Jan. 13.—A majority of the National banks in the city voted at the annual meeting of their stockholders today to enter the Federal reserve bank system. In some cases action on the question was left to the Directors.

Wants World's Fair in Capital.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—A permanent world's fair in Washington was proposed to-day by Senator Myers of Montana with a request that Congress create a commission to investigate the project, which, he said, had the indorsement of former President Taft, the Governors of twenty-seven States, and 150 commercial bodies.

Asks Aid for Destitute Widow.

A young widow with two children has been maintaining herself and them for the past year by working at home. Her little boy now is ill, work is slack, and she needs assistance to pay living expenses for the next three months. The Widowed Mothers' Fund Association, 192 Bowery, pays rent for the family. Donations are solicited for the additional aid needed. Contributions will be received by Mrs. Henry Zuckerman, 80 Broadway, New York.

WILSON ANTI-TRUST POLICY FRIENDLY

NO SPIRIT OF HOSTILITY

Administration Anxious to Provide Smooth Sailing for New Tariff Law and New Currency System.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—With the return of President Wilson to Washington to-day, it became apparent that no radical or sensational methods would be employed by the Administration to obtain the enactment of promised anti-trust legislation. The keynote of the President's policy will be that the great business interests of the country are acting in good faith in their assurance of intention to conform to the laws now on the statute books. In this belief the President desires that they shall be met in a conciliatory spirit intended to reduce fears that the contemplated legislation will be based on the theory that they should receive no consideration.

All the intelligence that has been trickling from those close to the Administration recently, to the effect that the President was of the opinion that it would be a mistake for Congress to go after corporations with a big stick, was confirmed and emphasized to-day. The information that came to THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent from responsible persons in a position to have knowledge of the President's views was all along the line that he believed the additional trust legislation to which the Democratic Party was pledged should be enacted only after the most careful consideration and study and that consideration should be shown for the welfare of business.

It was pointed out that banks, railroads, industrial corporations, manufacturers and importers, and practically all classes of business were now adjusting themselves to the conditions produced by the lowering of tariff rates and the establishment of an entirely new monetary system. In these circumstances, the Administration felt, it was said, that additional legislation relating to the conduct of business should be enacted in a spirit of fairness and conservatism with as much regard to what was best for the business welfare of the country as for any other factor that might enter into the situation.

A Message of Optimism.

At a special Cabinet meeting held this morning shortly after the arrival of President Wilson in Washington the President read to his official advisers the draft he had prepared at Pass Christian of the address to be made by him to the two Houses of Congress at an early date, giving his views on supplementary trust legislation and other legislation he had in mind. While the substance of this important communication was not authoritatively disclosed and while there was a disposition to maintain secrecy with regard to its terms until its actual delivery, enough became known of its contents to make it clear that it was intended to bring optimism rather than fear and uncertainty to the great corporations.

The President, members of his Cabinet, and Democratic leaders in Congress are understood to be in accord in the view that the effect upon the business of the country in renewed agitation of the trust question lies in the spirit in which the subject is approached and considered by the President and the Congress. According to the theory which will govern the Executive procedure, a fair and considerate discussion of the trust question in its present phases, with emphasis laid on the regard that should be shown for business interests in enacting laws affecting them, will make business men realize that they are not to be treated as pariahs but be dealt with in a way to calm their fears and not cause them to retard their activities through apprehension that they are to be handled harshly.

With the President assuming that attitude, it is contended, he will furnish a rallying point for a majority of his party in Congress who are understood to be inclined toward a trust programme that will cause the least disturbance in the country and will thus furnish an opportunity for letting the new tariff and the new currency system work out their own salvation without interference. It is held in the Administration circle that should the President not assume a positive stand in this direction or should he indicate that he favored a radical policy in dealing with great combinations of capital and industry, the radical element in Congress would feel encouraged to run amuck on the trust question, with consequent uncertainty throughout the business community and the prospect that the expected good effects of the tariff and currency legislation would be retarded or injured.

No Spirit of Demagoguery.

In these circumstances the President and his advisers in the Cabinet and in Congress feel, it is said, that he should point the way to moderation and bring to his support the reasonable elements in the Senate and House—those who believe that the trust question should be considered merely as a business proposition and not in a spirit of hostility or demagoguery. Those who claim to know something of the contents of the President's forthcoming address insist that it is writen in such a vein and that the extreme radicals who desire to make war on corporations without regard to the consequences will find themselves in a small minority and entirely out of sympathy with the Administration.

The Administration's programme for the rest of the present regular session contemplates the consideration of measures affecting interlocking directorates of banks and interstate corporations; providing that individual officers and Directors of corporations shall be made criminally responsible for violation of the Sherman act and shall be liable to fine and imprisonment; regulation of the issue of railroad and industrial securities and the establishment of a farm credits system. While the President is likely to urge the enactment of such measures, there is reason to believe that officrs of the Administration and leaders in Congress have no fixed intention of completing the entire programme before the legislative session ends. It might be, it was said to-day, that some of the proposed measures covered would be allowed to lie over until the regular session of Congress, which will be begun next December

Some of the President's friends are inclined to believe that, with all the regular annual appropriation bills to be disposed of at the present session, it will be impossible for the Congress to enact the Administration's entire programme These persons predict that the only general legislation that will be enacted at this session will be a farm credits law.

For An Early Adjournment.

Apparently, the President is in sympathy with a strong desire among the Congress leaders, particularly those of the House, that there shall be an early adjournment. Judged by what is being said by prominent Democrats "at both ends of the Avenue," it would be very pleasing to the Administration if Congress could adjourn instanter and give the country a rest from legislation. Behind this desire is the feeling that the tariff law and the new currency system should have full opportunity, without interference, to serve their worth.

The great fear among most Democrats connected with the Government and in Congress is that the radical element on Capitol Hill will stir up agitation against corporations and "big business" that will tend to revive the uncertainty that existed while the tariff and currency bills were pending. Democratic Congressman in most States are anxious to go back to their people at the earliest possible moment, partly because they are tired of the legislative grind, but mainly on account of the knowledge that they may have a hard task ahead of them in defending the Democratic Administration and its measures and their own particular acts as national legislators.

Throughout the Union elections of Members of Congress will take place in the Autumn, and with the prospect of a hot campaign in practically every Congress district Democratic Representatives, and some Democratic Senators, feel that they ought to be at home and at work without delay. Consultation among some of the Democratic leaders has revealed a sentiment that adjournment should be taken not later than June 1. All their efforts will be directed toward bringing the session to an end by that time.

It was the understanding after the adjournment of the Cabinet session today that the President would read his trust message to the assembled houses of Congress next week, probably Monday. In the meantime he will consult Democratic leaders of Senate and House in regard to the details of the measures intended to carry out his recommendations. Representative Clayton of Alabama, Chairman of the Committee on the Judiciary, and Senator Newlands of Nevada, Chairman of the Interstate Commerce Committee, will confer with him to-morrow over the tentative bills prepared by Mr. Clayton along lines suggested by the President. It is expected that before the end of the week the trust measures will be perfcted and will receive the seal of the President's approval.

INDUSTRIAL HEARINGS HERE.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—The Industrial Relations Commission will go to New York to-morrow to hold public hearings Thursday, Friday, and Saturday in the City Hall on the protocol in the garment industry.

The purpose is to study the agreement now in effect and determine its relation to the problems which the commission is charged to investigate. The protocol was signed in September, 1910. At first it applied only to the cloak and suit industries, but later it was extended to cover all garment workers.

"The commission will study the protocol," said Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, a member of the commission, "because it is the most remarkable example of peace in an industry, brought about by collective agreement, that has ever been seen."

HELD FOR BAD CHECK.

Weinstock, Who Posed as Excise Inspector, Traced by Card.

When Charles L. Gonnington, a saloonkeeper, of 1,156 Boston Road, the Bronx, received back from the Union Exchange National Bank a few days ago a check for $50 which he said he had cashed for Emanuel Weinstock, and for which the bank said there were no funds in Weinstock's name, he looked up a card Weinstock had left with him. The card read "E. M. Weinstock, Special Excise Inspector, State of New York." There was on it a telephone number of the New York office of the Excise Commissioner and a telephone number of a house in Freeman Street.

In the latter Detective McGrath yesterday found Weinstock. In Weinstock's possession the detective says he found a badge with the words "State Excise Inspector No. 12," and a second check on the Union Exchange National Bank, made out for $150 and signed "M. M. Weinstock." He discovered also a memorandum book telling of routine visits to many saloons.

In the Morrisania Court Magistrate McQuade held Weinstock in $500 bail for examination to-morrow on a charge of petty larceny. Weinstock said he was a liquor rectifier and lived at 1,335 Interdale Avenue, the Bronx. The Excise Department disclaimed any knowledge of the prisoner.

MEXICO DEFAULTS, BANKERS AGREEING

Will Pay No Interest on Bonds for Six Months, but Use Money for Pacification.

CONFISCATION POLICY NEAR

Huerta Expected to Seize Property of Foes—Washington Sees Signs of Collapse.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 13.—As a result of the deliberations yesterday of the Cabinet, lasting until after midnight, announcement was made to-day that the Government intended to suspend payment of interest on both internal and external debts. The decision affects all bonds, the interest on which is now unpaid or will fall due within the next six months.

Señor Moheno, the Foreign Minister, who gave out the official statement, has been instructed to inform all foreign Governments of the Cabinet's decision.

It is expected that following this action, a decree will be forthcoming soon, providing for the confiscation of the property of rebels which is now in the possession of the Federal Government. This would include considerable Madero real estate, and also the property of many of those who are now supporting Carranza.

It is understood that this step has been contemplated for some time and has been urged by many supporters of Huerta.

Advised by Foreign Bankers.

Distpatch to The Associated Press.

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 13.—In repudiating the interest on all the bonds of the national debt, internal and foreign, President Huerta was advised by a representative of the European bankers.

The official decree appeared late this afternoon in the form of an extra edition of El Diario Official, the medium through which all official acts are made known. It specifies that the suspension of interest payments will be for six months, but bankers here look for an extension of the time limit.

President Huerta states in his decree that this has been done as a part of a general scheme for the pacification of the country, in the belief that it is wiser to use this money for the purchase of arms and ammunition and the payment of troops than for meeting interest on the bonds. The opinion is expressed that the interests of the bondholders will be better protected in the long run by using the money in this manner.

The concerns credited with advising President Huerta to take this step, are the Bank of Paris and the Netherlands, the Credit Lyonnaise, the Comptoir National d'Escompte, and the Société Generale, in France; Morgan, Grenfel & Co., Speyer Brothers and Glyn, Mills, Currie & Co. of London, and the Deutsche Bank, the Dresdner Bank, and the Bank of S. Bleichröder of Germany.

The houses of J. P. Morgan & Co., Kuhn, Loeb & Co., and Speyer Brothers of New York are said to have taken no part in the matter.

Mexico's total bond issue is approximately 500,000,000 pesos ($250,000,000.) One hundred and twenty-five million pesos are interior silver bonds and 375,000,000 are foreign gold bonds. The most recent addition to the debt was a 200,000,000 issue by the present administration, approximately half of which has been floated. The rest of the national debt was placed during the Diaz administration and was guaranteed in 1899 by 62 per cent. of the port revenues. The loan of last year was guaranteed by the remaining 38 per cent. The bonds bear an average interest of 5 per cent.

Under the agreement, made in 1889, the foreign bondholders, with the consent of their Governments, have the right to collect this interest, should the Government of Mexico at any time default in the payment. The January payments have been made, and the next semi-annual payment will not be overdue until after June 30, but under the agreement periodical remittances from the port revenues must be made to the national bank and forwarded immediately by this concern to be applied in advance upon the interest of the debt.

Since the decree operates to stop all such advances, and since there is no other authorized way to obtain this interest money, it is equivalent to proclaiming that on June 30 the nation's obligations will be in arrears.

DIPLOMATS ARE WATCHFUL.

Huerta's Action Thought Sign of Collapse by Department Officials.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—Unofficial figures of Mexico's debts, compiled from data accumulated by the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce of the Department of Commerce, fix the total at $226,404,000 gold at 3 per cent. and 5 per cent., with interest and other annual charges of $13,761,000.

These figures are probably nearly correct, but do not allow for the steady increase of unpaid obligations. While the Federal Government has made desperate efforts for two years to float loans abroad, these efforts have met very little success, and the debt has probably been increased not more than $50,0000,000.

The Huerta Government's intention to default in the payment of interest on bonds has aroused much interest in diplomatic circles here. While State Department officials accepted this action as a natural development in the steady collapse of the Huerta régime, no comment was forthcoming.

The discussion of European diplomats turned to the security which their nationals will have for the huge sums which go to make up the aggregate of the Mexican debt, external and internal. It was pointed out that in the question of Mexican finance the European powers had a keener interest even than the United States.

Mexicans here, conversant with the affairs of the Huerta Government, said the reason for the default was the high exchange rate. They said that while the interest dues amounted to about 7,000,000 pesos, ($3,500,000,) the rate of exchange was so high that to convert that sum into gold to pay the bondholders would require virtually 21,000,000 Mexican pesos.

Gen. Bliss telegraphed to-day that a count of the Federal forces held under guard by Major McNamee's border patrol showed the presence of 3,352 officers and men, 1,062 women, 783 horses, 307 mules, and 354 burros.

FEW BONDS ARE HELD HERE.

English Investors Thought to be the Largest Holders.

None of the local banking houses, with Mexican connections had received direct advices yesterday regarding the decree of the Government, suspending the payment of interest on bonds. The National Railways of Mexico also was without information on the subject.

Consolidated internal 3 per cent. silver bonds, $43,329,250. Coupons payable on June 30 and Dec. 31.

Five per cent. internal redeemable bonds, $96,222,000. Coupons payable April 1 and Oct. 1.

Five per cent. External Consolidated gold loan of 1899, $113,500,000. Coupons payable Jan. 1, April 1, July 1, and Oct. 1.

Four per cent. gold bonds of 1904, $40,000,000. Coupons payable June 1 and Dec. 1.

There are many other direct and indirect loans of comparatively small amounts, for which the Government has stood sponsor, not to mention interest on the bonds of the National Railways of Mexico and affiliated properties, which are under Government control through majority stock interest.

In comparison with England, Germany, and France, local bankers agreed that the holdings of Mexican securities in the United States were relatively small. England is probably the largest holder of these issues.

REFUGEES START FOR MARFA.

First of Mercado's Soldiers Begin March on Way to Fort Bliss.

PRESIDIO, Texas, Jan. 13.—Turning their backs on Mexico, the ragged soldiers and Generals of the Federal Army who were driven from Ojinaga by Villa began their march to-day toward Fort Bliss at El Paso, where they are to be kept indefinitely as wards of the United States Government.

Only part of the refugees started, but the tatterdemalion line of soldiers, women, and children, followed by horses, burros, and dogs, as they straggled over the mountain road in clouds of dust, was a sorry picture. The refugees will be guarded by United States cavalrymen until they reach Marfa, sixty-seven miles from the border. There ten trains of ten coaches each are to carry the Mexicans to El Paso. At the army post something like a village is to spring up until the foreign soldiers and their Generals, who sought asylum in this country, are taken elsewhere or finally returned to Mexico.

The whole body of refugees will be on the march three or four days, and it will probably be next week before they are put on trains for El Paso. Along the route to Marfa four camps, each marking the end of a day's march, are to be provisioned. From Presidio to Marfa there is no railroad, and the passage of the soldiers will be necessarily slow.

VILLA GATHERING HIS ARMY.

Orders Torreon Forces to be Ready for Southward March.

CHIHUAHUA, Mexico, Jan. 13.—Gen. Francisco Villa, now marching overland to Chihuahua from the scene of the rebel victory at Ojinaga, sent word here to-day to have the bulk of the rebel army made ready for a campaign southward. Villa is bringing the field guns and rifles, which the Federal Army abandoned in its flight, and about 5,000 of his own soldiers.

The rebel garrison here and the soldiers, coming with Villa, will make Chihuahua the military basis for the revolutionary movement southward. It is understood that as soon as troop trains can be prepared and the rebel army has had a week or so of rest, most of the forces will move toward Torreon as the first stage of the projected march toward Mexico City.

The small Federal garrison near Torreon, a railroad centre, 525 miles south of the United States border, is likely to offer only feeble resistance. The rebels hold the adjacent towns of Gomez Palacio and Lerdo.

Villa may await here the clearing of the Torreon district and start southward only when he is ready to attack Zacatecas, a rich mining city on the main line of the National Railroad, south of Torreon.

The railroad behind the advancing rebel army will be repaired that supplies may be sent from Juarez to the scene of operations.

SEIZE BRITISH ARSENAL.

Overzealous Mexican Police Rouse Carden to Action.

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 13.—Overzealousness of a policeman resulted in bringing about a controversy between the Huerta Government and that of Great Britain as represented by Sir Lionel Carden, regarding the right of British subjects to maintain an arsenal here for their defense in case of need.

The British, like the Germans and other Europeans, have for weeks been planning the organization of a defense corps to protect themselves should serious disorders arise in the capital. Rifles and ammunition have been stored in one of the residences in the Colonia Juarez. A new consignment was being taken to the building to-day when a patrolman saw the cases. He reported to the department and a squad of police took charge of the building.

Sir Lionel Carden called upon the authorities and demanded an explanation. The police soon afterward were withdrawn and the incident was closed.

FEDERALS SEIZE AMERICANS.

Consul Demands Release of Ranch Manager and His Wife.

LAREDO, Texas, Jan. 13.—Otto Winters, American manager of the San Enrique Ranch, opposite Minera, Texas, and his wife were made prisoners yesterday by a detachment of Mexican Federals, according to advices received here to-day. Consul Garrett has reported the incident to the State Department and has demanded the release of the prisoners.

The Mexicans took possession of the ranch, which was formerly owned by Francisco Madero, but is now the property of Americans.

SEEK TO RELEASE HORSE POISONERS

CALL CONVICTION UNJUST

Horse Owners' Protective Association Asserts Ice Cream Makers Were Accused Falsely.

In an effort to save David Kalhofer and Max Swirskey, owners of the Columbia O. K. Ice Cream Company of 8 Cannon Street, from going to Sing Sing on a conviction charging complicity in the poisoning of nine horses of a competitor, friends of the two convicted men brought every possible influence to bear yesterday in their behalf. Kalhofer and Swirskey will be sentenced to-day before Justice Davis in the Criminal Term of the Supreme Court.

The ice cream dealers were convicted early last month. The section of the Penal Code under which their conviction was obtained is a new one, and has to do with horse poisoning exclusively. They may get from two and a half to five years in Sing Sing. Their convictions were obtained chiefly through the testimony of Samuel Friedman and Thomas O'Brien, who were brought from Auburn Prison to testify. Friedman testified that in October, 1910, Swirskey told him that the Royal Ice Cream Company of 335 Butler Street, Brooklyn, was getting business in the territory of the Columbia Company and other ice cream concerns which were members of the New York and Brooklyn Ice Cream Manufacturers' Board of Trade.

Friedman and O'Brien testified that Swirskey hired them to go to the Royal's stable and give flaxseed pills containing arsenic to the nine horses. They all died. Friedman said that he got $100 for the job. According to the testimony, Kalhofer was present when the arrangements were made, and Swirskey was the go-between.

In addition to more than 600 letters from individuals, Justice Davis has received a petition for clemency containing 1,500 names, many of them well known on the east side. This was circulated by the Horse Owners' Protective Association, of which Kalhofer was at one time President. There are also petitions from the Association of Veterinarians and the Federation of Austrian and Galacian Jews. Among those who have either signed petitions, written letters, or seen Justice Davis personally are Dr. J. L. Magnes, David Belais, President of the Humane Society; Dr. Henry Moskowitz, Civil Service Commissioner, and former Municipal Court Judges Leon Sanders and Gustave Hartman.

When Kalhofer and Swirskey come up for sentence to-day John F. McIntyre will ask for a postponement. He has been retained by the Horse Owners' Protective Association. It was said that no postponement would be granted unless motions giving sufficient reasons were made in court. Even should the motions be on the ground of new evidence, it was considered improbable that sentence would be deferred. The object of the convicted men's friends is to obtain for them a suspended sentence, it is said.

Dr. Moskowitz, whose name was mentioned as being interested in the case, said that he knew nothing of its merits but on the request of many east siders had called the matter to the attention of Judge Davis and turned over to him facts which he had recived from others. Dr. Magnes admitted his interest but said that he was not at liberty to say upon which side he was interested.

David Belais, while he admitted ignorance of the merits of the case as presented in court, said that he knew Kalhofer and Swirskey were members of the Horse Owners' Association, which had been instrumental in the conviction of many horse poisoners, and that there were grounds for believing that the conviction was due to revenge. Former Judge Sanders said that he had written to Justice Davis on behalf of Kalhofer, who, he had been informed, was President of the association that had stopped horse poisoning. These friends, he said, believed that Kalhofer was the victim of a conspiracy.

KOSHER BUTCHERS STRIKE.

Will Go Out To-day to Aid the Poultry Handlers.

In addition to tying up 2,600,000 pounds of kosher chickens, officials of the striking poultry handlers said yesterday that 1,000 kosher beef butchers in this city would start a sympathetic strike to-day by refusing to handle kosher chickens until the poultry workers' strike was settled. Joseph Tylkoff, organizer of the American Federation of Labor, who is in charge of the poultry workers' strike, said last night that 100 strikers had won in nine markets.

The live poultry workers handle sixty-five carloads of poultry each day, with 20,000 pounds of chickens in each car. At this rate, according to the strike leaders, 10,000,000 pounds of chicken meat will be tied up if the strike continues through the week.

REPRIMAND FOR MAJOR RAND

Army Engineer Who Offended Ohio Villagers to be Transferred.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—Major Lewis H. Rand, the engineer officer on duty at Cincinnati in charge of the Ohio River district river and harbor work, is to be reprimanded and relieved from that post because of his use of alleged improper language in a letter to the County Board of Supervisors of Muskingum County, Ohio. Secretary of War Garrison will express his regret to the Supervisors over the occurrence.

In approving a foot bridge across the Muskingum River at the village of Duncan, in Muskingum County, not far from Zanesville, Major Rand said that the bridge would be sufficient except for "people who were too old or too drunk." This observation was resented by the Supervisors as reflecting on their fellow-citizens. They protested to Secretary Garrison, who asked Major Rand if he had any defense to make. The officer admitted that he had used the objectionable language, and sent the Secretary a copy of his letter. He said that he wrote in a general sort of way, meaning that the bridge would answer except for any class of people who would go wrong on any bridge, no matter how good it might be.

Secretary Garrison directed that Major Rand be assigned elsewhere, and will write to the Supervisors of Muskingum County expressing his opinion that no army officer should use thoughtless or offensive language in his dealings with the public or civil officials.

'ROMAN GIRL' SOLD FOR $900

Ludwig Knaus's Painting Brings Highest Price at Silo's Sale.

There was a good attendance at the sale of paintings of European and American artists from the collections of Mrs. Bertha Rohlsen of Hamburg, Germany; C. A. Sterling of Elizabeth, N. J., and the estate of the late Henry P. Smith at Silo's Fifth Avenue Art Galleries last evening. The returns for the 122 pictures of the first half of the collection brought $6,040. The highest price of the evening, $900, was given for a painting by Ludwig Knaus, "Roman Girl," a typical dark-haired Italian maiden, wearing a white blouse and red bodice, a picture 15 by 11¼.

A Western collector paid $300 for "Venice," by Ziem, and the Holland Galleries bought Munier's "The Pet Bird" for $250. Two interesting little pictures, which were in the German collection, catalogued merely as paintings, with no artist's name, were "Heinrich Heine's Grandmother" and "Heinrich Heine's Mother." They brought small prices, going for $5 and $6, respectively.

In the catalogue list for the concluding sale to-night are Knaus's "The Pickpocket," a Dutch market scene; Henry P. Smith's "The Lone Oak," pictures by George Innes, and a decorative panel by Tiepole.

CORRESPONDENTS ELECT.

Newspapermen Choose H. E. Whiting of St. Louis President.

The Correspondents' Club of New York, made up of the correspondents of the leading newspapers throughout the country, held its annual meeting yesterday at 63 Park Row. The meeting resulted in the election of these officers for the ensuing year:

President, H. E. Whiting, St. Louis Globe-Democrat; Vice President, A. M. Kemp, Boston Globe; Treasurer, John F. Flagg, Philadelphia Inquirer; Secretary, George R. Hill, Philadelphia Press. The Executive Committee will consist of the foregoing officers and these additional elected members: Charles H. George, Baltimore American; J. P. Regan, St. Louis Republic; H. W. Cornell, Chicago Inter Ocean.

The club also made arrangements for holding its annual dinner early in February.

CAN'T BAR MYLIUS FOR LIBELING KING

CALLS THE LIBEL BRUTAL

But the Law Cannot Consider the Rank of Those Affected by Damaging Statements.

In a decision interpreting authoritatively for the first time the term "moral turpitude" in the immigration law the Circuit Court of Appeals upheld yesterday the decision of Judge Noyes, admitting to this country Edward F. Mylius, the English writer, who had served a term in a British prison for libeling King George V. of England. The libel consisted in publishing falsely the statement that King George had been married to the daughter of Admiral Sir Michael Culme Seymour before he married Queen Mary.

Mylius arrived here on Sept. 22, 1912, and was detained at Ellis Island. On a writ of habeas corpus he was brought before Judge Noyes, who decided that as a libel might be committed unconsciously and in spite of the best efforts to ascertain the truth, its commission could not be considered as showing "moral turpitude." Since the Special Boards of Inquiry could not be expected to go behind the record to consider the special circumstances of each particular case before them, it was impossible for them to exclude Mylius, however heinous the actual libel he had been guilty of. Judge Coxe yesterday in an opinion, in which Judges Lacombe and Ward concurred, agreed with this reading of the law.

"The question," said Judge Coxe, "narrows itself down to the inquiry, Does the publication of a defamatory libel necessarily involve 'moral turpitude'? We are of the opinion that it does not. We of course do not lose sight of the extreme brutality of the libel involving as it does not only the King, but the Queen, her children, and the daughter of Admiral Seymour. But in construing these laws we should proceed on broad general lines, considering all persons equal before the law. A decision which makes the infamy of the libel dependent upon the rank of the person libeled cannot be defended either in law or ethics. If it would not involve 'moral turpitude' to publish this libel against a field laborer in Devon or a street sweeper in London, it would not involve 'moral turpitude' to publish it regarding the Lord Chancellor or even the King.

"Indirectly, such a libel may involve the crime of 'lese majesté' or treason, but the only crime charged in the indictment is maliciously publishing the defamatory libel as stated.

"The law must be administered upon broad general lines and if a crime in its essence involves 'moral turpitude' a person found guilty of such a crime cannot be excluded because he is shown by the record to be a depraved person. It would be manifestly unjust to construe the statute so as to exclude one person and admit another convicted of criminal libel. Some libels may be considered to involve moral turpitude, but libel in its general classification does not do so.

"As pointed out by Judge Noyes, editors and publishers have often been convicted of publishing criminal libel, who were wholly ignorant of the libel. So, too, corporations have been convicted of crimnal libel, but having no souls, it can hardly be said that their acts involve 'moral turpitude.'"

Assistant District Attorney Boyle, who represented the Government in the cases, says that an appeal will be taken from the Circuit Court of Appeals to the Supreme Court.

BLEASE RAPS FOES; ASKS FREAK LAWS

Calls Daniels "a Very Small Man"—Says Federal Judge and Tillman Are Breaking Law.

WOULD STOP CAFE SMOKING

Special to The New York Times.

COLUMBIA, S. C., Jan. 13.—Gov. Cole L. Blease paid his respects in characteristic language to persons against whom he cherishes animosity and urged some remarkable legislation in his annual message to the General Assembly, which he delivered to-day.

Of William E. Gonzales, formerly editor of The Columbia State, now Minister to Cuba, Gov. Blease said he is now "where he belongs."

Of Judge H. A. M. Smith of the United States District Court at Charleston Mr. Blease said that he was "a violator of the law" and "a little cheap partisan politician." He also asserted that Senator Tillman was "defying the law."

Of Secretary Daniels he said: "Josephus Daniels is a very small man, and is not of the mental calibre to fill the position to which he has been appointed."

The Governor is incensed against Daniels because he said he would not make improvements at the Port Royal naval station unless the sale of "blind tiger" whisky to men at the barracks was stopped. Gov. Blease incorporated in his message what he said to newspaper reporters at the time of Secretary Daniels's utterance:

"So far as I am concerned, I want him (Daniels) distinctly to understand that I am not asking for any of his Yankee money, never have pandered for it, and would not bow to him or any other man to get it, and if the condition of his giving it is for me to beg for it, he can keep it in the United States Treasury—and I believe this is the sentiment of the people of this State—either keep it in the Treasury, or stick it in his ears, as may best suit him."

The Governor attacked the Federal Government for "daily encroaching upon the rights of the States." He mentioned laws, passed by Congress, which he said were an encroachment on State's rights, saying:

"I notice one fixing dates for hunting purposes within the border of our State. This is only an effort to protect a certain set of Northerners, who come down here and buy up large tracts of land, and then prevent our home people from hunting on it. The United States Government, because these people are rich, is attempting in their interest to deprive the people of our State of their God-given liberty and right to hunt and fish for the game and fish which an all-wise Providence has provided free to all mankind.

"One of the greatest and noblest battles ever waged was fought in the sixties for State's rights, and we cherish the memory of those who gave their lives in that great cause. Now are we to sit idly by and see their work undone and the results achieved by them set at naught? It is time we should begin to ask ourselves the question, What are our rights? and to arise in defense of them."

The Governor urges a law to prohibit football playing, and suggests that legislation be passed to stop smoking in restaurants patronized by women. He said:

"Those of you who are as old as I will recall the time in South Carolina when, if a gentleman smoked a pipe or cigar while walking along the street by the side of a lady, he was not regarded as well reared, and such a thing as smoking while riding in a buggy with a young lady would not have been tolerated.

"But to-day we have not only seen these things, but we have gone a great deal further, and too far. I regret exceedingly to know that people in South Carolina (I will not say gentlemen, nor will I say true men) sit in our public dining rooms, restaurants, and cafés and smoke cigars and foul little cigarettes, and whiff and puff and blow the smoke out through their nostrils, and this smoke is carried either by the natural breezes or the current of an electric fan into the eyes, mouths, and nostrils of refined women. It makes me ashamed for my State."

Mr. Blease urges a law to "make it a criminal offense for any person to arrest or cause to be arrested any citizen of this State upon mere suspicion that said citizen is guilty of a crime, without first securing the approval of the Attorney General or the Solicitor of the circuit in which the crime is charged."

The Governor also advised that detectives be required to pay a license fee and to give bonds before receiving a license, that they may be held civilly and criminally liable for false imprisonment, false arrest, or false accusation.

Gov. Blease also favored:

An act to require the editor or manager of a newspaper which publishes a false or erroneous statement to publish a correction "in the same column of the same page and with as large headlines as the original article appeared wherein the person was misquoted or misrepresented."

An act "prohibiting any white woman from teaching in negro schools or from teaching negro children."

An act "which would have the effect of disbanding negro lodges."

The Governor discussed the charges that voters were corrupted when he was elected, and remarks:

"Now, gentlemen, what we want is honest elections. They speak of using money. God knows the present Governor has never had any to use. He practiced law at the Newberry bar, and he is proud to say had an exceptionally fine practice on both sides of the court. He made a good living, and managed to save some money. But not one nickel of it has he ever used to corrupt a voter."

THE KNEISEL QUARTET.

An Interesting Work by d'Indy Revived—Beethoven and Brahms Played

The Kneisel Quartet has seldom presented a programme more satisfactorily combining the elder and the newer spirit in music than it did last evening at its third concert. This programme comprised Vincent d'Indy's quartet in E, Op. 45; the first of Beethoven's Rasoumoffsky quartets in F, Op. 59, and Brahms's quintet in G, Op. 111. It was heard with manifest delight, and the performance was one that deserved to rank with the finest achievements of the organization.

Vincent d'Indy's quartet was first produced here on Dec. 12, 1905, when Mr. d'Indy was visiting this country. The Kneisel Quartet played it then, and it has not since been heard in this city. At the same time his piano quartet was played, in which he took the pianist's part. These two works, especially the latter string quartet, were found difficult, problematical, by many of Mr. Kneisel's audence. It is safe to say that the string quartet presented many finer difficulties to last night's listeners. A good deal of water has flowed under the bridges since then, and when the modern French composers have anything of importance to say their idiom is less of an impediment to its acceptance now than it was then.

In 1905 this quartet was called, in this column, one of the most fascinating and insidiously appealing compositions of Mr. d'Indy that had been heard here. It still seems one of the most fascinating; perhaps its appeal is less insidious and makes its way more frankly. "Cerebral" the work may be in the extraordinary ingenious manner in which the four movements have been developed from a single melodic kernel. But it is unfair to give this music a name with such a connotation, for Mr. d'Indy's remarkable skill in contrivance has gone hand in hand with a truly creative impulse, a finely poetic imagination, an authentic vision of new beauty.

There are passages where the harmony seems harsh and repellant and the development abstract; but there are many pages of a beauty intensely felt and of the realization of a fine and noble ideal. The composer does not follow accepted or conventional patterns anywhere, and the unfamiliar results are sometimes repellant; but in the first movement and the slow movement, he seldom lets fall the impression of a rare and distinguished beauty, and they, as well as much of the other two, have a stimulating and absorbing interest.

The theme of four notes that he puts at the head of his score at the germ of the whole composition has been used before by many composers, from Mozart to Wagner, and probably even earlier. D'Indy's development and elaboration of it, in different forms are different—sometimes extremely complex—rhythms, have produced not only a remarkable organic structure, but also have blossomed into subtle and elusive beauties, and have given a strongly marked and distinctive character to each of the four movements.

One of the features of the music most significantly establishinig his artistic kinship with César Franck in this brilliantly successful use of the "cyclic form" so highly developed by his master. That kinship may still further be traced in the quality of this music, which is of a beauty grave and serious, sometimes austere, sometimes dreamy and tender. But though he obviously derives in this way from Franck, this quartet goes a long way to show d'Indy's independent position as a creative artist. And it is especially significant as showing how small a part he takes in the movement generally associated with the name of Debussy, and how little he has been influenced by it.

This quartet is a work of very great difficulty for the players,, so independent and often so strenuously opposed to each other are the parts of the four instruments; so varied, complicated, and frequently shifting are the rhythms; and, particularly, so difficult are many of its passages in the matter of securing perfect intonation. The performance that brought all these diverse elements together into one consistent and well-balanced, euphonious whole was an altogether remarkable one.

Mr. Kneisel's taste was unerring in putting Beethoven's quartet after d'Indy's. It is one of the master's most consummate chamber works, showing all the qualities of his golden "second period" raised to their highest power. And it was played as the Kneisel Quartet has played it for a generation, with the fullest and ripest understanding. Brahms's quartet has not figured so often on these programmes as some other of his chamber compositions, but it is one of his most deeply glowing and poetical works; of immense vigor in the first movement and some of the spirit of Beethoven in the adagio. Josef Kovarik played the second viola part.

BOXER WILLARD ACQUITTED.

California Jury Sanctions Mills in Case Resulting from Young's Death.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Jan. 13.—Jess Willard, the heavyweight pugilist, on trial charged with prizefighting, was acquitted by a jury to-day, after an all-night deliberation. The charge was the result of the death of John Young after a bout at the Vernon Arena with Willard Aug. 22. Originally eleven others were accused with Willard. The first charge filed was manslaughter. This was changed to violation of the prizefight law, and the charges against the eleven co-defendants were dismissed.

By its verdict the jury sanctions boxing contests such as have been conducted in California since the prizefighting statute was amended, in 1909. Joseph Ford, Deputy District Attorney, who prosecuted Willard, asked a verdict which would prevent all ring contests where the intention to deliver a knockout blow was obvious. After the verdict Ford said there would be no prosecutions for prizefighting in future unless the law were further amended.

Judge Craig, before whom the case was tried, gave it as his opinion that the State law prohibiting prizefighting was not settled by the verdict, which he termed disappointing.

HAVE YOU SEEN BOSTWICK?

His Wife in Her Distraction Makes a Plea for News of Him.

After a search of nearly a week for Charles Byron Bostwick, Secretary and Treasurer of the A. J. Watts Company, manufacturer of dental materials, who disappeared the morning of Jan. 4 from his home, 19 West Thirty-first Street, the Police Department has sent out a circular with his picture and description.

Mrs. Bostwick has again appealed to THE TIMES to help her find her husband. She explained that she believed the Police Department was doing everything in its power to find him, but she found it impossible to remain inactive herself because of the "terrible mental strain and suffering" she has gone through. Mrs. Bostwick is almost positive that her husband is an amnesia victim.

STATE FARM CREDITS URGED BY GOV. GLYNN

'EXCELS THE FEDERAL PLAN'

Lands to be Loaned On Nearer a Parity—Governor to Ask Legislature to Give Life to System.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 13.—Gov. Glynn has called a conference of agricultural experts, to be held in the Executive Chamber to-morrow afternoon, to consider establishing a system of farm credits in this State. Among those expected to attend are George N. Lauman, Professor of Rural Economy at Cornell; E. M. Kemmerer of Princeton, Seth Low of New York, ex-Dean L. H. Bailey of the Agricultural School at Cornell, W. H. Vary, Master of the State Grange; John J. Dillon, editor of The Rural New Yorker, and Calvin J. Huson, State Commissioner of Agriculture.

"We are going to start in this State, if we can," the Governor said, "something like the land banks of Germany and France, from which farmers can get short loans to move crops or to buy farming implements or cattle. All the States are now looking into this subject. Congress has taken up the matter, but has never made much progress. Even if it did, I don't think it would interfere with us.

"This State is an empire in itself. We are as big as some of the nations that have succeeded with this system. The advantage of a State system over a national system would be this: Our land values in this State are nearer a parity than would be the land in this State with, for instance, the land of Arkansas. A Federal system would see loans issued on lands whose values were far apart. The system we want in this State is a sort of mutual co-operative plan, with no money to be made by any one.

"One of the greatest problems confronting New York is that of increasing the amount of cultivated land and establishing a system whereby the products of the farms may be brought economically to the consumers in the cities. Whereas New York in 1900 had 226,720 improved farms, in 1910 it had only 215,597, a decrease of 5 per cent. What is most needed is to get men on New York's farm land.

"The present public indifference to agricultural development has no reason for existence. New York farms have a great consuming population at their very gates. They have the finest system of railway and water transportation in the world at their command. The thing that stands in the way is the fact that agriculture has not the same facilities for financing its operations as have industry and commerce generally.

"While the nation's farms represent the best security in the world, the nation's farmers are unable to obtain the easy and flexible credit which this gilt-edged security warrants. It is difficult for the farmer to raise money quickly and at easy rates of interest on his property. It is hard for him to secure the money necessary to move his crops. Because of the imperfect system of agricultral finance and the lack of co-operation, the farmer receives only 35 cents for every dollar's worth of food he produces.

"New York must put into operation some plan whereby the farmer will be able to obtain money to purchase land on easy terms, to improve it, to harvest his crops, and to get those crops to the market. There is no suggestion of benevolence or State aid in the demand of farmers for credit facilities. They ask only the legal formula by which they can utilize substantial assets as ready forms of credit. Surely New York can trust its farmers to make as good use of a system of agricultural credits as the farmers of Germany, Italy, or Russia."

It is admitted that the working out of details will be a laborious task, but the Governor hopes to have the proposed system outlined and in shape to submit to the State Agricultural Society when it holds its annual meeting in this city Jan. 20 and 21. After the society's indorsement of the system, the Governor will send a message to the Legislature asking for the necessary legislation.

HENDRICK EXPLAINS GIFT.

He Gave a Gold Mesh Bag to Mrs. Greenberg for Her Aid in Campaign.

Supreme Court Justice Peter A. Hendrick, who gave to Mrs. Abraham Greenberg, wife of Assemblyman Greenberg of the Twenty-sixth District, a Tiffany gold mesh bag, which has been mentioned in connection with an estrangement of the Greenbergs, explained yesterday that he had made the gift as a reward to Mrs. Greenberg for her services in his campaign.

Mrs. Greenberg, who is known on the stage as Estelle Richmond, lives at 65 Central Park West, and her estrangement from her husband is said to have been caused in 1907, when she showed him the bag, and said she had found it in the street. Greenberg, it is said, traced its purchaser through Tiffany & Co. It has been reported since that Mrs. Greenberg has served papers on her husband in a suit for separation.

"Although I haven't seen Mrs. Greenberg for several years," said Justice Hendrick in his chambers yesterday, "I have been the friend of both for a long time. I had acted as peacemaker between them before the incident of the gold mesh bag, for that was not their only quarrel, and I had reconciled them several times. Mr. Greenberg did not give his wife as much money as she thought she ought to have for some reason.

"After I was elected leader of the district I gave presents to many women, but I was not any more friendly with Mrs. Greenberg than with many other women in Harlem, who had helped me in my campaign. Mrs. Greenberg met me on the street and reminded me that I had not made her a present as I had promised. 'Well,' I said, 'I'll make you one at once.' We went into Tiffany's and purchased the gold mesh bag. I believe it was an entirely proper gift, and why she should not have been frank with her husband about it and why my name is mentioned now is more than I can imagine."

HOSPITAL CHARITY TESTED.

Saturday and Sunday Association Reforms Method of Granting Aid.

After an investigation of several months, the Hospital Saturday and Sunday Association decided at a meeting at 105 East Twenty-second Street yesterday to reform its methods of aiding certain hospitals. Heretofore it has distributed cash among those hospitals which announced that they would receive charity cases, but there has been no exact determination of the value of each hospital's services to charity.

Hereafter the Distributing Committee will take into account the cost of all free treatments and will allow up to $3 a day for surgical cases, but only 75 cents a day for the care of convalescents and incurables. The association will also strike from the roll of its beneficiaries all hospitals marked "Grade C" upon the records of the State Board of Charity. Such institutions will receive this year only 50 per cent. of their former allowance, and next year will be dropped altogether.

It was also decided that hereafter no hospital shall be admitted to membership unless it has a minimum of thirty-five beds and has given at least 5,000 days of free service a year for three years preceding the date of its admission. Leo Arnstein, Fred Hirschorn, Dr. James A. Miller, and Arnold Wood were elected Directors of the association.

The will of Miss Harriett Allen Butler, who died at her home in Palisade Avenue, Yonkers, on Jan. 4, was filed yesterday with Surrogate William A. Swayer in White Plains. It divides an estate worth $500,000 among her mother, brothers, and sisters and her nephews and nieces. A bequest of $25,000 is left to the Woman's Institute of Yonkers.

To her mother, Mrs. Mary Marshall Butler of Yonkers, the testator gives $20,000 outright and one-seventh of the residuary estate; to her brothers, William Allen Butler, Southampton, Suffolk County, Charles Henry Butler of Yonkers, and Arthur W. Butler of Bedford, one-seventh of the residuary estate each; to her sister, Margaret Butler Paul, Philadelphia, $20,000; to her sister, Miss Ellen Mudge Butler, Yonkers, $17,000, and to her brother Howard Russell Butler, East Hampton, Long Island, her shares in the New York Society Library and one-seventh of the residuary estate.

DEFEND THE COST OF SUBWAY CHANGE

2% ON THAT STREET

While Million of Dollars' Worth of Property Would Be Affected by Loss of Present Service.

One of the chief criticisms which have been passed upon the plans suggested to amend the tentative plans of the Public Service Commission for the arrangement of the stations in Times Square is based upon the expense which they would involve. This shaft has been leveled in particular at the design put forward by George A. Harwood, chief engineer of the New York Central's electric zone, who, with the support of the New York Central Railroad Company, has suggested that the crosstown lines of the Interborough be modified so as to permit of continuous through east and west operation of the trains.

Those who realize, however, that the city is about to lay down for all time the main lines of its rapid transit system, argue that when the extra cost is compared with the taxable value of the property immediately affected, the fallacy of such a contention is evident at a glance. Malcolm R. McAdoo has reckoned that the cost of the modification of the Interborough lines would be only $700,000. Mr. Harwood, speaking before the Forty-second Street Association, was less sanguine, and suggested that $1,500,000 might be the figure, but even if the larger estimate be taken its proportion to the value of the property along Forty-second Street from the Grand Central Station to Eighth Avenue is ridiculously small.

The assessed valuation of the land and improvements along this stretch, without going north or south to include any of the buildings connected by the closest ties of business with this one thoroughfare, is land $53,624,000, land and improvements, $72,241,000. This means that if the Harwood through connection did cost as much as $1,500,000, it would be only about 2 per cent. of the value of the land and improvements from which the city is drawing taxes along this street. But it should be noted that in these figures no account has been taken of the vast Grand Central improvement, which it was estimated would cost the New York Central $180,000,000, and the success of which is directly affected by the maintenance of the through connection between the east and west sides of the city, and nothing is said of the new Biltmore Hotel, which, with its furnishings, is usually reckoned as being worth $10,000,000.

Moreover, if the cost of this change is to be compared with the property it would serve, it would be undoubtedly proper to consider the value of the improvements and the institutions which would be more or less directly injured by any interference with the established lines of travel. It would be absolutely impossible to reach any satisfactory estimate of the money invested in the great new business centre in Fourth Avenue entirely through the construction of the present Subway line, or of the extent to which such centres as the automobile settlement in Broadway would be affected by a diversion of the main stream of travel, or of the influence of prosperity of Morningside and Washington Heights with their apartment house population and their great educational institutions of a break in their communication with the lower east side.

Any figures which would take account of these matters would run into the billions and would be beyond the grasp of the human brain, but it is possible to note the stake in taxable property of a few of the properties whose owners signed the petition to the Public Service Commission asking for a continuation of the Interborough's through crosstown service. Here are the figures:

	Land.	Land and Improvements.
Forty-second St. Bldg..	$1,700,000	$3,275,000
737-745 Sixth Av........	435,000	450,000
Bristol Building	1,700,000	1,850,000
Bryant Park Building..	1,600,000	2,100,000
Hotel Manhattan	1,925,000	3,710,000
Hotel Belmont	1,725,000	4,500,000
Transit Building	525,000	750,000
Millbank Building	1,900,000	2,000,000
Aeolian Hall	950,000	2,000,000
Acker, Merrall & Condit Company	505,000	520,000
C. C. Shayne...........	260,000	310,000
Total................	$13,225,000	$21,475,000

The Forty-second Street merchants claim, moreover, special consideration from the city in the matter of subways on account of their mournful experience of what subway construction may mean. When the present Interborough was built the great thoroughfare was an open ditch. Only the narrowest pathway for vehicles was maintained, and many stores were practically cut off entirely from access. Businesses were ruined and merchants were driven into bankruptcy. Suicides and wrecked fortunes were ascribed to the condition which prevailed, and, although it is certain that the modern methods will insure the Forty-second Street storekeepers against any such experiences in the future, they feel that what they went through in those bitter years has given them an indefeasible title to whatever benefits the Subway then constructed has brought them.

REAL WAR "MOVIES" SHOWN

Fighting in the Balkans on the Screen in 71st Regiment Armory.

Moving pictures of real warfare were exhibited in the Seventy-first Regiment Armory last night. The pictures were, for the most part, taken during the final battles between the Greeks and Bulgars in and about Salonika during the second Balkan war. Some of them showed shrapnel shells bursting in the air and men and horses of retreating artillery batteries falling under the heavy onslaught.

The "movies" proved of great interest to soldiers of the Seventy-first Regiment, who saw them by invitation, as they demonstrated that the moving-picture camera could be both a great spur to a soldier's courage and also an element capable of adding much to the shame of defeat. A film that brought applause from the military men showed a cavalry charge, in which it could plainly be seen that soldiers who came falteringly into the range of the camera dug their spurs in their horses' flanks and rushed forward after finding the camera playing upon them.

James Graham of 126 East Thirty-second Street, as he was watching yesterday afternoon a white slave motion-picture drama at the Bijou Theatre, became suddenly ill and died shortly before the New York Hospital ambulance arrived. He was a coachman long in the employ of the late Gen. Louis Fitzgerald of 33 East Thirty-seventh Street. When he failed to return home his daughter had an alarm sent out for him from Police Headquarters.

Think what the Equitable location means to you

It means that you will enjoy the distinction of a celebrated address and participate in the fame of the biggest commercial building on earth.

But it means far more than this—it means that you will be located in not only the greatest building on earth, but in the safest, the most modern, the most practical, the most ideally situated, in many respects the most economical, and beyond doubt the best appointed structure in existence.

Leases now being made from May 1, 1915. The building, however, is due to be completed 2 or 3 months ahead of that date.

THE RAID OF THE SPOILSMEN.

We venture respectfully and very earnestly to suggest to President Wilson that he will be called on to exert a vigilance in watching the work of Congress to which, with all his care, he has not in the past attained, and in a direction that has not yet claimed as much of his attention as it ought to have had. There is manifest in Congress a determined tendency gradually to break down the merit system and to open the way to restore the old, bad spoils system. Provisions exempting large numbers of employés from the civil service rules were inserted in the Income Tax law, the Federal Reserve act, and the Urgent Deficiency bill. Now, a far more determined and dangerous attack upon the merit system has been made in the Post Office Appropriation bill, and, as usual, in the form of a "rider," a legislative method that is invariably vicious, a method adopted by the spoilsmen who were too prudent or too cowardly to attempt to do their work by a repeal bill. The Post Office Appropriation bill reported by Representative Moon exempts from the provisions of the Civil Service act about 2,400 Assistant Postmasters, all now within the classified list. The Postmaster General is empowered by this "rider" to "revoke the appointment of any Assistant Postmaster and appoint his successor at his discretion without regard to the act, amendments, rules, or regulations aforesaid." This is by far the most shameless and sweeping raid yet made upon the classified service. The object of the "rider" is to get rid of the present tested, competent, and experienced Assistant Postmasters in order that Democratic spoilsmongers may get their henchmen appointed to the places. The sending of this Appropriation bill to the President with such a "rider" will be the most direct possible test of Mr. Wilson's firmness and of his principles.

It happens that there has been a somewhat quiet but very important revolution in political administration within the past thirty years, which Mr. Wilson, while still in private life, did much to promote. The civil service law of 1883 put it in the power of the President to establish impartial, open, competitive tests for appointment to such offices as he should think best to select. Slowly but steadily, by the sheer force of the soundness of the principle, successive Presidents have been led to extend its application until now substantially all the places in the Federal service below those filled with the advice and consent of the Senate are subjected to these tests. With the entrance to the service thus fairly and closely guarded, arbitrary removals for political motives have diminished, and the general rule is security of tenure for competent and faithful officers. It is a tremendous change and wholly a good one.

A large part of the Democrats in Congress wish to reverse this policy, to go back to the miserable method of appointment for political or personal favoritism in order that they may strengthen their own influence and build up their fortunes at the expense of the public service. In pursuance of this wish they have already, by "riders" to the important bills we have mentioned, cut down the power of the President and excepted numerous and important offices from the requirements of the law. Mr. Wilson, for reasons that we do not presume to understand, has given his approval to these measures. He has explained that his belief in the merit system is unshaken and that he means to enforce it. But with the pen that wrote this explanation he affixed his signature to measures that seriously cripple his power to enforce that system. A position thus feeble will be exposed to further attacks, and each attack, if successful, will be more injurious than the last. The spoilsmen would have yielded if stoutly resisted at the outset. Not having been resisted, they will become more bold and determined. Mr. Wilson is definitely threatened with a breakdown of the merit system that would be disastrous to his Administration. It would estrange from him the large body of sound-minded citizens who have trusted him because they believed that he was willing and would be able to secure and advance the essential principle of the system.

Postmaster General Burleson has advocated merit tests for Postmasters themselves. There is a monstrous inconsistency in providing funds for his department by a measure which flouts his announced policy by seeking to tear down where he would build up. The President will have need of all his alertness and all his courage to baffle the spoilsmen in this last undertaking. They are not only enemies of the merit system, they are his enemies, for it would be difficult to do him a worse injury than by putting upon the Administration's and the party's record the blot of such an enactment. There can be no pretense that the public interest is served, that the efficiency of the postal service will be improved by exposing the Assistant Postmasterships to such a foray. The contrary is true, altogether true, for it cannot be doubted that many hundreds of competent men would be replaced by party hacks, men without experience, without competence, in too many cases without character, mere drones upon the payroll, put there in order that the politicians in Congress may pay their private debts out of public funds. Certainly, the President must have influence enough to get this "rider" stricken out of the bill before it is enacted. But if the measure comes to him bearing such a deformity, his duty to veto it will be so clear that no plea in excuse would in any degree palliate his failure to disapprove the bill.

THE CALAMITY IN JAPAN.

While the earlier reports of the tremendous loss of life caused by the eruption of Sakura-jima lack verification, and may be exaggerated, there is no doubt that Japan has been afflicted by a terrible calamity, perhaps one of the most appalling the world has ever known. The Island of Sakura, where the volcano is situated, had a population variously estimated at from 15,000 to 25,000, while the mainland city of Kagoshima, upon which the ashes and molten lava fell, had 60,000. Earthquakes have devastated a large part of the neighboring territory, while the terrific force of the volcanic eruption carried the rain of ashes as far as Nagasaki, ninety miles away.

Relief will be needed by many thousands of survivors, as towns and cities have been ruined and miles of land under cultivation destroyed. We have no doubt that measures for practical relief will quickly be taken here, and that they will be on a scale commensurate with the sympathy Americans have with Japan and her afflicted people.

M'LEAN'S PLEA OF GUILTY.

Admitting that he indorsed a check of a corporation as a contribution to the Democratic State Committee's campaign fund, its Treasurer, Arthur A. McLean, has pleaded guilty to a violation of the law. Mr. McLean did not know that the law prohibiting such contributions was on the statute books—that it had been there since 1906. Doubtless other campaign managers were apprised of its existence by the criminal proceeding against Mr. McLean. On the recommendation of District Attorney Whitman, Supreme Court Justice Davis has suspended sentence in his case.

The law against receiving campaign contributions from corporations was written for a specific purpose. An abuse had grown up of which the people of this State have had sufficient examples in the revelations of wholesale blackmailing of contractors on the State highways and canals. The disclosures of the Sulzer trial, also, have contributed to the public consciousness of the abuse.

In future no committee official of a party can plead for a suspension of sentence because of ignorance of this provision of the State law. They all know that in future campaign funds must be raised without corporate aid.

TOO MUCH MONEY.

In all probability we are now witnessing the last illustration of what the country has struggled under as the effect of a bad currency system. The object lesson is all the more striking because it occurs at the same time as an illustration of what we may expect under the new system, if expectations are realized. Last Saturday the New York banks reported an increase of cash of $28,091,000, and yesterday exports of $2,000,000 gold were reported. The loss of gold is less important than the manner in which we lose it. The money which came into the New York banks is of the sort they are accustomed to burn by the bale when it has done its work in countries which have real banks. For example, the circulation of the Bank of Germany decreased for the same week 290,381,000 marks, and notes to that amount disappeared. We do not know what would happen in Germany if it had to find a use for so much of idle "money." When we are surfeited with it we put it into security speculation, or we export gold, which is something different from burning banknotes.

It will take some time to accustom ourselves to the idea that a banknote is something which we ought to be able to create in unlimited quantities under suitable regulations, when there is work for it to do, and that we may be free to destroy when it has done its work, rather than preserve its life for the sake of enabling it to do harm after it ought to have disappeared. The Bank of Germany destroyed 290,381,000 marks of notes because only shortly before in a single week it had created 551,136,000 marks for the purpose of carrying the country over the year end. Under our system we cannot get currency when we want it, and cannot get rid of it when its usefulness is past. It is true that at the New Year our national bank notes were at their maximum, $757,842,961, but there is in that total a double absurdity. The maximum was reached in a moderate crop year, and at a time of declining trade. Yet the increase for the month was less than a million, and for the year was a small fraction of what Germany is able to supply itself with in a week, and to get rid of as easily and quickly.

We use the domestic currency to force out gold for the use of those who know its utility, while we legislate to give the functions of the banking metal to a debt. The mischief of this uncivilized practice is that it confuses our foreign as well as our domestic trade. We both gain and lose gold contrary to natural deductions from trade relations. We lose gold when we have an apparent right to draw it, and we take it with almost burglarious violence and in quantities which disturb our friends. Happily, the end of such barbarous finance seems in sight, and it will be a happy day if hereafter our banks work as smoothly as those of "abroad." The conditions described, it should be remembered, are the creations of statute, yet are imputed to Wall Street for original sin. It is worth mentioning at a time when whacking Wall Street is an excuse for deforming the new banking system into something less excellent than it might be but for a prejudice against New York created by the operation of law.

HARBOR IMPROVEMENT.

The plan of harbor improvement, for which favorable consideration by the House Committee on Rivers and Harbors was asked yesterday by a delegation including Mayor Mitchel, the Dock Commissioner, and other representative New Yorkers, has been approved by the Army Engineers and was strongly urged upon the attention of Congress last month by Gov. Glynn. The first appropriation asked for is $500,000, and the total cost of the whole scheme will be about $15,000,000. There are no two opinions among New York merchants and others interested in the maintenance of the city's commercial supremacy as to the urgent need of the improvement. The passage of Representative Goulden's bill providing for the first appropriation early in the session is desirable, as with that amount work can be begun on the widening of the East River channel.

The project comprehends a channel 35 feet deep from the Upper Bay to Long Island Sound, with a depth of 30 feet at all the wharves on both sides of the East River as far north as Queensboro Bridge; the widening of the Hell Gate passage and the construction of a channel 300 feet wide and 18 feet deep through the Harlem or Bronx Kills. Shoals and reefs are to be removed in the river, and eventually the ship channel in the Upper Bay is to be greatly widened and improved. No project likely to be brought in this session before this traditionally active Congressional Committee is nearly so important as this. The improvement of New York Harbor is the whole nation's concern.

A NEW MEXICAN CRISIS.

The gravity of the Mexican situation, so far as it concerns the United States, is measurably increased by the announcement that interest will not be paid on the internal and external loans. Gen. Huerta has not adopted the fatal plan of President Juarez of suspending all payments on foreign debts for a specified term. The only announcement is that the January interest will not be paid. This includes the coupons of the consolidated external 5 per cent. loan, amounting to $113,500,000, as well as the consolidated internal 3 per cent. silver bonds, amounting to about $44,000,000. These and most of the other Mexican debts are held largely in the United States, England, Canada, France, and Germany. The failure of Juarez in 1861 to meet foreign obligations led to the invasion of Mexico by the French and the establishment of the empire of Maximilian. There is no Louis Napoleon in Europe now, and the United States has no prodigious war on hand to monopolize the attention of its Government. But the protests by their citizens against the non-payment of interest are not likely to be disregarded by European Governments, though the disposition to rely on the judgment of President Wilson may postpone action.

When the warships of England, France, and Spain arrived at Vera Cruz in 1862, President Juarez was enabled to offer terms of compromise which satisfied the representatives of Spain and England. The French ships remained and the invasion followed. There is no danger of treachery of that sort now, but there is danger of serious complications, and there is little doubt that President Wilson's policy of "diplomatic delay" will be put to a severe test. Like Juarez, Gen. Huerta has no idea of repudiating his nation's debts, but it is obvious that he has no such control over the Mexican people as Juarez seemed to have. Nor is there now in sight a leader fit to take his place or an organized party capable of restoring order in the republic. The tone of the Washington dispatches in the last few days has indicated that the feeling is general in the capital that something is going to happen, though there is no reason to believe that armed intervention will be necessary. The idea is common, however, that the United States Government is responsible for Huerta's financial troubles, that if his Government had been formally recognized at Washington he might have been able to borrow money and maintain a normal rate of exchange in Mexico. Even if he had been "recognized," Huerta's borrowing capacity might not have been large. He has not conducted himself in a way to justify the confidence of the world's financiers.

JOINT INCOME TAX RETURNS.

Necessarily every official document issued in connection with the income tax raises fresh points of contention. The lawyers will not really get in their fine work until the tax returns are due, March 1. At the present time it is the taxpayers who are working overtime on their returns, just as the tax collectors against their wills—the withholders at the source—were similarly industrious when the first collections were made. At the present time there is no point of more general interest than that regarding the incomes and the taxes of husbands and wives. On this point "form 1,040" contributes a new word, about which more will be heard. Under "Instructions" may be found the following:

> When husband and wife live together they shall be allowed jointly a total exemption of only $4,000 on their aggregate income. They may make a joint return, both subscribing thereto, or, if they have separate incomes, they may make separate returns; but in no case shall they jointly claim more than $4,000 exemption on their aggregate income.

The new word is "joint." The law does not use it in connection with the income tax which is to be collected from each taxable individual, nor in connection with the exemption allowed husbands and wives living together. Either of them may claim an exemption of $1,000 in addition to the $3,000 exemption allowed each taxable person, but the $1,000 may not be claimed twice. The law contemplates the possibility that husbands and wives may have separate incomes, but does not provide for the statement of such incomes together or jointly. If either the husband or the wife is to claim the additional $1,000 of exemption it must be deducted from the "aggregate" incomes, which necessarily must be added together to claim the exemption. But the law contains no reference to a "joint" return, and it does specifically provide for separate returns from "each of said persons," that is, each taxable person. A wife cannot be taxable separately unless she has an income of $3,000, and no individual with a smaller income is compelled to make a return. Obviously a husband cannot be compelled to make a return for a wife's separate income. There is no reason for him to do so unless he wishes to claim the $1,000 additional exemption.

It would seem to follow that if the husband or the wife is willing to forego the $1,000 exemption neither can be compelled to return the taxable income of the other. It would seem to be easy for them to adjust their incomes up to $6,000 so that neither need make a return. That would be a better exemption than the claim of the additional $1,000 on a "joint" income of $4,000. The same deduction may be obtained by the husbands and wives separating.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Our Race Doing Quite Well.

Not a few men of some eminence as scientists and educators have attended and spoken at the Conference for Race Betterment held in Battle Creek, but some mysterious influence, local or other, has seemingly caused a surprising number of them to make statements better calculated to startle the unthinking than to impress the judicious. The human race has managed to survive the workings through unnumbered centuries of all the evils which these prophets of destruction have mentioned with such a fine semblance of anxiety for the immediate future. Not only has it survived, but it has made slow but steady progress along just the lines it is now advised to follow, and all the perils of the past are now obviously and measurably decreased.

As usual, the women have come in for most of the scolding, and the severest of it—a fact that may or may not be accounted for by the other fact that a great majority of the speakers have been men. "History tells us," however, that there is nothing new in this, and that no serious harm will come from it, the women having long since learned to endure these scoldings with composure. To be sure, the composure is not quite as smiling now as it used to be, or as meek, and a disposition to talk back is manifested by the sex once inarticulate—in public. A good many of its members are not inarticulate anywhere, nowadays, and the Battle Creek harbingers of impending ruin, due to feminine imperfections and deteriorations, are taking a good many chances.

They will find that it is easy to prove, as well as to say, "You're another!" Of course there isn't any particular use in saying it, but it does relieve the feelings.

Of all the predictions coming from Battle Creek, those relating to the speedy extinction of this or that nation need be the least alarming. Groups and strains that have lost fitness for survival do become extinct—fortunately—but the human race is increasing far faster than it did at any previous period in the world's annals, and those who disappear are no loss. They merely make place for their betters. This is difficult to see, if we happen to belong to the disappearing class, and some refuse to see it. That is why they are constantly exhorting the doomed strains to do what those strains seemingly won't do, but really can't.

A Benefactor Treated as an Enemy.

It is a curious fact, perhaps significant and perhaps disquieting, that the first effect of Mr. Ford's proposed distribution of $10,000,000 in bonuses to his employés is not an expression of joy or gratitude from the beneficiaries of this plan, but the stoning of his factory by disappointed and angry seekers for a share in his largess.

The psychologist who undertook to explain the mental processes which led to the riots will have a somewhat difficult task. Had the thousands who hurried to apply for positions fought among themselves for first opportunity to present their claims or qualifications for the highly desirable employment which Mr. Ford offered, that would have been lamentable, but not mysterious. But the thronging applicants seem promptly to have developed a sort of solidarity—a readiness, if not to co-operate in getting what they all wanted, at least to unite in showing resentment of failure to get it.

Their common desire apparently developed into a feeling that they all had something like a right to the newly created positions, and that the refusal of them was a wrong or grievance worthy of instant and severe punishment. With the creation of this feeling the sufferings which they endured while standing many weary hours in the street, with the temperature close to zero and a cruel wind blowing, may have had not a little to do, but of course those sufferings were only indirectly and remotely caused by Mr. Ford, and only a great crowd, which has methods of ratiocination quite different from those of its individual units, would have turned its irritation against his property.

Be that as it may, the repeated turning of streams of icy water on that shivering multitude will be long remembered by those who were drenched, and not less well, perhaps, by those who narrowly escaped. Some of the hostility thus excited may be turned against the Ford employés, as the objects of an undeserved favoritism or discrimination. The episode illustrates the habit which good intentions and generous impulses have of sometimes working out into unexpected results.

Campaign Funds Opposed.

As Mr. Whitman has just been elected to high office in circumstances that rendered unnecessary or even expedient the spending of much money for campaign expenses either by him or in his behalf, he naturally inclines more than do most men holding or seeking political positions to reprehend the use of campaign funds, no matter how well within existing laws the use may be. He is, of course, sound in declaring that between the buying and the influencing of votes by the expenditure of money the difference is not, in a last analysis, essential.

But differences other than essential do count, sometimes for a good deal, and it certainly marks a great advance that, however it may be as to the collection of campaign funds, their spending has come to be for the most part what is called legitimate. Though probably as many votes as ever are offered for sale, purchasers have retired from the market because they have no trustworthy means of compelling delivery or of knowing that it has been made. The up-to-date corruptionist collects all he can from candidates, partisans, and contractors, and puts as much as he dares in his own pocket. The rest he spends on campaign trimmings and embroideries. These last are harmful chiefly as excusing the collections.

Mr. Whitman advised that all really necessary election expenses be paid by the State, and that all others be forbidden. The experiment has been made in several parts of the West, with results that as yet, at least, have not led to the political millennium or excited any great amount of popular enthusiasm. The plan works well enough, however, and we may come to it in time. Nobody takes parades and red fire and banners very seriously, nowadays, but oratory still has its charm, and it takes money to hire halls. It is true, but useless, to say that arguments are better presented in print. More people will listen than will read, and candidates have to remember that the newspapers will rarely print except for pay a campaign essay which has not first been read or recited before an audience.

HOTEL LIQUOR LICENSES

Should Cost Not Less Than Licenses for Saloons.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have read the article in The Times of Tuesday about the advisability of high licenses for large hotels, recommended by Excise Commissioner Farley. I am quite in accord with this recommendation. Some years ago I stated that hotels should pay licenses in proportion to their size, and that they should be permitted to sell liquor to the traveling public patronizing their establishments twenty-four hours of each day, other than Sundays, and then only in their restaurants, and that their public bars should be closed on Sundays.

I think that saloons should not pay a higher tax than hotels. Hotels possess and assume more privileges than saloons in the sale of liquor. No man in the saloon and liquor business should be penalized. The saloon should never pay a higher license than a hotel. The proposition that the sale of wines and liquors in a hotel is merely incidental is nonsensical. Attempt to deprive any first-class hotel in New York of the privilege of selling wines and spirits and there would be a terrific outcry by the hotelkeepers.

It appears to me that patrons of hotels should be allowed privileges similar to those they enjoy in their own homes and clubs. Hotel proprietors are glad to operate their houses in accordance with the strict letter of the law, more particularly as they cater to parties with families.

Placing a higher tax on saloons would mean the elimination of a great number of them. When the liquor license was increased some years ago to $1,200 a year many men conducting highly respectable places were forced out of business. To place a still higher tax would be framing a law which would not allow a workingman to enjoy himself according to his will.

It is conceded that in New York to-day, in the hotels, barrooms, and in the streets, there are fewer evidences of drinking than during any other period in the history of New York.

A Decrease in Lynchings.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

During the year ended Dec. 31, 1913, there were fifty-one lynchings in the United States. At the same period a year ago sixty-four lynchings had occurred—a decrease of thirteen for the past year. This is the smallest number in any year since these grim records have been kept.

OLD MEN AS CENSORS.

Their Duty to Warn Headstrong Youth of Its Follies.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Many of us at 40 years and beyond, if frank with ourselves in retrospection, will admit the follies of our youth. It is only a short, but often an irretrievable, step between folly and vice—one frequently made and resulting in life's failure. It is to be deplored that one deviation made at a period of ardent heedlessness should prove irreclaimable through the certainty that character is more easily lost than recovered. Such result is, in a measure, attributable to the absence of consistent parental guidance, or evasion or rejection of such by the young on the score of "familiarity breeds contempt." Certain it is that the influence of others toward that which is esteemed present good is stronger than that of parents who have earnest motives in the preservation of decorum in their children in preparation for lives of usefulness. Now, many of us are in close and familiar business contact with the young in the superintendence of their services. Their impulsive conduct furnishes us with a better acquaintance with them than their elders, who, having passed the "slop-over" age, hold themselves in more reserve. In the intercourse with these fledglings, is not the investment of influence worth while?

We have lived through their years and experience and know all the emotions and the extent to which they contribute to folly—perhaps vice. We see that the primary inspiration to both is in "showing" off or pretending to be something or somebody superior to associates. On this account, as each is the butt of the other, neither deceives the other. They surely cannot delude their elders, who alone have favors to confer on such as deserve them. Thus they retard their own advancement. Follies uncorrected become established habits and paths to far worse. Cannot many of us who have traveled the course find occasions for genial remonstrance, dissuasion, ridicule, and prognostication of the inevitable consequences, and by such efforts contribute to their cure, provided we set the example of consistency in our own conduct? The early pruning of the shoots may lead to the fruition of rational manhood.

A TAX ON LUXURY.

How Would Government Ascertain Income Devoted to Display?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I note that Mr. Victor Morawetz suggests that the income tax law recently enacted should be replaced by one which lays a tax on that income only which is used for maintaining unproductive consumers. He mentions servants as being in that class of consumers.

Now it is certain that a tax imposed in accordance with the number of servants kept by an individual would shift extraordinarily from year to year, and could not be levied equitably. It is an unjust measure of income and as impracticable as gauging a man's revenue by the number of dogs he keeps. One employing five servants may have, and often has, an income ten times as large as another who is able to engage a nurse for his child.

How, I ask, is the amount of income expended upon the means of unproductive consumption of labor and capital to be ascertained? Must each taxable keep an "unproductive consumption" account, to which entries must be posted by himself and every member of his family? If Mr. Morawetz will give a few details as to the machinery by which such a tax may be collected, I make no doubt such elaboration will be appreciated by many readers of The Times.

CHILD LABOR PRODUCTS.

Would Federal Law Trench on Police Powers of States?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I note in a recent issue of The Times a report to the effect that Senator Kenyon has introduced into the Senate a bill designed to exclude from interstate transportation goods manufactured by child labor. I believe this is the second attempt that has been made to pass a bill of this nature, Mr. Beveridge having introduced a similar bill some time ago.

There can be no question of the desirability, and indeed social necessity, of such legislation. But I believe the bill as introduced by Senator Kenyon to be unconstitutional.

Our form of government is one that requires the autonomy of the parts, separate and distinct from the authority delegated to the federated whole, which has within its scope subjects purely national and comprehensive in their nature. While the bill as introduced doubtless purports to be a "regulation of interstate commerce," in effect it is an exercise of the "police power" of the United States. An article does not become the subject of interstate commerce until in the process of transportation, and, while in the state of manufacture, it is beyond the scope of Federal legislation. Commerce succeeds to manufacture, and is not a part of it. The line of demarkation between the police power of the State and of the United States should be recognized and observed, for it is essential to the preservation of due autonomy of the States as required by our dual form of government, and acknowledged evils, however grave and urgent they may appear to be, had better be borne than a risk be run, in an effort to suppress them, of more serious consequences by a resort to expedients of even doubtful constitutionality. The regulation of commerce applies to subjects of commerce and not to matters of internal police.

The Profit on Bananas.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

We have heard and read so much about the high cost of living, and that the banana was the poor man's food, that I thought the following item, copied from the United States Government Crop Reporter for February, 1913, might throw some light on the subject:

> The bananas imported into the United States for the year ending June 30, 1912, reached the enormous total of 44,520,539 bunches, valued at $14,368,330, an average of 32.3 cents a bunch, as the market value shown in American Consular invoices certified at the shipping ports.

As nearly as I can find out, the average wholesale selling price of bananas amounts to $1.50 per bunch at the wharf in the United States, which would show an increase of about 500 per cent. over the value per bunch in Jamaica, Central America, &c. It would be rather interesting to know how this increase is accounted for.

Greedy Railroad Porters.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

May I encroach upon your valuable space sufficiently to call attention to the lack of discrimination shown by the porters at railway stations? Always greedy for a tip, they almost lay violent hands upon the bags of likely looking travelers, thereby becoming a positive nuisance instead of a convenience, while the poor woman who is frequently incumbered with children as well as parcels is left to shift for herself. Every person that travels on a railroad is a customer, and as such should receive courteous attention and assistance from the employes.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

If the Municipal Civil Service Commission could be prevailed upon to withdraw its opposition to the transfer of the Board of Water Supply Police to the New York City Police Department, this would be a splendid opportunity to show the people of this city how a handful of the boys from the aqueduct could "clean up" the gangsters and gunmen and put them on the run for good.

No one can vouch for the truth of the above better than our present Police Commissioner, who helped to clean up on the big tube.

MISS SHAW'S TAXES

To the Editor of The New York Times:

No one could follow the interesting discussion carried on through the press within the past few weeks in regard to my attitude in refusing to assist the Government to levy a personal tax upon me without being impressed by the careless manner in which people read into an article their own thoughts rather than those of the writer.

My perfectly calm and absolutely nonresistant statement was that I would not assist the Government of Pennsylvania to impose an unjust tax upon me while it violated the fundamental principle of the National Constitution, which guarantees to every State a republican form of government; which places the source of power in the people, as a whole, and not in any segregated or self-appointed fraction of the people; which forbids any State to create special privileges or the denial of equal rights to any citizen. So long as the State of Pennsylvania, by my disfranchisement and that of all women, repudiates the fundamental law, I believe it is treason against the National Government voluntarily to aid it in thus violating the "supreme law of the land."

There was no word in my statement which could be construed into a refusal to pay any or every tax that is imposed upon me. I have always paid my taxes, but never without protesting against the tyranny and injustice of it. I will do so again; but I refused to aid the Government to impose a personal tax by making out a specific bill of my possessions in order to assist it to impose this tax upon me.

The law upon this subject is perfectly clear, even though unjust. It states that, if the person refuses to fill out the bill, the assessor will do so. In declining I violated no law, but I stated a principle. If there is any militancy involved it is the militancy of the Government, not mine.

I am, and always have been, unalterably opposed to militancy, believing that nothing of permanent value has ever been secured by it which could not have been more easily obtained by peaceful methods. Even if I were not on principle opposed to militancy, as I am, I would be opposed to suffragists resorting to it, on the mere basis of bad policy. I do not believe there is any good to be derived from militancy in the suffrage movement. It is bad tactics, and would do more to retard the movement in this, and I believe in any other country, than any organized force of anti-suffragists possibly could.

I am opposed to all forms of militancy on the part of suffragists and on the part of non-suffragists, who are the only militants we have had in this country, as was manifested in Wall Street, New York; in Tennessee at the recent State Convention, and on March 3 last in Washington.

DUMMY DUELISTS?

Why Not Rig Up Marionettes for Affairs of Honor?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Since nowadays so many things are being done by substitutes, permit me to suggest an idea which comes to me from reading Alexander Konta's letter on dueling. This is, that a dummy duelist be invented, and that each man in those European countries where dueling prevails supply himself with one of these indispensable luxuries. When there is to be a duel the dummies can face each other and fire by machinery, the principals in the case merely pressing the button from their private offices. The dummies can damage each other as much as they like, the losing principal being punished by the larger bill for repairs.

This plan would leave scope for great ingenuity in the manufacture of expert dummy duelists and divert the brain power expended on writing challenges into useful channels of mechanical invention. Amusing features would be presented. One can picture the dignified principal of one of the dummies who, when something goes wrong with the machinery, "would have to get out and have to get under to fix up his little machine."

Or would this scheme populate Europe with Frankenstein monsters even more troublesome than duelists?

NEW YORK PEDESTRIANS

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have been interested in the two letters recently published about turning to the right. The last writer is not correct about the methods in other countries. On the Continent of Europe traffic goes to the right, and England and her dependencies are the only ones where street traffic goes to the left, but even there foot passengers turn to the right.

Since the letters commenced I have been interested in watching the New York people. On the short trip from Thirty-fourth Street to Forty-second Street, on Broadway, last Saturday afternoon I walked on the right curb, only to meet six well-dressed American men face to face and one other who put out his arm to move me from his path and then thought better of it and shamefacedly turned to the right. On upper Broadway on Sunday the people were equally careless.

THE PROPAGANDIST.

"All the world is mold!
Sin is manifold!"
Wanly came the plaint of me, sobbing in the cold.
Answering my dirge,
Came a mighty surge—
Came the wretched, warped, unhallowed—came the earthly scourge.

"Never laugh again,
Hopeless spawn of men!
We are but the loathsome, crawling creatures of a fen!
Stumble through the years
Blinded with your tears—
We alone of all the earth—we alone
are seers!"

Then with eager might
Burst across my sight
All the things of loveliness! All the things of light!
Joyously a-tilt,
I poised and piped my lilt—
Piped till all the world was mellowed where the sweetness spilt!

Answering my song,
Followed on a throng—
Followed on the radiant, the youthful and the strong.
Laden was the breeze,
Underneath the trees—
Laden with the chorus of a multitude of these!

Joyous voices ring!
Joyous bodies swing!
Through the realm of what should be, joyous laughters sing!
"Hail the coming years!
Mankind—dry your tears!
We alone of all the earth—we alone

RARE SCULPTURE IN ART MUSEUM

A Stone Relief of "St. Clara and the Christ Child," by Lombardo, Is Beautiful.

A COLOSSAL SARCOPHAGUS

Weighs 10½ Tons, and Its Ornamentation Is Finely Done—Other Egyptian Antiquities.

One of the important accessions of the Metropolitan Art Museum this month is a piece of fifteenth century sculpture which the Purchasing Committee of the Museum considers itself fortunate to have obtained. This is a stone relief of "St. Clara and the Christ Child," by Pietro Lombardo. It is a somewhat unusual subject, the saint with the Holy Child in her arms, and it is thought that it may have come from the Church of Santa Chiara (St. Clara) in Treviso, where Lombardo is known to have worked. Both figures have halos, but the figure of the woman having the wimple of the nun and the face being somewhat more austere than that of the Virgin as it is usually shown, it is considered to be practically certain that St. Clara, founder of the Order of Poor Clares, is represented.

There is a slight discoloration of the figures which might suggest that it was polychromed, but which was caused by one of its owners having allowed wasps to nest in the sculpture. An old photograph reproduced in a work on Venetian architecture shows the nests. There is an interesting tabernacle frame, in which the sculpture is set with relief decoration, all of stone, tinted in dull blue and gold, not seen in old pictures, and which may not have originally belonged with the work of Lombardo. The shallow niche inside the frame, also tinted blue, is of plaster and modern. It is very beautiful as a whole.

The Museum already has work by this artist, a fine sculpture in low relief, the profile portrait in white marble of a youth, which is shown on one of the screens in the large hall of Wing F. Pietro Lombardo, or Pietro di Martino da Carona, though a Lombard, worked principally at Venice, where his work enjoyed great popularity and had a powerful influence over the development of the plastic arts.

A colossal sarcophagus, a magnificent gift to the Museum by Edward S. Harkness, now in the main hall of the Museum, is one of the accessions of which the Museum and the whole city may be proud. Cairo, with its exceptional collection of Egyptian antiquities, has one of these mammoth and wonderfully carved receptacles for the dead, Vienna another, and New York now has the third. The Museum has already sarcophagi considered representative, but this is more beautiful and infinitely more massive. The sarcophagus and the cover are exhibited separately, each being so large that it is impossible to see or appreciate the workmanship when they are together. The sarcophagus alone weighs ten and one-half tons and the cover three and one-half. The ornamentation is clear-cut and finely done, the interior as well as the exterior being decorated, and age has given the stone a soft tone and polish.

A large collection of Egyptian antiquities has been purchased by the Museum, but the great part of this collection, which is comprehensive, is not yet prepared for exhibition. A small part has been added to Egyptian collections in Rooms 4 and 6 of that department of the Museum.

The January Bulletin of the Museum will show the work of the Museum's Egyptian expedition at Thebes. The chief discoveries of the year have been, first, the great causeway built about 2100 B. C. by Mentuhotep as an approach to his temple at Der el Bahari, and, second, an unfinished temple of the last of the Ramessides in whose days the throne passed into the hands of the priests and Thebes's power as a capital came to an end.

Among the gifts to be seen in the Recent Accessions Room this month are a silver plaque of J. Pierpont Morgan by Emil Fuchs, from Edward D. Adams; a charming "Portrait of a Young Woman" by Charles Jarvis, from Mrs. J. H. Blauvelt; "Portraits of John A. Conant and Mrs. John A. Conant" by William Dunlap, from John A. Church, and a marble bust of Daniel Webster by Thomas Ball, American artist, from Mrs. William Couper. The Museum has purchased a bronze statuette of a "Woman at Her Toilet," by Jane Poupelet, and some interesting old furniture, Italian chair, writing desk, and table; a German muniment chest of about 1500, a dole cupboard, late fifteenth century, and a couple of early Heppelwhite chairs.

The Museum Bulletin's first article this month is "A Memorial to George A. Hearn," and seven of many pictures, his gifts to the Museum, are reproduced.

A private view of a collection of Chinese paintings will be given at the Museum from 2 to 4 on the afternoon of Jan. 26, paintings which the Museum has been collecting but which have not yet been placed on exhibition, and at 4:15 there will be an illustrated lecture on the development of Chinese painting by Dr. John C. Ferguson of Peking. "The Late Years of Michelangelo," an illustrated lecture, treating of the less-known works of the master, will be given by Dr. Wilhelm R. Valentiner, Curator of Decorative Arts, on Monday afternoon, Feb. 2, also at 4:15, in the Lecture Hall of the Museum, entrance Eighty-third Street. A lecture on "French Furniture of the Seventeenth Century" will be given Saturday evening, Jan. 24, at 8 o'clock, in the Lecture Hall, by Prof. Charles R. Richards, Director of Cooper Union. This is especially intended for buyers and sales people and every one interested in the development of household furniture of the period will be welcome.

Charles L. Freer was elected an honorary Fellow for life at the last Board of Trustees meeting on Dec. 15, and John Achelis and Richard W. Meade were made sustaining members.

HEAR TITANIC CLAIM CASES.

Extent of Liability Involved in Issues Before U. S. Supreme Court.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—The Supreme Court of the United States today listened to arguments in two cases affecting claims for damages against the owners of the lost steamship Titanic. The question for the court to decide was whether the American or the more liberal English law should apply. It is understood that under the American statutes claims for damages would lie only against the salvaged part of the ship or its cargo, which in this case would be only a few thousand dollars.

Arguments were made by C. C. Burlingham of counsel for the Ocean Steam Navigation Company, and Norman B. Beecher, representing the claimants, William J. Mellor and Harry Anderson. The court reserved decision.

An amazingly conglomerate affair is "Omar the Tentmaker," offered for the first time at the Lyric Theatre last night, where "in the name of Allah" there was much gnashing of teeth and scenery, with the result that the quartrains of the Rubaiyat in shredded form occasionally became audible through the uninspired verbiage of the late Mr. Fitzgerald's live collaborator, Richard Walton Tully.

It was the latter who had set about to make a play based on the "life, times, and Rubaiyat of Omar Khayyam" (programme note) a dedication of faith which necessarily provided a cue to latitude in imagination and effect. And Mr. Tully certainly went far.

From young Omar, the student, giving his ring as a pledge for a jug of liquor and making love to the beautiful daughter of his ancient teacher, to Omar, the tavern drunkard lit up, both metaphorically and literally, and floating around in space looking for an answer to the riddle of the Universe, the progress was accomplished with such a multiplicity of incidents and characters that there was something doing all the time. To be sure, the interim was not infrequently like a phantasmagoria or a hideous dream, and it wasn't always easy to judge just what it was all about or why it should be done at all.

But always there was much very lovely scenery.

And, occasionally, through a hole in the wall one saw beautiful Houri promising a sort of Eva in Heaven end to the proceedings. That end, this chronicler must acknowledge, he could not wait to see since the hour was late and presses and the mails would not wait even for "Omar's finish." Wherefore it is impossible to say whether he did "turn down the empty glass." From his steady progression in turning up the well-filled jug, however, that particular exercise seemed hardly likely of accomplishment in a reasonable time.

There was genuine beauty to some scenes, notably the one in the Persian garden, where Omar, like another Romeo, kissed his beloved through the latticed window and ultimately urged her to come to him for that one night, though she was promised to the "Shaw of Shaws" upon the morrow. The frank revelation of that potentate's habits in the matter of numerous wives makes it imperative to state that Bernard of the ilk was not the Shaw referred to.

What followed was a mongrel mixture of old-fashioned blood-and-thunder melodrama, with treachery, and poisoned foods, prison walls, clanking chains, and stolen keys, the pursuit of a Christian, the torture of some Jews, and the me-cheeild motive that has done such heroic service in flamboyant plays of an older period.

In his student days Omar and two others pledge eternal friendship, and a like and like share of any fortune of the future. And ultimately one of these students, now Governor of Naishipur, and an assassin in secret, betrays Omar to his enemies, while the other, now Grand Vizier, save Omar after he has undergone the horrors of the bastinado. It is during this punishment that Omar's spirit presumably leaves his body, though the material form, with a sort of coal miner's lamp effect, not well handled last night, makes a Peter Pan flight aloft.

Incidentally Omar has adopted a young girl, supposedly the daughter of the cruel Shaw by Omar's first love, and presently to be revealed to him as his very own child when the mother herself, now known as the Evil Banou, ruler of a desert band of assassins, appears in the nick of time to save the girl from the cruel desires of the treacherous Governor.

It is all very lurid and very much mixed up, and the blend of FitzGerald verse with theatrical colloquialism is atrocious.

Under the circumstances one did not look for fine qualities in the acting, most of those on the scene being chiefly engaged in making noisy bugaboos of themselves. But Guy Bates Post, though not infrequently inaudible, was occasionally impressive, with the assistance of the FitzGerald lines, and succeeded in suggesting a real character in the midst of patent artificialty. Miss Salisbury and Miss Gressler each brought something of beauty and occasional tenderness to the scene, Mr. Francis read eloquently and well, Mr. Baker was fierce and declamatory, and Mr. Eric picturesque.

CHARITIES.

A Dollar Provides Emergency Food For a Family.

During the past thirteen days 1,318 families in want and sickness asked for aid from the Brooklyn Bureau of Charities.

Most of them are still under our care. Some require food, fuel, shelter and personal service to put them back on their feet. Some need our nursing service.

Contributions are needed now to meet the demands made on our resources.

'SARI' IS TUNEFUL, BUT BOOK IS DULL

Little Mizzi Hajos Supplies the Only Real Fun in Savage's Hungarian Operetta.

A FEW DELIGHTFUL DUETS

SARI, an operetta in two acts, by Julius Wilhelm and Fritz Grunbaum; English book and lyrics by C. C. S. Cushing and E. P. Heath; music by Emmerich Kalman. At the Liberty Theatre.

Pali Racz	Van Rensselaer Wheeler
Laczi	J. Humbird Duffey
Sari	Mizzi Hajos
Klari	Eva Ball
Joska Fekete	Karl Stall
Juliska Fekete	Blanche Duffield
Gaston	Charles Meakins
Cadeaux	Harry Davenport
Count Estragon	Wilmuth Merkyl
Count Mustari	Eugene Roder
Pierre	Harry Crapo

With two beautiful stage settings, with some splendid music and an excellent cast but with a book tremendously dull and uninteresting, "Sari"—pronounced Shari, by the way—was produced by Henry W. Savage at the Liberty Theatre last night. Little Mizzi Hajos was the bright particular star of the entertainment, furnishing the only real fun of the evening. J. Humbird Duffey and Blanche Duffield carried off the singing honors in several delightful duets, which rose way above the ordinary level of modern musical shows. Van Rensselaer Wheeler, as a gouty old gypsy in a gray wig, also sang well.

"Sari," whose music is by Emmerich Kalman, has been made into English by C. C. S. Cushing and E. P. Heath from the original book of Julius Wilhelm and Fritz Grunbaum. It tells the story of the old gypsy, Pali Racz, who does not realize that his day has past and that his children are about to have their day. In the first act the gypsy is at his home in Hungary surrounded by the children of his three wives. He is about to take a fourth wife in Juliska, played by Miss Duffield, who is really in love with his son Laczi, Mr. Duffey. The father and son have frequent quarrels, which are prevented from becoming very serious by the intervention of Racz's little daughter Sari, Miss Hajos.

Into this happy family wanders the young Count Irini, Charles Meakins, and Cadeaux, his faithful shadow, played by Harry Davenport. It is the latter's sole duty to see that his charge does not marry the wrong girl, but of course the Count falls in love with Sari as soon as he sees her. The end of the act finds the whole company about to leave for Paris, where Count Irini has commanded Racz to appear and play the violin before his Royal Highness, the King of Massilia.

The second act takes place in the Paris home of the young Count. Little Sari, who was dressed as a very charming little serving maid in the first act, has suddenly come into some fine clothes, and looks prettier than ever. Also she is in love with the Count. When the time comes for Racz to play before the King he canot be found, and so his son Laczi takes the father's place and scores a tremendous success. Then comes Racz, who has dyed his hair black to appear youthful, and takes his place on the platform with his beloved violin, but his fingers have lost their nimbleness and he cannot hold his audience.

In the end he throws away his violin and turns to find that even his sweetheart has deserted him and is in the arms of his son. Only his daughter is left, but when he looks for little Sari he finds that she has been won by the Count. Not until then does he realize that "Victorious ever is youth," the theme of the operetta.

ACT FARCE 'LOVELY WOMEN.'

Germans Give First Performance Here of Adapted French Comedy.

SCHONE FRAUEN, a farce in three acts, by Etienne Rey. At the Irving Place Theatre.

Francois Villiers	Rudolf Christians
Germaine, seine Frau	Annie Rub-Foerster
Jaques Prevost	Christian Rub
Martha, seine Frau	Louise Scheurich
Lucienne Moranges	Charlotte Krause
Frau Duvoy	Iffi Engel
Juliette, Stubenmadchen	Selma Weber

"Schoene Frauen." ("Lovely Women,") a farce in three acts by Etienne Rey, adapted into German by Otto Eisenschitz, was produced for the first time in America at the Irving Place Theatre last night. The theme of the play is the customary French one of domestic infidelity, with its inevitable consequences. Inasmuch as it was a farce, the end had to be a happy one, though the same circumstances could just as well have furnished the plot for a serious comedy.

François Villiers, with an innate appreciation of the fair sex, is finally found out by his devoted young wife when too many of his affairs are running at the same time to avoid a collision. To get even with him, Germaine makes Jacques Prevost the innocent corespondent in a counter-attack on her husband.

She succeeds in arousing her husband's jealousy, though she fails to make her point, and he excuses his own acts by blaming it all on the women, lovely women. Jacques, the athletic Frenchman, is perhaps the most unusual character in the play, for his devotion to sport is caricatured as being the cause of his lack of success with the only thing in life worth while—the women, lovely women.

First credit for the finished performance, as usual, is due Director Christians, who played the rôle of the amiable husband with much verve, and the remainder of the small cast could not have been chosen to better advantage from the ranks of the versatile German players.

MISS HANAN TO WED FEB. 17.

Her Marriage to Duke di Durazzo to be Held in St. Thomas's.

Miss Elizabeth Frances Hanan, daughter of the late James Hanan of Brooklyn, whose engagement to the Duke Don Arturo di Durazzo was announced yesterday, will be married on Tuesday, Feb. 17, in St. Thomas's Church. Miss Hanan is a sister of Mr. and Mrs. John Henry Hanan of 1,078 Fifth Avenue, with whom she makes her home in the Winter, and she has a country house on the Jersey coast, where she spends her Summers. The honeymoon will be passed in Europe.

WED TO BE MISSIONARIES.

Rev. L. S. B. Hadley and Miss Humphrey to Live in Peking, China.

The wedding of Miss Mary Wheeler Humphrey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Scranton Humphrey, to the Rev. Lindsay Stillwell B. Hadley took place at 8:30 last evening at Rutgers Church, Broadway and Seventy-second Street. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Pierce A. Chamberland of Verona, N. J., a Brazilian Missionary Minister, assisted by the Rev. Edward S. Wollee of the Second Moravian Church in the Bronx and the Rev. Edward J. Russell of Calvary Church, Staten Island.

The bride wore a trailing gown of ivory silk, which was brought from India a half century ago, and this was combined with moire silk. The bodice was trimmed with Brussels lace. Her point lace veil, a family heirloom, was held in place with orange blossoms, sent by friends from California. She carried a bouquet of orchids and lilies of the valley.

Mrs. Olen Doty, sister of the bridegroom, in a gown of yellow trimmed with white, acted as matron of honor. Miss Gertrude Lukins, a cousin of the bride, was the maid of honor. She wore a yellow satin gown, and both she and the matron of honor carried bouquets of yellow roses. There was also a little flower girl, Miss Ruth Humphrey, another cousin of the bride. She wore a white frock with a yellow sash and carried a basket of yellow sunburst roses.

Clifford E. Marsh acted as best man. The ushers were the Rev. Clarence E. Wells, Edgar J. Davidson, Philip W. Allison, John H. Clewell, Charles W. Hunt, and Joseph B. Bisbee, Jr.

After the ceremony a reception was held at apartments of the bride's parents in the Hotel Endicott, Columbus Avenue and Eighty-first Street. Mr. and Mrs. Hadley are to sail on the Adriatic on Feb. 21, and after an extended trip will make their home in Peking, China, where after May 1 they will engage in missionary work.

The bride has been active in the work of the Y. W. C. A. She is a graduate of Wellesley College. Mr. Hadley has just resigned from the Presbyterian Church of Glens Falls, N. Y.

MR. SEAGLE'S RECITAL.

Reappearance of an American Baritone Pupil of Jean de Reszke.

Mr. Oscar Seagle, who made his first appearance as a singer of songs in New York last season, has returned to this city and gave a recital yesterday afternoon in Aeolian Hall. Mr. Seagle is a young American who has studied with Jean de Reszke and has been one of his assistants there in teaching. Well known in Paris, as a newcomer to New York last season he surprised and pleased his hearers by the manifold excellences of his voice and method, as he did again yesterday. His baritone voice has an unusually beautiful quality, exceptional power and sonority, a timbre of an extremely sympathetic kind.

To his remarkable natural gifts he has added the fine training which gives him all technical command of his resources, an unerring control. He has been able to appropriate to his own uses something more than the externals of his distinguished teacher's methods and style. There is much in his singing that is reminiscent of them; and as an exemplification purely of the art of vocalism it has great value and interest.

It was evident again yesterday, however, as it was last year, that Mr. Seagle has not yet attained to the highest flights in song singing, the potent command of variety in emotional expressiveness, and characterization of mood, which is the supreme quality of that art. Instead of these matters, his attention seems to be as yet directed more upon vocalization, the attainment of beautiful utterance through the many purely technical resources of which he is a master. Mr. Seagle's lack at present is intensity and depth of expression, the power of penetrating to the inner spirit of music of a deeper sort, whether it be passionate, tragical, or tender. And yet the note of sincerity and true artistic feeling is never absent from his singing. It is always manly and direct, always marked by fine taste, rarely superficial, and it rarely discloses a lack of intelligence in the consideration he has given to his artistic material, however much it may show a temperamental aloofness.

His finest successes were gained in the older songs of his programme. The air from Bach's cantata, "The Contest Between Phoebus and Pan," needs, to be sure, a litle more unction than he found for it, a little more spontaneity; but it was a beautiful piece of singing. There was an infinite charm in his performance of two old French songs, a "Musette" and a "Tambourin," delivered with finished phrasing, in a suave "mezzo voce," perfectly placed and poised, and with a beautiful quality and graduation of tone. These were so much liked that he was called upon to repeat the first, and to add another of the same genre.

He had a delightful series of modern French songs, beginning with Chausson's "Colibri," sung with true sincerity and feeling, and Widor's "Le Plongeur," which he made significant. Paladillie's "Psyché," conceived with a sincere tenderness, he had to repeat. There was a charming song by Rimsky Korsakoff, "Les Rossignolés"; and in Monssorgsky's "Chanson de la Puce" there was something of the bizarre irony and bitterness — sometimes outside the boundary of purely musical expression —that are revealed in certain of the songs in "Boris Godonnow," and of which he reproduced much. To this set he added Debussy's "Mandoline," which needed a little lighter touch, a little more insouciance, than he gave it.

There was something less of success in his delivery of German songs. His diction in them was not quite so good as in his French. There was not enough of the dashing, chivalrous spirit in the "Provençalisches Lied" from Schumann's cantata "Des Sängers Fluch"; and he caught the serious spirit of Brahms's "Alle Liebe" much more truly than the soaring exaltation of his "Botschaft." He closed this group with Dvorak's "Zigeunerlied," leaving out Novak's "Zigeunertanz." His last group was of songs in English by John Alden Carpenter, Campbell-Tipton, Marshall Kernochan, and Carl Busch.

Mr. Yves next played Mr. Seagle's accompaniments with unusual finish and spirit, and also contributed some solo numbers to the programme: Schumann's "Etudes Symphoniques" and pieces by Fauré and Moszkowski, in a way that showed him to be an artist of much capacity.

HERBERT'S ONE-ACT OPERA.

Massenet's "Manon," with Miss Farrar, Mmes. Duchene, Maubourg, and Sparkes, and Messrs. Caruso, Gilly, Rothier, De Segurola, Reiss, Ananian, Begue, and Reschiglian, Mr. Toscanini conducting, will open the tenth week of the Metropolitan opera season next Monday night.

Victor Herbert's new one-act opera in English, "Madeleine," will have its premiere at next week's Saturday matinée, with Mme. Alda in the title rôle, and Mme. Sparkes and Messrs. Althouse, De Segurola, and Pini-Corsi as her associates. "Madeleine" will be followed by "Pagliacci," which will be sung by Miss Bori and Messrs. Caruso, Amato, Reschiglian, and Bada. Mr. Polacco will conduct both operas.

"L'Amore dei tre Re" will be heard again next Wednesday evening with the usual cast, including Mmes. Bori, Braslau, Duchene, and Mauborg, and Messrs. Ferrari-Fontana, Amato, Didur, and Bada. Mr. Toscanini will conduct.

"Madama Butterfly" will be given at an extra matinée on Thursday afternoon, of next week, with Miss Farrar, Fornia, and Mapleson, and Messrs. Martin, (his first appearance this season,) Scotti, Bada, and Begue, Mr. Polacco conducting.

"Tristan und Isolde" will be sung on Thursday evening of next week by Mmes. Fremstad and Ober, and Messrs. Urlus, Weil, Griswold, Murphy, Schlegel, and Bayer. Mr. Toscanini will conduct.

"Der Rosenkavalier" will be the Friday night opera with Mmes. Hempel, Ober, Case, Fornia, and Mattfeld, and Messrs. Jörn, Goritz, Althouse, Weil, and Schlegel. Mr. Hertz will conduct.

"Tannhäuser" will be given Saturday evening of next week as the first of the popular-price subscription series of operas. The cast will include Mmes. Destinn, Fremstad, and Sparkes, and Messrs. Urlus, (his last appearance this season,) Weil, Griswold, Reiss, Schlegel, and Bayer. Mr. Hertz will conduct.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

Mrs. George J. Gould has arranged for a theatre party of 150 to witness a performance of "The Girl on the Film" at the Forty-fourth Street Theatre on Wednesday evening, Jan. 21.

The vaudeville debut of Cecilia Wright at the Palace Theatre next Monday afternoon has caused much interest in army and navy circles. On Monday night there will occupy boxes Major Gen. Thomas H. Barry, commander of the Department of the East; Capt. Albert Gleaves, commandant of the navy yard, Brooklyn; Capt. Roy C. Smith of the U. S. S. Arkansas, Capt. Plunkett of the U. S. S. North Dakota, Surgeon C. C. Smith of the United States Naval Hospital, and others.

"The House of Bondage," a dramatization in four acts of Reginald Wright Kauffman's novel of the social evil by Joseph Totten, which was recently suppressed by the police, will open again next Monday night—this time at the Longacre Theatre.

William H. Crane and Douglas Fairbanks, now starring with Amelia Bingham and Patricia Collinge in "The New Henrietta" at the Knickerbocker Theatre, will bring their metropolitan run to a close on Jan. 31.

Graduates and undergraduates of the Normal College will give a theatre party in honor of Elsie Ferguson at the Gaiety Theatre on Friday night, Jan. 23. Miss Ferguson is a graduate of the Normal College, and in taking the opportunity to see her in "The Strange Woman" the alumnae and undergraduates are at the same time aiding the Graduates' Building Fund, through the courtesy of Klaw & Erlanger. The class of 1910 has the event in charge. Miss Doris J. Spier is Chairman.

The tenth annual dinner of the Association of Theatre Managers of New York will be held on Sunday evening, Jan. 25, at the Biltmore Hotel. The arrangements are in the hands of Charles Burnham of Wallack's Theatre, President of the association.

William James Cauthers.

William James Cauthers, well known to the lace trade of this country and Europe, died yesterday of heart disease at his home, 400 East Twenty-first Street, Flatbush. He was in his sixty-eighth year and was born in Ireland. Mr. Cauthers was for twenty years with Aitken, Son & Co., lace dealers, and was European buyer for that firm. In recent years he was resident buyer for out-of-town lace houses. Mr. Cauthers was often called upon by officials of the Custom House to give his opinion of laces. He left a widow, two sons, and three daughters.

GEORGE K. FORTESCUE DEAD

Comedian Noted for His Female Impersonations Succumbs at 67.

George K. Fortescue, who first came into prominence as an actor in burlesque and musical comedy when he appeared in a production of the operetta "Black-eyed Susan" in Boston more than half a century ago, died yesterday in St. Vincent's Hospital, where he had been confined for seven months. For four years Mr. Fortescue had been suffering from Bright's disease.

Mr. Fortescue was born in Manchester, England, sixty-seven years ago, the son of Major Edwin Caghlin, an English army officer, who was later stationed in the West Indies, where he was accompanied by his son. At the age of 16 years, young Fortescue came to this country, and his first appearance was in Boston. He later joined a stock company and acted in Philadelphia. Mr. Fortescue became a well-known figure on the stage when he appeared as Clorinda in the burlesque of "Cinderella" with the Wallace sisters.

His success in this burlesque resulted in his engagement as Catherine in Rice's "Evangeline," and for twenty consecutive years he appeared in that rôle. He attained success in other female rôles, including a burlesque of Rose Eytinge in "Rose Michel," and of Fanny Davenport in "Pique." With Mestayer he starred in "The Babes in the Wood," that had a long run at Niblo's Garden.

Subsequently he appeared in "The Belle of New York," that had a long run at the Casino, and later was taken to London, where it had a run of two years before the company started on a tour of the globe. Mr. Fortescue, on returning to New York, was seen in "San Toy" at Daly's Theatre, and his last appearance was in Rice's revival of the burlesque "Cinderella" at the Children's Theatre. In his late years on the stage Mr. Fortescue had played several male parts. He was more than 6 feet in height and weighed more than 300 pounds.

Mr. Fortescue is survived by his widow, who was Miss Viola Grattan-Plunkett, daughter of Mrs. H. P. Grattan, an actress well known two generations ago, and a daughter, Miss Viola Fortescue, now appearing in "The Poor Little Rich Girl." His funeral will be held to-morrow morning at 10 o'clock from St. Vincent de Paul Catholic Church, in West Twenty-third Street.

MRS. HERRON DIES IN ITALY.

Memorial Meeting at Rand School for Wife of Prof. George D. Herron.

Mrs. Carrie Rand Herron, wife of Prof. George D. Herron, the American author and lecturer on Socialist subjects, died suddenly on Sunday night in Florence, Italy, where she and her husband went in 1905 for the benefit of the latter's health. Mrs. Herron was born in Burlington, Iowa, forty years ago, the daughter of Mrs. Carrie D. Rand, who gave funds for the endowment of the Rand School of Social Science, 140 East Nineteenth Street.

Mrs. Herron, from the public schools, went to continue her studies at Grinnell College, where her mother had endowed a chair of Applied Christianity. There she met Prof. Herron, who occupied the chair founded by her mother. Early in 1900 they were married in New York and went from here to live at Metuchen, N. J., where was the country place of Mrs. Rand. In 1905 Prof. Herron's health failed and they went to Italy. The nature of Mrs. Herron's illness has not been learned as yet by her friends in this city.

A memorial meeting for her will be held to-morrow evening at the Rand School, and addresses will be made by Morris Hillquist, John Sprague, and others.

GIANTS SAIL FROM AUSTRALIA TO CEYLON--- JOHNSON AND MORAN TO BOX IN PARIS

GIANTS ON LONG VOYAGE TO CEYLON

Baseball Tourists' Visit to Australia Concludes with a Day at Fremantle.

BY JOHN J. McGRAW.
Manager New York Giants.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.
Copyright, 1914, by John J. McGraw.

FREMANTLE, Western Australia, Jan. 13.—A few hours' visit to-day in this city, the chief port of the colony, ended the stay of the baseball tourists in Australia. We reached here just before noon after a very rough trip from Adelaide across the famous Australian bight. The voyage brought back many reminders of that voyage from Victoria to Yokohama, as most of the tourists were again seasick. All recovered, however, before our arrival here. Mike Donlin is now able to walk around with the aid of a cane, having discarded the crutches which he was compelled to use after injuring his ankle last week.

Owing to a misunderstanding there will be no game here. We expected to play a game this afternoon, but the committee in charge had planned otherwise, and on our arrival this morning we learned that it would be impossible to have a contest this afternoon. As we have to sail at 5 o'clock this afternoon we could not stay an extra day to oblige the committee. The cancellation is as disappointing to the tourists as to the inhabitants here.

Our few hours' visit here will be spent in sightseeing. Perth, the capital and chief centre of the colony, is across the river from Fremantle and between the two cities there will be plenty to keep the tourists busy. This is a great gold mining district and this in itself will furnish many interesting sights. We all hope to carry away small nuggets as reminders of our visit here.

We are now about to embark on another long sea journey which will take up about ten days. We are due to arrive at Colombo, Ceylon, on Jan. 23, and after a short visit there we will embark again for a week's sail to Cairo.

FEDERAL AFTER FORD.

Yankee Pitcher Confers with Tinker—Hadlan Park for League.

CHICAGO, Jan. 13.—Joe Tinker, manager of the Chicago Federal League team, was notified by telephone from St. Louis to-day that Otto Stifel, the St. Louis Federal Club owner, had purchased Hadlan Park in St. Louis for $250,000 and would at once remodel it. The information was telephoned by Charles Weeghman and W. M. Walker, two of the backers of the Chicago Federals. Tinker declared that the Federals would be invited before next Fall to enter the ranks of organized baseball.

Tinker was in conference to-day with Russell Ford, pitcher of the New York Americans. Ford came from Minneapolis in response to a telegram.

It is explained that players signed by Tinker will not necessarily appear in local uniforms. He is acting partly as an employment agent for the new league and players in some cases at least may be assigned to any needy club in the circuit.

Federal League Wants Bohannan.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Jan. 13.—In its quest for players, the Federal League has invaded the field of the minor leagues of organized baseball. "Fat" Bohannan, last season's heavy-hitting manager of the Danbury (Conn.) Club of the New York-New Jersey League, admitted here to-day that he had been offered a contract in the Federal League. For several days it has been rumored that the Pittsburgh Club of the Federal League was trying to secure the services of Bohannan and one or more members of the Louisville Club of the American Association. He formerly played in the Western League and the American Association. Bohannan declined to say whether he would accept the offer made to him by a Federal League club.

Cincinnati Base Hit Voted Out.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 13.—All the changes proposed by the Rules Committee of the Baseball Writers' Association of America were adopted by a vote of the members of the organization, except the one known as the "Cincinnati base hit." The result of the balloting was announced to-day by Secretary Weart, who said that thirty-five members voted against the "Cincinnati base hit" and twenty-six in favor of it. Opposition to this was particularly strong among the New York and Chicago writers. The only other proposed change that did not meet with almost unanimous approval was that giving a stolen base and a battery error on the same play. This suggestion, however, was carried three to one.

Oppose New Ball Park in Baltimore.

BALTIMORE, Md., Jan. 13.—A protest against the granting of a permit to the Baltimore Club of the Federal Baseball League to erect a ball park on the site in North Baltimore selected by the club owners was filed with Building Inspector Stubbs to-day by a builder who owns houses in that neighborhood. He contends that the International League grounds being only a few blocks away, an additional baseball park in the vicinity would depreciate the value of property. No action was taken to-day by Inspector Stubbs regarding the matter, but the belief was expressed at City Hall that the permit would be granted.

Gilmore Won't Give Out Names.

CHICAGO, Jan. 13.—President Gilmore of the Federal League returned here to-day after a short visit in the East and said that the Toronto Club had a player ready to sign as manager of that club, but he could not give the prospective manager's name at this time. He also made the announcement that the Buffalo Club had signed three major league players. These also, he said, he would not make public at this time.

Brooklyn After Miller and Brown.

INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 13.—Wilbert Robinson, manager of the Brooklyn National League Club, arrived here late to-day to confer with Otto Miller, a catcher, and Elmer Brown, a pitcher. Both men formerly played with Brooklyn, and it is said have been offered three-year contracts by the Indianapolis Federal League Club.

Robinson Signs with Cardinals.

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 13.—Manager Huggins of the St. Louis Nationals announced to-day that he had come to terms with "Lefty" Robinson, pitcher, who was traded to St. Louis by Pittsburgh in the recent deal by which Konetchy, Mowrey, and Harmon were transferred to the Pittsburgh Nationals.

Cardinals Re-Elect Officers.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Jan. 13.—Schuyler Britton was re-elected President of the St. Louis National League Baseball Club to-day. Mrs. Helene Hathaway Robinson Britten was re-elected Vice President, Herman Seekamp Treasurer, and W. G. Schofield secretary.

Pirates Sign Young Catcher.

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 13.—Lloyd Waitt, catcher, has signed a contract to play with the Pittsburgh National League Club this season. Waitt is a local boy, and has played in the defunct Oklahoma League and in the Southern Association.

LARRY McLEAN GETS $600.

St. Louis Club Pays Giant Catcher for Good Behaviour Last Year.

Lawrence McLean, the big catcher of the Giants, is the happiest man in Manhattan this morning, and he has reason to be. The St. Louis Club, after months of squabbling with the Giants, has come to the conclusion that they are accountable for the bonus promised to McLean early last season, if he adhered closely to the doctrine of sobriety. When Larry was transferred to the New York Club toward the end of last season the St. Louis Club tried to wish the responsibility of McLean's bonus onto the Giants.

The matter was discussed in Cincinnati by the National Commission, and it was decided that the St. Louis Club must shoulder the responsibility of McLean's good behavior. So Larry has received the $600 from St. Louis. Yesterday Larry tangoed into the office of the Giants with a broad smile on his well-known spacious face. He was greeted by John B. Foster, the Secretary of the club. Mr. Foster greeted the big catcher warmly. It was cold outside, so that is the reason Mr. Foster was so warm with his greetings.

Mr. McLean, who happens to be the player who led all the Giants at the bat in the late world's series, asked Mr. Foster for a brand new contract. Larry received one of the latest documents drawn up by the National Commission, and he happens to be the first big leaguer in captivity who has signed one of the new papers. Larry exhibited his check from the St. Louis Club for $600 bonus for his good behavior, and then signed his contract with the Giants for next year.

At the same time Larry notified Mr. Foster that he would lay the $600 away carefully in his inside pocket and await the merry zephyrs of Spring. Larry stated that he would be one of the first baseball citizens to report at Marlin Springs for Spring practice. For all of which Mr. Foster was very glad.

Another happening which pleased Mr. Foster yesterday was the signed contract of "Ferdie" Schupp, the young southpaw pitcher. Schupp is scheduled to blossom out during the coming season as a top-notch boxman. Manager McGraw carried him all last season on the bench and he had an opportunity to see what real pitching was. Schupp came from Decatur, where he was discovered by Scout Kinsella. Schupp twirled a few games at the Polo Grounds last year at the tail-end of the season, and the general impression was that he had a spin to the leather which was at least deceiving. He will be heard from this season.

Outfielder James Eschen signed a contract for 1914 with the New York Americans yesterday. Eschen was a Brooklyn semi-professional player when he was signed by the Jersey City Club last year. With the Skeeters he played 89 games in which he had a batting average of .262 and a field percentage of .960. Eschen improved so rapidly toward the close of the International League season that Frank Chance, who had originally sent him to Jersey City after a private trial at the Polo Grounds, decided to call him back. Eschen is a fast baserunner, a fine long-distance thrower, and a promising hitter. He is 5 feet, 11 inches tall, weighs 170 pounds, and is 21 years old.

First Baseman Owen Quinn also signed a contract with the Yankees yesterday. He was purchased from the Kingston Club of the New York and New Jersey League last Summer by President Farrell and was sent to Galveston for the rest of the season. He is a left handed batter and thrower and with Kingston he had a batting average of .384, making 56 runs in 34 games. With Galveston he played 44 games, driving out 42 safe hits for an average of .278. His fielding average in Kingston was .978, while in Galveston the figures were .958. Quinn lives in Pocantico Hills, N. Y. He is 5 feet, 11 inches tall, weighs 169 pounds, and is considered a very fast man. In the Texas League last Fall he was a sensation.

Word was received from Baltimore last night that Otto Knabe, manager of the Baltimore Club of the Federal League, had signed Mike Mowrey, the former St. Louis player, who was traded to Pittsburgh. It is stated that Knabe offered Mowrey such flattering terms that he immediately decided to jump the Pirates. Mowrey had not signed a contract to play with Pittsburgh.

"Chink" Yingling, who was recently transferred to Cincinnati in the Tinker deal, yesterday signed a contract with the Reds. Yingling has been contemplating going to the Federals for some time, but President Herrmann offered better terms than the outlaws. Chief Johnson, Cincinnati's big Indian pitcher, is considering an offer from the Federals, but he was summoned to Cincinnati yesterday by President Herrmann, and it is believed that he will sign a Red contract to-day. Manager Charley Herzog was in communication with Outfielder "Herbie" Moran, the former Brooklyn player, yesterday, and announced last night that Moran would probably turn down the big offer he had from the Federals and would play with Cincinnati next season.

President Farrell of the Yankees yesterday received the signed contract of Jimmy Walsh, the crack outfielder who was purchased from the Athletics for $5,000. Walsh was approached by the Baltimore Club of the Federal League, but he put a deaf ear to their offers and is enthusiastic about being with the Yankees next season.

President Ebbets of the Brooklyn Club yesterday released Outfielder "Hub" Northern to the New Orleans Club of the Southern Association. Brooklyn has a wealth of outfielders for next season and the Dodger management expects to spring a surprise on the National League with a hard-hitting outfield.

The Keokuk Club of the Central League lost money last season, so to make up for the deficit the management opened a moving-picture show, exhibiting the world's series games between the Giants and the Athletics. The "movies" were such a big success that the club made up what was lost during the last season and will open this Spring with a clean slate. The "movies" of the world's series were patronized by people from miles around Keokuk.

Sheckard Balks at Federal Offer.

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 13.—John Sheckard to-night sent a telegram to John B. Barbour of the Pittsburgh Federal League Club which stated that the terms which Sheckard was offered to manage the local club were unsatisfactory. President Barbour declared no further overtures would be made to Sheckard.

Manhattan Defeats St. John's.

Manhattan College basket ball team defeated St. John's College of Brooklyn last night on the court of De La Salle Institute in West Fifty-eighth Street, by the score of 25 to 12. The first twenty minutes ended with the score 8 to 5 in favor of Manhattan. In the second period the playing was equally close up to within five minutes of the end of the game, when the Manhattan aggregation made a spurt and tallied four goals from the field. The individual stars were D. Houlihan and McCann for Manhattan, while the guarding of Mahoney was the feature for St. John's. He only allowed Suares, the crack Manhattan player, to pass him for a goal. The De La Salle Institute team defeated the Manhattan Prep five in a preliminary game by the score of 25 to 9. The line-up:

Manhattan.	Position.	St. John's.
D. Houlihan	Left forward	Nicklas
Suarez	Right forward	McDonald
Caffrey	Centre	Morrissey
J. Houlihan	Right guard	Casey

New York Curlers Win Medal.

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., Jan. 13.—The Thistle Curling Club of New York to-night won the Gordon Medal in competition with Utica Curling Club, St. Andrews of New York, and Mohawk Golf Club of this city. The match was held under the direction of the Grand National Curling Club of America.

Princeton to Play Columbia.

Princeton will play Columbia at basket ball in the Columbia gymnasium this evening.

JOHNSON AND MORAN TO FIGHT IN PARIS

Champion Will Sign Articles To-day and Get $35,000, Guaranteed by W. A. Chanler.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 13.—Articles will be signed to-morrow at 11 o'clock A. M. by Jack Johnson and Frank Moran of Pittsburgh to fight for the championship of the world in Paris the first week in next June. Johnson will get $35,000, which is guaranteed by William Astor Chanler and another wealthy American, represented by Charles McCarthy, formerly of Coney Island. Thirty thousand dollars is Johnson's fee for fighting, and the other $5,000 is for expenses, to be paid to him five weeks before the fight. The $30,000 will be posted to-morrow, immediately after the articles are signed with Maitrot, the French referee whose club Premier Land Français, will stage the bout.

An article of the contract reads: "If Johnson fails to enter the ring he thereby surrenders the world's championship to Moran." The men had a long conference to-day, attended by Maitrot, McCarthy, and Moran's manager, Dan McKetrick. Johnson insisted upon receiving $5,000 for expenses, and finally agreed to sign to-day, but superstitiously backed out because of Jan. 13. However, Johnson admitted that he must get a big fight because he is broke, and promised faithfully to meet Moran at 11 to-morrow at the Pavilion Dauphine, in Bois de Boulogne.

PORKY FLYNN WHIPPED.

Battling Levinsky Gives Away Weight and Wins Easily.

Battling Levinsky, whose steady march to victory was halted a week ago by Bob McAllister, resumed his winning habit last night at the National Sporting Club, when he faced Porky Flynn of Boston in the main bout of ten rounds. Levinsky made a poor start, appearing to be too cautious in the early chapters, but once under headway he clearly outfought the Bostonian and gained the honors by a fair margin. The Battler was going better in the final round than in any previous chapter.

Levinsky, as is usually the case, was greatly outweighed by his opponent. The ringside weights were 190 pounds for the Bostonian and 170 pounds for Levinsky. The latter was smaller than Flynn in every way, and in the early rounds it looked as if the east sider was in for another setback. Flynn towered above Levinsky when they stood in the centre of the ring, and he had the advantage of a few inches in reach. Added to these physical advantages was long ring experience, for Flynn has boxed about everybody in the heavyweight ranks. But as the bout wore on it became evident that Levinsky excelled Flynn enough in fighting spirit to make up for his physical deficiencies, and this decided the battle.

Twice during the bout the Boston heavyweight was in a bad way and found clinching and hugging a welcome means of support. In the fifth round Levinsky shot over three hard right swings which connected flush on Flynn's face and Porky's knees sagged. He fell into a clinch and hugged Levinsky until Referee Patsy Haley pried the men apart. Again in the tenth round Levinsky rushed Flynn to the ropes and jarred the Bostonian with some well placed right swings. Flynn bled from the nose and the mouth from the third round to the close of the bout.

The bout was the first of a series arranged for Flynn in an announced comeback effort to force Gunboat Smith into a match, and it proved a big disappointment to followers of the Boston heavyweight. After a long and steady course of training it was expected that he would show some real ability, but he failed to do so. After Levinsky assumed the aggressive the Bostonian faded quickly and only at rare intervals did he succeed in getting over a telling punch. In the early rounds Flynn rushed Levinsky around the ring and he looked like a high-class boxer while things were coming his way. But he tired and seemed to lose heart in the closing rounds as Levinsky penetrated his defense time and again with heavy punches.

Flynn was the victim of a questionable knockdown in the fifth round. He was partly off his balance when Levinsky sent over a right hand punch and the combination upset him in his own corner. He turned completely around as he was going down, but he jumped up again before Referee Haley had taken any count. This was the only knockdown of the bout, but there were a few occasions when it looked as if Porky might take a drop to the canvas.

Flynn did all the forcing in the first three rounds and gained the honors each time. Levinsky, who is a slow starter, was as cautious as ever and although he managed to get over an occasional hard punch he slowed up the bout by clinching continually. In the fourth round Levinsky became more aggressive and held Flynn even. From that time to the finish Levinsky did most of the forcing or cleverly blocked Flynn's rushes, outfighting the Bostonian in every succeeding round. Levinsky was not marked at the finish.

In the six-round semi-final Silent Martin and Charley Weber, who figured in a sensational battle at the same club two weeks ago, came together and Martin won on points. In the other bout he knocked Weber out in the second round after each had been knocked down. It was a slugging match all the way. In another six-round bout Kid Fisher, the veteran lightweight, was outpointed by Harlem Tommy Hopkins.

Empire A. C. Gets Boxing License.

Members of the New York State Athletic Commission held a short session yesterday, when they granted a license to the Empire Athletic Club, 107th Street and Park Avenue, in place of the Star A. C., which license was canceled. The McMahon brothers will control the new club. The papers in the Fitzsimmons suit against the State Commission to enjoin the latter from barring Bob in boxing bouts in the State, were discussed by Chairman Frank O'Neil, Commissioners Dixon and Price, and Secretary Harvey. Chairman O'Neil will appear in court to-day with Attorney General Carmody in answer to Fitzsimmons's suit.

Fitzsimmons has cast his lot in another direction. According to reports he will re-enter the ring on Jan. 29 at Williamsport, Penn., where he has agreed to be one of the principals of a six-round bout to be staged by the Gilbert Athletic Club. The opponent for Fitzsimmons has not yet been selected, but it is probable that Jimmy Dime, the New Castle, Penn., promoter, will secure a man to try out the veteran Australian. Manager Meek stated that the freckled gladiator did not want to make his reappearance against any of the top-notchers in his first bout, and Dime assured him that he could secure a man to fill the requirements, although he would not be a high-class boxer.

William H. Page, President of the New York Athletic Club, who was turned down by the Nominating Committee for re-election to a second term and which nominated James W. Hyde to succeed him, was last night re-elected by a vote of 696 out of a total of 1,381 votes cast. George T. Montgomery, who was a candidate for Vice President on the regular ticket, received 688 votes.

His opponent, James N. West, on the independent ticket, received 685 votes.

The following, who were nominated on both tickets, were unanimously elected for a year, save the members to the Board of Governors, who will serve for two years:

New Yorkers Win Large Share of Matches at Pinehurst.

Special to The New York Times.

PINEHURST N. C., Jan. 13.—Joy reigns among the lower division golfers participating in the advertising men's tournament because they were transferred for to-day's play to Course 1. To-day's first round of elimination was characterized by easy matches, and the day was perfect. In the first flight R. R. Mamlok of Fox Hills won on the seventeenth green by 2 and 1 from L. T. Boyd of Milwaukee, and he advances to meet L. A. Hamilton of Englewood, who won 6 and 5 in his match with T. T. Rushmore of Garden City. R. M. Purves of Woodland defeated J. A. Moore of Scarsdale, and he plays Josiah J. Hazen of Oakland, who defeated J. D. Plummer of Springfield by 4 and 3.

In the lower half of the bracket W. J. MacDonald of Calumet made a clean cut 2 and 1 win from George C. Dutton of Belmont, and he plays T. A. Ashley of Woodland, who defeated E. M. Alexander of Fox Hills by 6 and 4. Z. T. Miller of Dunwoodie advances to play Harold Slater of Fox Hills, both winning by 4 and 3, the former from Lorenzo Daniels of Richmond County and the latter from T. B. Boyd of Bellerieve.

In the second division Metropolitan golfers made seven of the eight wins, and H. B. O'Brien of Maidstone and H. R. Mallinson of Fair View, J. G. Todd and W. R. Hotchkiss, both of Montclair, W. W. Manning of Upper Montclair and H. M. Adams of Nassau, G. F. Bailey of Upper Montclair and B. T. Butler of Edgmor are the survivors and will play in the order given.

In the third flight T. A. Matthews of St. Andrew's and Rollo Ogden of Baltusrol remain in the upper half of the bracket. In the fourth division H. P. Treadwell of Dunwoodie, D. P. Morse of Nassau, C. W. Harmon of Wykagyl, F. H. Ralston and W. L. Hedges of Scarsdale, C. W. Yates of Glen Ridge, and A. S. Brownell of St. Andrew's remain. In the fifth division R. C. Hoyt of Upper Montclair, W. S. Bird of Scarsdale, and O. B. Merrill of Canoe Brook are in the running, and in the sixth and last flight E. F. Clymer of the Park Club, Herbert Barber, James Barber of Englewood, F. L. E. Gauss of Siwanoy, and Richard Wood of Arcola remain.

C. C. Vernam of Huntington won to-day's play-off for the Class B trophy which resulted with J. H. Appel of Wykagyl yesterday.

GRAND CIRCUIT DATES.

New York to Open Season if Local Association Desires a Meeting.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Jan. 13.—The stewards of the Grand Circuit in session here to-day, decided upon the following schedule for racing for the coming season, which will probably start upon July 20:

July 20, Cleveland; July 27, Detroit Driving Club; Aug. 3, Grand Rapids; Aug. 10, Kalamazoo; Aug. 17, Pittsburgh; Aug. 24, Buffalo; Aug. 31, Syracuse (New York State Fair); Sept. 7, Hartford (Connecticut State Fair); Sept. 14, Detroit (Michigan State Fair); Sept. 21, Columbus (two weeks); Oct. 5, Lexington (two weeks).

It was announced that the week of July 6 has been awarded to New York and the following week to Salem, N. H. These are tentative dates, however, and Secretary H. J. Kline will take them up with the two associations. If not satisfactory the meetings will open as previously planned at Cleveland on July 20.

The old officials of the association were re-elected as follows: P. K. Devereaux, Cleveland, President; Fred Postal; Detroit, Vice President; H. J. Kline, Cleveland, Secretary and Treasurer.

The place and date for the next annual meeting was not announced by President Deveraux.

Race Track to be Cut Up Into Lots.

OAKLAND, Cal., Jan. 13.—The Emeryville race track, former home of the California Jockey Club, is to be subdivided into home sites and building lots, it was announced here to-day by Thomas H. Williams, President of the club.

Vernon's Double in Japan.

The Broadway members of the Giants-White Sox around-the-world tour were delighted as they approached the dock at Yokohama, after their strenuous transpacific trip, to see a familiar face and figure looming head and shoulders above the diminutive natives, evidently there to welcome the travelers. "There's Bob Vernon!" shouted Mike Donlin. "Hello, Bob," came from all directions of the deck of the Empress of Japan. The big fellow's face was wreathed in smiles as he waved a welcome to those aboard. When they came ashore his hands were grasped by a dozen of the players who either live in New York or know it well. And the Vernon person was asked all sorts of questions about how long he had been in the banzai land, where were the places to go, and the usual tourist stuff. He was very affable and accommodating, and was with the party all during its stay in Japan. It wasn't until several of the globetrotters who had to forego the Australian and African portions of the tour returned to New York and ran into Bob at the fight in Madison Square Garden the other night that they discovered that the big "sport" was never in Japan in his life.

The Japan Bob Vernon must have been some joker, and, to further bear out the deception, he was a great wine buyer.

HOCKEY CLUB WINS CLOSE GAME AT RINK

Wanderers Finally Break Down Under Unceasing Attack Against Their Goal.

The Hockey Club, after struggling to their limit for forty minutes at St. Nicholas Rink last night, managed, by the narrowest of margins, to pull out a victory from the Wanderers by a score of 2 to 1. It's many a day since defensive work has been seen such as the Wanderer goal keeper "Mike" Mitchell offered. The Hockey Club shots rained on him like hail, but he was cool under fire and turned them aside with such tantalizing regularity that the game was almost over before the Hockey Club could shoot the winning goals past him.

Mitchell turned aside twenty-seven shots from the Hockey Club sticks before a score was made against him. Late in the second half, when the Hockey Club became desperate, they swept down on the plucky goal keeper and made the pace so fast that he was unable to turn aside the winning smashes. It was the best defensive hockey that has been at the rink this season. The stick work was so good and the men covered each other so well that neither team had a chance of scoring during the greater part of the game.

From the start of the game the Hockey Club teamwork was a shade better than that of the Wanderers, but the defensive play of their opponents was so strong that the Hockey Club rushes went for naught. It is seldom that Jimmy Britton, the leader of the Hockey Club, is held in check, but last night he was so successfully blocked that he was unable to make one successful run during the game.

The only place in the world colder than St. Nicholas Rink last night was the north pole. And yet, a fairly large crowd of hockey enthusiasts braved the arctic weather to see the game. The players had to keep on the jump all the time to prevent freezing. The best the spectators could do was to freeze, and smile as if they were enjoying it.

The Wanderers blossomed forth in new uniforms, with zebralike stripes, and the Hockey Club was also in gaudy colors. It was a picturesque sight to watch the fourteen striped skaters bunched in the wild mêlée on the ice.

The game at times became so rough that not only the players were tumbled on the ice, but also the officials. In the second half Kinsella smashed into Referee Ellis so hard that he sent him spinning over the ice, and for this breach of hockey etiquette Kinsella was exiled from the ice for three minutes. The spectators don't mind roughness among the players, but when they brought the officials into the roughhouse the crowd protested and yelled for extreme penalties.

The defensive work was very close and compact in the first half, and it was only by a long, lucky shot that the Wanderers scored and took the lead. After two minutes of play Kinsella of the Wanderers skated down the side of the rink, and taking a chance on a long side shot he smashed it past Lewis into the Hockey Club net.

Mitchell's goal guardianship was so airtight during the remaining time of the first period that there was no more scoring. The second half was rough and exciting, and, although the Hockey Club was always aggressive and carried the game to the Wanderers, it wasn't until after the second half was nearly over that they were able to penetrate Mitchell's net.

After thirteen minutes of play Bert White carried the puck down the ice and took a wide free shot at the net, and the puck slipped past Mitchell into the rigging, tying the score. A few minutes afterward the Hockey Club team work completely overwhelmed the Wanderers. Riley Castleman shot down the side of the rink and made a beautiful pass across to Howard, who shot the winning goal from a difficult angle. The line-up and summary:

Wanderers.	Position.	Hockey Club.
Mitchell	Goal	Lewis
Kinsella	Point	White
Aumond	Coverpoint	Britton
Macdonnell	Rover	Castleman
Paton	Centre	Mackenzie
A. Smith	Left wing	Howard
T. Smith	Right wing	Young

Goals—First half: First goal for Wanderers by Kinsella in 2:20. Second half: Second goal for Hockey Club by White in 13:35; third goal for Hockey Club by Howard in 14:49.

Penalties—Aumond, 2 minutes for slashing; Aumond, 2 minutes for tripping; Young, 2 minutes for cross-checking; Kinsella, 2 minutes for slugging; Howard, 2 minutes for slugging.

Referee—R. O. Ellis, St. Nicholas S. C. Umpire—R. L. von Bernuth, St. Nicholas S. C. Goal umpires—George Hallock, Crescent A. C., and Clyde Martin, Crescent A. C. Timer—W. J. Croker.

HOCKEY REFEREE ATTACKED.

Player Kinsella Strikes R. O. Ellis Several Blows After Game.

R. O. Ellis of St. Nicholas Skating Club, who refereed the hockey game at the rink last night between the Hockey Club and the Wanderers, was attacked after the game by Kinsella, one of the Wanderer players, and the official was the recipient of several hard punches before Kinsella was quieted.

Kinsella's attack was the result of a penalty which Ellis inflicted during the game. Kinsella, according to the official, deliberately skated against and knocked him down. There was no reason for Kinsella's action, as he was not chasing the puck at the time of the collision. Ellis promptly ruled Kinsella off the ice for a three-minute period, and the Wanderer skater protested loudly. The umpire, R. L. Von Bernuth, came to Ellis's assistance and finally persuaded Kinsella to leave the ice.

After the game, when the players were going to their rooms, Kinsella met Ellis and went at him with fists flying. Ellis is the smallest skater in the Amateur Hockey League, weighing about 108 pounds, while Kinsella is a husky athlete. Kinsella landed two or three punches on the diminutive Ellis before the other players realized what was happening.

Immediately there was a rush for Kinsella, and he was rushed to cover, although several of the Hockey Club skaters wanted to get at him and take Ellis's part in the fracas.

On account of his unwarranted action, it is likely that Kinsella will be barred from playing with the Wanderers. Ellis, it is said, will file charges against him, and the league will take action at its next meeting.

Princeton to Oppose Athletes' Expert Reports of Football Games.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Jan. 13.—Another effort of the Princton authorities to safeguard the amateur standing of their athletes was made known to-day when a member of the Board of Athletic Control announced that he would bring up before the board at its next meeting, which will probably occur this month, the matter of prohibiting Princeton football men from writing "expert" reports of football matches.

The sentiment of the authorities is against the practice and, while no rule has ever been made against it, the players who have written such stories have not gained in the opinion of the authorities. It is likely, in view of the apparent unanimity of opinion among the authorities, that some rule will be adopted at the meeting against players signing their names to critical "stories."

Earlier announcements of the board taking a stand against professional coaches, long-distance runs, and coaching from the bench in the big baseball games, opened the way for their announcement. The sentiment of the undergraduates is strongly back of the board in their effort to put a stop to the practice.

NO FOOTBALL CHANGES.

"Game at Present Is Satisfactory," Says Chairman Hall.

BOSTON, Jan. 13.—No material changes will be made in the football rules for next season, is the opinion of Edward K. Hall, Chairman of the Intercollegiate Football Rules Committee.

"I have heard and received no complaint against the present set of rules governing football," he said to-day. "As far as I know, no changes will be recommended at the meeting in New York. It seems to be the almost unanimous opinion of football men and of the intelligent football public that the game at present is satisfactory.

"Until it has had a much more complete development, it would hardly seem wise to consider any fundamental changes. Wherever and whenever there has been any discussion of the merits of the game as played last Fall, there has been no suggestion that any basic change would be made in the rules."

BOB BURMAN TO DRIVE.

Auto Pilot to Build Car for Indianapolis Sweepstakes.

INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 13.—It has been officially announced that Bob Burman, who originally contemplated entering the next 500-mile race on the local Motor Speedway unattached, had agreed with Horace Thomson of Battle Creek, Mich., to build and drive the Anel, a machine already nominated by the latter. In addition, Burman is to construct a duplicate racer, to be driven by another pilot, not yet announced.

It has been a pet theory of Burman's since the last 500-mile set-to, captured by Goux in a Peugeot, that a machine could be built in this country that would do as well or better than any ever constructed abroad. It was with this idea in mind that he began to turn out his present fliers. After the race Burman plans to manufacture cars on a commercial basis.

Wrestling Tournament at Garden.

The big end of a $5,000 purse and the chance to wrestle Frank Gotch in the near future for the world's title is the bait held out to the winner of the international wrestling tournament which will be inaugurated at Madison Square Garden to-night. Nineteen of the leading wrestlers in the game have paid $100 entrance fee, this money to go into a sweepstakes which will be added to the prize money. The full list of entries and their nationalities is as follows: Aberg, Finn; Fristansky, Bohemian; Lurich, Russian; Mamutoff, Cossak; Schoenlein, American; Simmard, Canadian; Nokuf, American; Krause, Bohemian; Barletti, Italian; Haren, Russian-American; Alvarez, Spaniard; Henderson, American; Hensen, Norwegian; Samson, German; Jenkins, American; Regalski, Hungarian; McLoughlin, Irish; McGrath, Irish-American.

Cornell Football Schedule.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., Jan. 13.—A football schedule of ten games was announced to-night by the Cornell management after it had been ratified by the Faculty committee on student affairs. For the first time since 1906 Cornell will play a game in New York, Brown having been scheduled for a contest at the Polo Grounds on Oct. 24. Harvard has changed her policy and Cornell is not to play the Crimson, and Lafayette was dropped because the Ithacans could not see their way clear to play a home-and-home game. For the first time in years the team will be away three times during the season. The schedule follows:

Sept. 26, Ursinus at Ithaca; Sept. 26, University of Pittsburgh at Ithaca; Oct. 3, Colgate at Ithaca; Oct. 10, Carlisle Indians at Ithaca; Oct. 17, Bucknell at Ithaca; Oct. 24, Brown at New York; Oct. 31, Holy Cross at Ithaca; Nov. 7, Franklin and Marshall at Ithaca; Nov. 14, Michigan at Ann Arbor; Nov. 26, Thanksgiving Day, Pennsylvania at Philadelphia.

International Skating Dates.

CHICAGO, Jan. 13.—Dates for skating championship races were given out to-day by A. I. Blanchard, President of the International Skating Union of America. A series of races will be held at Detroit on Jan. 19 and 20; Cleveland, Jan. 21 and 22, and at Saranac, N. Y., Jan. 27, 28, and 29. The skater winning the largest number of points in the entire series will be declared the amateur champion for 1914. Thirty points will be allowed for first place, twenty for second, and ten for third.

Athletes Must Register in Canada.

The Registration Committee of the A. A. U. has received word from Walter F. Trivett, Secretary of the Ontario branch of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada, that in future all American athletes registered in the Amateur Athletic Union of the United States desiring to compete in Canada must also register in Canada before being allowed to compete in their territory.

CUTLER OUTPLAYS YAMADA WITH CUE

Boston Billiardist Runs Tally in 14.1 Balkline Up to 1,000 Points.

Albert G. Cutler of Boston continued his winning form in the second day of the match at 14.1 balkline billiards with Koji Yamada, the Japanese expert, at Doyle's yesterday, winning the second block of 500 points by defeating the Oriental 500 to 447. In the afternoon game of 200 points Cutler won 200 to 178, and repeated in the evening tilt of 300 points, 300 to 267. This makes the grand total of 1,000 for Cutler against 921 for Yamada.

The evening game was long-drawn out, with low tallies prevailing, and it was only by the advantage gained in the afternoon contest that Cutler was able to finish the victor. He did not display his usual good open-table style, and never threatened to run any long clusters as in the opening game, when he ran a string of 106. His best collection was in the afternoon session, when he ran 76. Yamada played a more steady game, and only on few occasions failed to score, his tallying being more consistent, but not extensive enough to put him in the lead. The match is for 2,500 points, and has three days more to run, with afternoon and evening contests scheduled.

The evening game was a see-saw contest, with victory in sight for either player on numerous occasions. There was no decided advantage, but in the last five innings Cutler made a brace of double figure tallies and thereby won out. His average was 8 20-35, and Yamada's was 7 31-34.

Yamada opened the afternoon game with a spurt, and for a time threatened to pull away from Cutler. Beginning with a tally of 11 the first time at the table, Yamada ran five innings without a blank score, while his opponent fell down three times for scoreless periods. The Jap made his highest run in the seventh, tallying 43, and sent his string soaring, the score being 85 to 24 in favor of Yamada.

Realizing his position, Cutler braced, and in the ninth inning cleverly assembled a cluster of 76 points. It was a clever exhibition made largely by open-table work, combining single cushion and kiss shots. This stroke gave him a century count against 89 for Yamada, and from here on the Bostonian held the upper hand until the end. He backed up his high run with a score of 45 in the twelfth, and ran out the double century with an unfinished run of 33, winning 200 to 178 in sixteen innings. Cutler averaged 12 8-16, while the Jap's average was 11 13-15. Cutler's run of 45 in the twelfth period was the first exhibition of line nursing and the only really close playing seen thus far. The scores:

LEONARD'S NEW TITLE.

Displaces Hal A. Coleman as Class B Amateur Champion at 18.2.

W. Leonard, by his victory over Hal A. Coleman, the title holder, last night at Maurice Daly's Academy in the final game of the amateur Class B billiard championship, 300 to 262, becomes the champion. Leonard won all five games required by the tournament rules, and although a victory for the champion last night over Leonard would not have retained for him the title it would have made a tie between Leonard and C. Connors of Philadelphia, who won four games and lost one. Leonard's victory relegated Coleman to third place, with Connors coming in for second honors, losing only one contest, which was to the new champion. Coleman lost to both Leonard and Connors, having a record of three wins and two defeats.

Leonard, in addition to taking first prize, also captured the high average prize with 9 2-31, while the deposed champion took with his third prize the trophy for the tournament high run, which was 59.

The final day's playing involved two games, the afternoon contest going to Connors over Fred Lowenthal, 300 to 265, in a poorly contested match. Connors held the upper hand throughout and went out with an average of 4 40-65. The latter was the surprise of the tournament, for after losing his opening game by a big advantage to G. P. B. Clarke he showed a reversal and defeated his other four opponents in easy fashion.

The Coleman-Leonard game in the evening was closely contested throughout, Leonard getting the edge toward the end, with several two figure tallies, which gave him the championship.

Boyd Wins Close Billiard Game.

Frank W. Boyd defeated Claude R. Lewis last night in the amateur Class C 18.2 balkline billiard tournament at Keeney's Academy in Brooklyn by the score of 200 to 198, in fifty-eight innings. Never more than fifteen points separated the contestants. The winner made high runs of 18, 15, and 12, with an average of 3 26-58. Lewis's high runs were two of 19 and 18, with an average of 3 27-57.

Pugilist Finds Gold Watch.

William Mohr, a Boston pugilist, found a gold watch and chain in Madison Square Garden Tuesday night after the Gibbons-McAllister boxing bout. Mohr turned the watch and chain over to Billy Gibson, manager of the Garden A. C., who awaits a claim for them by their owner.

DINNER FOR YACHTSMEN.

Harold Vanderbilt Elected Commodore of Seawanhaka-Corinthian.

Harold S. Vanderbilt was elected Commodore of the Seawanhaka-Corinthian Yacht Club at the annual meeting and mess dinner last night at the Hollow House. It was the thirty-ninth annual meeting and more than one hundred members and friends attended the dinner, which was an enjoyable affair. The reports of the Secretary and Treasurer showed the organization to be in excellent condition, while that of the Chairman of the Regatta Committee gave in detail the competitive proceedings of the past Summer.

In view of the America's Cup races next October the club is preparing for an active year and many important events well be scheduled during the early months of the Summer. The following officers were elected for 1914.

Commodore—Harold S. Vanderbilt, schooner Vagrant; Vice Commodore—Daniel Bacon, the Myrtle; Rear Commodore—Howard C. Smith, schooner Ahmakola; Secretary—George Nichols; Treasurer—Colgate Hoyt; Measurer—Alexander Orr; Trustees (Class of 1917)—Robert L. Cuthbert, Clinton Mackenzie, and August Heckscher; Race Committee—Victor I. Cumnock, Beverly R. Robinson, Colgate Hoyt, Jr., Henry H. Landon, and Alfred R. Whitney, Jr.; Committee on Lines and Models—John Hyslop, Jonathan Thompson, and Robert L. Cuthbert; Law Committee—Eliot Tuckerman, William A. W. Stewart, and Alfred Ely, Jr.; Committee on Seamanship and Navigation—George M. Rodman, Arthur Curtiss James, William J. Matheson, and Willis D. Wood.

Fraser Runs Fast Mile.

E. F. Fraser, the crack middle distance runner of the Irish-American Athletic Club, representing Company B, carried off the honors last night in the monthly athletic games of the Twenty-second Regiment Engineers in the armory at 168th Street and Broadway, where he won the mile event from scratch in the fast time of 4:30. Fraser conceded big handicaps, but before traveling three-quarters of the distance he overhauled his field and then came home alone, winning by eighty yards. Fraser made an effort to capture the 600-yard event, from which he also started from the scratch mark, but failed by two yards. A. H. Golder, with fifteen yards, won by a yard, with W. Ritchie on the thirty-four-yard mark second, the same distance in front of Fraser. The summary:

100-Yard Dash, Handicap.—Won by Walter Kirby, Co. L, (1 yard;) John Onken, Co. B, (scratch,) second; B. Trerise, Co. L, (2 yards,) third. Time—0:10 2-5.

600-Yard Run, Handicap.—Won by A. H. Golder, Co. L, (15 yards;) W. Ritchie, Co. F, (34 yards,) second; E. F. Fraser, Co. B, (scratch,) third. Time—1:18 1-5.

880-Yard Novice.—Won by J. J. O'Conner, Co. F; W. Rimm, Co. E, second; R. Fraser, Co. B, third. Time—1:18.

One-Mile Run, Handicap.—Won by E. F. Fraser, Co. B, (scratch;) H. Ives, Co. L, (25 yards,) second; H. J. Breen, Co. L, (60 yards,) third. Time—4:30.

Weinert Outpoints Kenny.

Young Weinert, the light heavyweight of Orange, N. J., outpointed Roy Kenny, a recent arrival from California, in the main bout of ten rounds at Brown's Gymnasium A. A. last night. Kenny was the aggressor from the start, and he kept boring in, being willing to take a punch in an attempt to land one, but Weinert had the advantage in reach, and used a left jab effectively in keeping Kenny at a distance. In the second round Kenny landed one of his hard, wild swings on his opponent's jaw, and Weinert was groggy for the moment, but recuperated quickly. Again in the seventh and tenth rounds Kenny managed to land one of his terrific punches, but Weinert brushed them aside.

The semi-final bout, scheduled to go ten rounds, in which the contestants were Al Jordan, a Woodside featherweight, and Charlie Tuttle of Harlem, ended in the second session, when the latter landed a hard right uppercut to the point of Jordan's jaw, which sent the Woodside boxer to the floor of the ring, where he was counted out.

Michigan "Aggies" High Gunners.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—Michigan Agricultural College, with 965 points out of a possible 1,000, carried off the high score in the initial matches of the intercollegiate shooting championship of the United States, the results of which were announced here to-day. The colleges are divided into three classes, according to their standing in previous competitions. The scores for each class in the opening match follow:

Class A—Minnesota, 940, vs. Georgia, 868; California, 917, vs. Massachusetts "Tech.," 901; Michigan "Aggies," 965, vs. Iowa, 953; West Virginia, 943, vs. Princeton, defaulted; Purdue, 912, vs. Massachusetts "Aggies," defaulted; Harvard and Norwich also failed to fire their first match.

Class B—Vermont, 943, vs. Kansas, 845; Cornell, 934, vs. Columbia, defaulted; U. S. Naval, 926, vs. Wisconsin, 906; Lehigh, 890, vs. Dartmouth, 827; Washington State, 904, vs. Maine, 876; Oklahoma "Aggies" and Clemson failed to report.

Amateur Wrestling Tournament.

The Hungarian-American A. C. will hold its second annual wrestling tournament on Jan. 23 and 24 at the clubhouse, 239 East Sixty-second Street. In addition to special prizes for winners and second men a trophy will be awarded to the club scoring the most points during the tournament, the scoring to be similar to that in the Amateur Athletic Union events. Among the clubs entered are the Boys' Club, Bronx Church House, Scandinavian-American Athletic League, Greek-American, German-American, and several branches of the Y. M. C. A. A number of individual entries have been received. The Hungarian-American Club will be well represented in the tournament.

Minor Basket Ball Results.

La Salle Academy basket ball team yesterday afternoon defeated Fordham Prep team by the score of 30 to 12.

BANKRUPTCY NOTICES.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT, Southern District of New York.—In the matter of SAMUEL HERSCHDORFER, Alleged Bankrupt.

It appearing to my satisfaction by the petition of Arthur Leonard Rosenberg, verified the 10th day of January, 1914, that a petition was filed in this court on December 1st, praying that the above-named Samuel Herschdorfer be adjudicated a bankrupt, and that a subpoena directed to the said alleged bankrupt was duly issued out of this court to the Marshal of this district, and that said Marshal has been unable to serve the same, and that said alleged bankrupt is not now within this district so that personal service may be made upon him, and that diligent efforts have been made to ascertain his whereabouts, and that he is not now within the jurisdiction of this court, it is now, on motion of Arthur Leonard Rosenberg, the attorney for petitioning creditors,

Ordered, that the above-named alleged bankrupt plead, answer, or demur on or before the 31st day of January, 1914, to the petition herein filed in the office of the Clerk of this court on the 1st day of December, 1913, and in case of his failure to plead, answer or demur adjudication shall be made, granting the prayer of the said petitioner, and it is further Ordered, that this order be published in The New York Times once a week for two successive weeks, said publication to be inserted not later than the 14th day of January, 1914, and that a copy of this order be mailed to the said alleged bankrupt at his last known place of business, No. 149 Ridge Street, in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on or before the day of the first publication.

Dated New York, Jan. 12th, 1914.
J. M. MAYER, U. S. D. J.

IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE UNITED States for the Southern District of New York.—In Bankruptcy.—In the matter of IGNATZ GREENBERGER, Bankrupt.—No. 19,292.

To the creditors of Ignatz Greenberger of the City, County, and State of New York and district aforesaid, bankrupt:

Notice is herby given that on the 7th day of January, A. D. 1914, the said Ignatz Greenberger was duly adjudicated bankrupt, and that the first meeting of creditors will be held at my office, No. 71 Broadway, City and County of New York, N. Y., on the 27th day of January, A. D. 1914, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, at which time the said creditors may attend, prove their claims, appoint a trustee, examine the bankrupt, and transact such other business as may properly come before said meeting.

Dated January 13th, 1914.
STANLEY W. DEXTER,

BANKRUPTCY SALES.

IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE United States for the Southern District of New York.—In Bankruptcy.—In the matter of A. JOSEPH KOMAROW, Bankrupt.—Chas. Shongood, U. S. Auctioneer for the Southern District of New York in Bankruptcy, sells this day, Wednesday, Jan. 14th, 1914, by order of the court, at 2 P. M., at 2,122 7th Av., Borough of Manhattan, assets of the above bankrupt, consisting of furs, skins, scarfs, muffs, machines, fixtures, &c.

ALEXANDER A. TAUSKY, Receiver.

Back numbers of newspapers and magazines are frequently needed by librarians, writers and others. Sellers offer them in THE NEW YORK TIMES REVIEW OF BOOKS every Sunday.—Adv.

BUSINESS NOTES.

The John W. Henson Company of New York City has been incorporated under the laws of this State, with a capital of $50,000. The concern's headquarters will be at 141 Fifth Avenue. It will deal in imported lines of tweeds and other fabrics and also in lace curtains.

The following firms within the last month have been admitted to membership in the National Wholesale Dry Goods Association: Rauh Brothers & Co. and the Mansmann Brothers Company, Pittsburgh; D. B. Levi & Brother and Kessel & Buerger, Buffalo; Whicard Brothers & Co., Norfolk; W. C. Brown, Philadelphia; the Daniel Miller Company, Johnson, Boyd & Co., John E. Hurst & Co., and Carter, Webster & Co., Baltimore.

The annual meeting of Sidney Blumenthal & Co., Inc., will be held to-day at the offices of the company, 395 Fourth Avenue.

General exports, exclusive of specie, from this port last week were valued at $17,773,584, as compared with $15,102,560 in the previous week, and $24,499,338 in the corresponding week of last year. The total valuation of the year's exports to date is $23,876,144, compared with $39,554,165 for the corresponding period of last year.

CONSULAR TRADE NOTES.

As a result of representations made by the American Charge d'Affaires at Peking, a decision has been made by the Revenue Council of China directing that drawback certificates shall be issued for fuel oil on which import duty has been paid, which is to be used as fuel on vessels touching at Chinese ports, in the same manner as drawback certificates are issued for bunker coal under similar conditions.

Following an application for exemption from export duty of wool clipped from salted sheepskins, on the ground that such skins themselves are free of duty, a decision has been rendered by the Government of Uruguay to the effect that wool clipped from sheepskins is included in the designation "wool of all kinds," for which a specific rate of export duty is demanded.

The Consul General at Halifax reports that the contract to construct piers in connection with the general scheme for the new ocean and railway terminals has been awarded to Walsh Brothers & Stewart of St. Paul, Minn.

SIDELIGHTS ON SELLING.

Reports of a good prospect for lace business this Spring that have come from the Middle West are beginning to be verified here by the increase of business coming forward. Light laces are most in demand from all accounts.

A great deal of wonder is being expressed in the woolen trade as to the levels at which Fall dress goods will be opened. The reductions in the men's wear end of the trade are thought, however, to presage liberal cutting of prices on dress goods.

There is still no apparent falling off in the demand for high-grade knitted silk neckwear for men. But the call for the cheaper and medium grades is said to be not all that could be desired.

SATISFIED JUDGMENTS.

The first name is that of the debtor, the second that of the creditor and the date that when judgment was filed:

IN THE BUSINESS WORLD

Analysis of Compensation Law.

The Merchants' Association of New York is sending to its members a pamphlet which analyses the new Workmen's Compensation law of this State. The analysis was prepared by William H. Hotchkiss, former Superintendent of Insurance of New York.

Elect Officers for 1914.

These officers were re-elected yesterday by Dieckerhoff, Raffloer & Co., 564 Broadway: President, R. Erbsloeh; Vice President, J. M. Klaess; Treasurer, E. C. Dieckerhoff. The Board of Directors, which is made up of the officers and Julius Loewenthal and E. F. Drewson, also was re-elected. The annual meeting of A. Steinhardt & Bro., 860 Broadway, which was set for yesterday, was adjourned. David Rosenthal is President of this concern.

Shoe Manufacturers Meet To-day.

The annual convention of the National Boot and Shoe Manufacturers' Association will begin to-day at the Hotel Astor. It is expected that about 300 delegates will attend. Among the speakers at the association dinner, which will be held to-night at the Astor, will be Bishop W. A. Quayle of St. Paul, Representative J. Adam Bede of Minnesota, W. A. Marble, President of the Merchants' Association, and W. H. McElroy. The President of the Manufacturers' Association is A. S. Kreider, Annville, Penn., and the Secretary is Sol Wile of Rochester.

Crude Rubber Demand Fair.

There was a fair demand yesterday at the opening of the fortnightly auction of crude rubber in London. Cable dispatches received here at noon said that out of the 1,200 tons of plantation grades offered, 310 tons had been sold. Smoked sheets brought 2s 4d a pound, while first pale crepe was held at 2s 2¾d. Smoked sheets showed no change from prices at the last previous sale, but pale crepe was off ½d. Up-river fine was held at 3s ½d regular. In New York the market was without special feature. The spot price asked for up-river fine here was 74½ cents a pound, and for pale crepe 56½ cents.

Shoe Retailers Elect Officers.

The convention of the National Shoe Retailers' Association ended yesterday with the election of the following officers: President, A. C. McGowin of Philadelphia; First Vice President, J. H. O'Connor, Chicago; Second Vice President, W. N. Laird, Pittsburgh; Secretary, A. H. Geuting, Philadelphia, and Treasurer, E. D. Gildersleeve of Poughkeepsie, N. Y. A Board of Governors also was elected. Several papers relating to trade matters were read at the afternoon session. The annual dinner of the association was held last night at the Hotel Astor. The speakers were John Armour, H. N. Casson, and T. James Fernley.

May Use Baby Shark Skin for Shoes

The newest fancy leather in the shoe manufacturing trade is called "baby shark skin." When tanned, it is said, this skin makes a distinctive leather that is durable and easily worked. Some of the shoe manufacturers are much interested in this new skin, and it is thought that for some purposes the leather will be popular. Not all of the manufacturers, however, look upon the new leather with favor. One of them said yesterday that it never would be used extensively. Porpoise skin, he said, was used for uppers on men's storm shoes some time ago, but that it had not proved satisfactory either in wearing quality or appearance. The porpoise skin, he said, was too oily and the shark skin would prove as unsatisfactory in that respect as the porpoise leather.

Coal Business is Improving.

"The retail trade in anthracite has picked up somewhat in the last few days," The Coal Trade Journal will say to-day, "but the wholesale trade shows little improvement as yet. With local dealers stocked as heavily as they are, the cold spell must continue for at least a week before they will have to do much buying. There is not the pressure to sell that there was before the holidays, and prices are firmer on individual coal. The greatest improvement is seen in egg, which some shippers were selling 50 cents below circular a month or so ago. The ending of the boatmen's strike was followed by a partial cleaning up of the heavy accumulations of bituminous at the loading ports. There is still a lot of free coal at the tidewater piers, however, and some of it is being offered very cheap."

BUSINESS TROUBLES.

F. C. GEVIN & CO.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against Frank C. Gevin, doing business as F. C. Gevin & Co., wholesale and retail dealer in raincoats, 60 West Twenty-third Street, with a branch store in Philadelphia, by these creditors: Preiss Brothers, $1,500; Daniel Davis, $284, and Felix Neumark, $550. More Return on Your Money

If your total annual net income is less than the taxable amount fixed by the Federal Government, the tax-exempt feature of municipal bonds is to you of no practical value. So why not buy other types of equally sound bonds yielding better returns? Moreover, in view of the recent substantial advance in prices for tax-exempt municipal bonds, to the practical exclusion of similar improvement for other types of bonds, investors generally would do well, in our judgment, to acquire at present prices Public Utility, Railroad, Equipment, and Canadian Municipal Bonds of high standard. Our Circular No. 1401 describes a well-selected list of such bonds, and will be sent you promptly on request.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks and Bonds Continue to Improve—Gold Sent to France; Its Effects.

Further indications were afforded in the stock market yesterday that the underlying tendency is toward improvement. According to many observers this is true not only of the financial but also of the commercial world. Already the steel trade seems to have turned upward from the depression into which it recently declined, and this may very reasonably be taken as a suggestion of what is already happening or what may soon be expected in many other lines. Sources of probable irregularity in the record of business and of the stock market are perceived, but it is noteworthy that an increasing number are finding fresh grounds for encouragement. The striking betterment which began to manifest itself in the first few days of the new year in the investment market is being maintained, and this is in several ways a more noteworthy development than the upward drift which has been shown by stocks. The latter, however, is in keeping with the lines along which business and financial sentiment has lately been formulated wherein is a change for the better which is by no means the least of the favorable developments of recent days.

There was begun yesterday a gold export movement to Paris which may contribute in no small measure to a lessening of tension in a quarter which of all the great financial markets has so far been the least responsive to the general tendencies making for improvement in the monetary position. It was believed that special inducements were being offered by the French market to attract gold from New York, as was done a year ago, when Paris became the beneficiary of a gold export movement from New York which went on interruptedly during the first six or seven months of last year. France is taking gold because it needs it more than any other market, and the gold is going from New York because ours is the market best able to spare it. In view of the redundant reserve position here the loss of gold would have to run to a larger figure than any which is now suggested to prove the source of any embarrassment. And while we are losing gold to France we are gaining it from Canada. The inflow from the latter quarter may well prove slower than the outward movement to France, but as the account now stands we have received from Canada within a week within $500,000 of the $2,000,000 which yesterday was taken for export to Paris.

The gold which we now send to France no doubt will contribute to the success of the installment of the national loan which is to be offered there at the end of this month. This gold movement may well have influence extending far beyond that particular security issue, for we are probably in a position to spare enough to ease considerably the French money market. All of Europe and ourselves by reflection would benefit by an important change for the better in a market which for so long was regarded as the best supplied of all, but which recently has felt more than any other the financial effect of the wars in Southeastern Europe. It is believed that much gold is hoarded in France, and it may be that our own contribution to the French supply will start a chain of influences which will ultimately call this gold from its hiding places.

The outflow of gold will no doubt serve as occasion for recalling the opinion lately expressed in some banking quarters that one result of the establishment of the new banking and currency system would be to cause large exports of the precious metal. It is not necessary, however, to look to the new banking law for an explanation of the movement which is now underway to France. Thatt is sufficiently accounted for by French necessities, which are in nowise related to our financial legislation, and by the heavy inflow of cash to New York and the accompanying decline in interest rates here, neither of which is fairly attributable to the fact that we are about to pass to a new banking system. What the effect of this gold export movement will be upon bank rates abroad remains to be seen. At the moment the Paris discount market affords no indication of a near-at-hand reduction in the official rate of the Bank of France. The French discount market, however, has still to feel the favorable effect of the gold which it is to receive from New York. Another reduction in the English rate and a lowering of the German rate seem at this time even more probable than a cut in the French rate.

A good many sharp advances were included in the record of the day's Stock Exchange trading, and these much outnumbered the exceptional downward movements. The list as a whole moved forward, in keeping with the drift of values which has been under way since the beginning of the year. This improvement appeared all the more significant of the dominant phase of sentiment, in view of the fact that Wall Street is still worrying more or less over affairs at Washington, notably over the scope and character of the programme for business legislation which is to be unfolded in the President's coming special message. There is still much difference of opinion in the financial community regarding the probable tenor of the President's discussion of this subject.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Central's Valuable Equity.

If the valuation which has been put upon the property and stock holdings of the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern by experts engaged by holders of the stock outside the Central's treasury be taken as the real value of the road, the Central shareholders have an equity in the Lake Shore which is worth more than the Central itself is selling for. At $1,200 a share, the Central's holdings of 452,892 shares would be worth about $545,000,000, or say $240 per share of New York Central. The disparity between the valuation figure and of Lake Shore its selling price is striking, but it is expected that the higher figure will be approximated when the Interstate Commerce Commission's physical valuation of the carriers is made, if the cost of production is taken into account. A similar condition was found in the valuation of the Northern Pacific as made by the courts of Minnesota. If the railroads were to be allowed to earn 6 per cent. on their reproduction cost, and were taxed on their capitalization, it would be accepted as a satisfactory arrangement by most of the companies.

A Napoleon of Finance.

If the reports from the Mexican capital are true, President Huerta has cut the Gordian knot of many of his troubles by simply issuing a decree suspending for a year the payment of interest on all of his country's indebtedness, foreign and domestic. He has already suspended, at various times, payment to his soldiers. The National Railways of Mexico suspended the Jan. 1 payment on its bonds in another way, by offering certificates of indebtedness in lieu of cash. Bankers who have participated in Mexican financing operations said yesterday that they had not been able to confirm the announcement regarding the Government's policy toward its obligations, but that if it proved true, it completely destroyed whatever remnant of credit Huerta had here and abroad.

A Check to Industrial Financing.

The brief and disastrous careers of several manufacturing companies which were taken up by the New York banking houses when the craze for expansion was on, are responsible for a decision on the part of some of the bankers to leave this kind of financing strictly alone in the future. Firms which have been manifestly successful in financing railroad, public utility and industrial companies whose shares were listed and which had been long enough in business to become thoroughly settled, have come to grief in the promotion of new manufacturing companies and combinations. A few years ago a man who had a small mill that was a factor in the textile trade was approached several times with a proposition to sell out for stock in a combination which was expected to close up all of the independent mills. He refused, and has made a good profit each year, although the combination has been wrecked by its overhead charges. The bankers knew the financing end, but they were short on knowledge of the textile business.

Steel Trust Cuts Down Accidents.

In reviewing the last year and preceding years of its work, the Bureau of Safety of the United States Steel Corporation says that since 1906, $6,000,000 has been spent, and it is felt that those accidents for which the employer is responsible have been eliminated largely. "An analysis of the causes of accidents," says the report of the bureau, which was issued yesterday, "shows that a large proportion of them are due to the carelessness of workmen. In an endeavor to eliminate these accidents a very active campaign of education was started by all the subsidiary companies some time ago. Entertainments are given at the different plants or mines. Unsafe practices are shown in contrast with the proper and safe method of doing work. Motion pictures and lantern slides are employed, and are relieved by music and other things of an entertaining character. Twenty-one such entertainments were given by one company last year. Another company, in conjunction with a Public Service Company, entertained at different times some 8,000 school children. They saw moving pictures illustrating the dangers of the street and of their play."

An Old Phrase Revived.

That favorite expression of the Street, "a creeping bull market," was heard yesterday after so long an interval that it had been considered almost obsolete. For a session in which the turnover of stocks was well below 300,000 shares, prices were considered to have given a good account of themselves. No effort was apparent to put up the more prominent speculative issues, and floor traders evidently thought that they could make more money by turning attention to some of the low-priced industrial stocks. While the issues which usually take the lead were neglected, they were not allowed to run counter to the others and tagged along with fair net gains. At times, when it appeared as though short sellers were testing the market, the supply of stock seemed to be small, and little was brought out. Recessions were soon erased by moderate purchases. It was a quiet session, but bullish exponents of quotations professed to get considerable satisfaction from it.

Effect of Copper Figures Felt.

It would seem as though the Copper Producers' statement, with its great increase of unmarketed copper, acted as a check on whatever domestic buying of the metal was being considered before the figures were issued. A few days before the statement for December was issued copper was taken in quantity for export, and it was hoped in the trade that buying for use on this side of the water would begin to pick up soon. The revival has not appeared yet. The price for electrolytic, which was rather firm at 15 cents when the year closed, has receded to 14⅝ cents, with "second-hands" selling small amounts below this figure.

OUTSIDE SECURITIES

Smaller Volume of Trading in the Oil Issues and but Few Notable Changes.

A decline of 25 points in Atlantic Refining was a feature of yesterday's trading in the oil issues. Advances of 11 points in Standard Oil of Ohio and 4 points in Standard Oil of New York were the only other changes of particular consequence. Among the industrial issues, Kelly Springfield Tire advanced 6 points and the preferred 6½ points. New York State 4½s, when issued, sold at 105½ to 105⅝.

BOURSES OF EUROPE

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Wednesday, Jan. 14.—The Times in its City article says to-day:

"The supply of money remained plentiful yesterday, and rates were unchanged for daily advances and short fixtures. Discount rates were very firm, three months' bills being quoted a shade higher.

"Paris cheque rose 1¼c. It is expected that the Bank will receive a fair proportion of South African bar gold this week.

"Carry-over arrangements on the Stock Exchange were easily completed in most departments, money being very plentiful, while commitments were generally on a small scale.

"The tone of the markets on the whole remained dull, but gilt-edged stocks and scrips of recent issues were again well supported by steady investment purchases. Wall Street was a small seller at the close; hence the dullness of the American market. The foreign market reflected the poor tone of the Bourses, while Mexican railway stocks remained in a friendless condition.

"South African shares were depressed at the latest news regarding the labor position, inducing sales both on local and Continental account.

"It was understood that arrangements were practically completed for an issue in London of a portion of the new Uruguayan 5 per cent. loan of £1,000,000, of which £400,000 will be offered abroad and the remaining £600,000 in London at 91.

"The Times says surprise was expressed yesterday at the withdrawal of £100,000 from the Bank on Monday for France, as at the current exchange the operation represented a loss. It was suggested that the real destination of the gold might be a little further off than France, perhaps Switzerland.

"We understand, however," The Times continues, "that these sovereigns have not left London and were sent back to the Bank yesterday. It has been remarked in the market that if France wanted gold she could have it more cheaply from the United States, the New York exchange on Paris being at a level involving a less loss than on London operation.

"Subsequently a report was current that £400,000 actually had been engaged in New York on French account. This report proved correct, and possibly, the news of this operation being arranged may have led to countermanding the dispatch of the 100,000 sovereigns to Paris yesterday."

PARIS, Jan. 13.—The Bourse opened weak but closed better to-day.

Three per cent. rentes, 85f 90c for the account.

BERLIN, Jan. 13.—Prices closed slightly better on the Boerse to-day.

CHICAGO & ALTON'S REPORT.

Largest Gross Earnings and Smallest Net in Company's History.

The Chicago & Alton Railroad, more than half of whose preferred stock is owned by the Union Pacific, reports for the year ended June 30, 1913, the largest gross earnings and the smallest net in the history of the company. After providing for taxes, interest charges, and guaranteed dividends there was a deficit of $1,883,000 from the year's operations, which compares with a deficit of $303,000 in 1912 and a surplus of $157,000 in 1911. A considerable part of the added costs was due to extraordinary charges made by President B. A. Worthington to make up for neglect in previous years.

The total transportation revenues last year were $15,114,000, an increase of $718,000. Operating costs increased $1,955,000. The total income was only $1,937,000, out of which to meet $3,820,000 in charges.

"The deficit which accrued during the year under net income of $1,883,000 was due principally to deferred and special maintenance charges taken up and extraordinary costs of operation due to the physical condition of the property and equipment," President Worthington explained. "As the commencement of the fiscal year, both in point of maintenance and capacity, the congestion during the Winter months, when a large amount of trafic was diverted from the company, the excess cost accruing from hire of equipment account, reclaim charges per diem on delayed cars, engine rentals, &c., and the handicap due to lack of yard facilities and the large amount of motive power out of service for repairs were adverse influences exerted during a period when under normal conditions good operating results might have been expected. With the restoration of the physical property to more nearly normal condition, the general improvement effected in roadway, together with the clearing of liabilities in the way of unsettled claims, it should be possible to handle a larger volume of business in future periods and at relatively less expense."

MORE GOLD GOES TO PARIS.

Lazard Freres Announce an Engagement of Bars Worth $2,000,000.

Exactly a week later than the movement began last year, the first shipment of gold bars to Paris for 1914 was announced yesterday with an engagement of $2,000,000. Lazard Frères were the shippers. The transfer was the result apparently of a "special" arrangement, as exchange rates are not up to the theoretical level which calls for the profitable purchase of gold, but Wall Street expected that other shipments would follow.

Last Janurary $17,154,217 in gold was shipped out of this centre to Europe and South America, of which $10,000,000 went to France. The total for the first three months of the year was $46,986,079 and later engagements brought the aggregate withdrawls for 1913 up to $66,000,000.

When the movement began last year, demand bills were quoted in the foreign exchange market at 4.8620. By the end of the week the rate had advanced to 4.8695 a procedure which was out of the ordinary as gold shipments tend to reduce instead of increasing exchange quotations. Demand sterling was quoted yesterday at 4.8685.

Gold to the amount of $400,000 was received by the Merchants National Bank yesterday from Montreal. So far on the present transfer of the metal from Canada $1,500,000 has come to this city.

FAVOR RATE INCREASE.

Hide and Leather Association on Side of Railroads.

The Hide and Leather Association of New York adopted resolutions yesterday favoring the 5 per cent. increase in freight rates asked by the Eastern railroads, in order that "business may speedily have the stimulating influence of vigorous railway purchases, and that the percentage of unemployed may be quickly thereby decreased."

In presenting the resolution, J. Stevens Ulman of the F. Blumenthal Company said:

"The rate increase asked for is such a small one comparatively, and the consequent increased charge incumbent upon each shipper is such a small increased expense in the conduct of his business, that so far as I can see, it would be many times overcome by the ability of manufacturers and merchants to conduct a normal, instead of what threatens to be a constantly decreasing, business."

FRANK K. STURGIS TO RETIRE

He Intends to Resign as a Governor of the Stock Exchange.

Frank K. Sturgis, a member of Strong, Sturgis & Co. and one of the senior members of the New York Stock Exchange, announced yesterday his desire to resign as a Governor of the Exchange. He intends, he explained, to retire from business in order to travel extensively in Europe, and on his return will make his home in Lenox.

Mr. Sturgis joined the Exchange in 1869, and became a Governor in 1877. He has served as President, as Chairman of the Law Committee, and as a member of the Committee on Administration. He was a close friend of the late J. P. Morgan and a member of the latter's Corsair Club.

Odd Lots for the Large Investor

The corporation official bought 100 shares of diversified securities in Odd Lots because he knew the advantage of distributing his investment capital widely and of having his orders executed on the Odd Lot Plan.

Do you know the advantage of Odd Lots?

Send for Booklet 13A, "Odd Lot Investment."

CUT LITTLE BOARD FEES.

Transfer Rate on Seats Reduced One-Half for Six Months.

Any one desiring a Consolidated Exchange membership at a bargain will be accommodated after Feb. 1. The Board of Governors announced yesterday that in order to increase the number of members the transfer fee on seats would be cut in two for six months beginning with February. The reduced charge will be $250 in place of $500, and applicants need to add to this amount about $700, the actual cost of a membership when an owner enters the market to sell it.

In making public the proposed reduction the Exchange authorities said that they believed an era of activity in securities had begun with the passage of the currency law. The usefulness of the Consolidated Exchange, they thought, would be enhanced by an increase in the attendance on the floor.

It was said that an increased demand for seats had come on the heels of the reduced fee. Four memberships are in process of transfer under the lower rate.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE.

To a very considerable extent it was a "specialty market" on the Consolidated Stock Exchange. The list was a broad one, with fifty-one different securities represented in the dealings. Particular attention was paid to stocks like American Beet Sugar, American Can, Third Avenue, Interborough preferred, Brooklyn Rapid Transit, and Colorado Fuel, with sharp price improvements recorded in some instances. Commission houses handled an excellent volume of business, and there were further indications of revived interest on the part of the public. In the cases of the prominent standard stocks a tendency toward reaction showed early in the day, but offerings were well absorbed, with a rally in the later trading.

'FIREBUGS' OVERRUN STATE.

Driven Out of This City—Ahearn Wants Bureau to Suppress Them.

ALBANY, Jan. 13.—Professional "firebugs," driven from New York City by the police, have become such a menace to other parts of the State that State Fire Marshal Thomas J. Ahearn will ask for legislation for the creation of a legal bureau for the investigation and prosecution of arson cases.

Mr. Ahearn to-day declared that the State was overrun with these malefactors, and he attributed to them fully a fourth of the fires reported to his department. Previous attempts to establish an arson bureau have failed, but the Marshal thinks that the present Legislature will be in a mood to accede to his request when he submits the data on which the request is based.

The security of the investment is like that given by a Railroad Equipment Trust, in that the margin increases year by year, the property behind the issue is essential to the conduct of the business of the Lessee Corporation, and that Corporation will eventually acquire entire ownership. In this case, however, the property is real estate, not rolling stock, and the margin at the start is larger than that usually given by Railroad Equipment Trusts.

GEORGE F. BAKER OUT AS CHASE DIRECTOR

REFER RESERVE QUESTION

The annual meetings of the national banks in this city yesterday were marked by the decision in a number of cases, either by the stockholders or by the Directors, to accept the provisions of the Federal Reserve act and enter the new system, and by the resignation of George F. Baker as a Director of the Chase National, his place being filled by the election of John J. Mitchell, President of the Illinois Trust and Savings Bank, who in turn resigned as a Director in the First National, of which Mr. Baker is Chairman. George F. Baker, Jr., nad Francis L. Hine, President of the First National, stay on the board of the Chase.

Action on the Federal Reserve question took different form at various banks. All the law requires is action by the Directors, but the officers of some of the banks feel that the stockholders should be consulted. For formal action by the stockholders, it would be necessary to call a special meeting on thirty days' notice, and in some instances this has been done. Others had resolutions adopted by the stockholders yesterday recommending favorable action by the Directors. In several cases the Directors acted favorably at meetings held yesterday, some of them finally and some subject to ratification by the stockholders.

The banks at which there were changes in the boards or action on the Federal reserve question were as follows:

AMERICAN EXCHANGE.—P. A. S. Franklin elected a Director to succeed William Lyman Bull, deceased. The Board of Directors authorized the officers, subject to the approval of the stockholders at a meeting to be held in February, to join the Federal reserve system.

BANK OF NEW YORK, (National Banking Association.)—Decision on Federal reserve left to the Directors.

BRONX.—Directors accepted Federal Reserve act.

CHASE.—John J. Mitchell elected a Director in place of George F. Baker, resigned. Stockholders adopted resolutions recommending to the Directors that they accept Federal Reserve act.

CHATHAM & PHENIX.—Directors will vote Friday on Federal reserve.

CHEMICAL.—Arthur Iselin elected a Director in place of H. P. Davison, who resigned when members of J. P. Morgan & Co. withdrew from number of Directorates.

CITIZENS' CENTRAL.—Vice President Garrard Comly added to board. Stockholders left Federal reserve question to the Directors.

FIRST.—Theodore N. Vail, President of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, elected a Director to succeed John J. Mitchell, resigned.

GARFIELD.—Frederick T. Fleitman and Albrecht R. Pagenstecher, Jr., added to the board.

HARRIMAN.—Directors re-elected and a special meeting of stockholders called for Feb. 3 to ratify action of the board in accepting the provisions of the Federal Reserve act.

HANOVER.—John J. Riker of J. L. & D. L. Riker, Incorporated, added to the board.

IRVING—Directors approved Federal reserve and called meeting of stockholders to ratify their action on Feb. 16.

LIBERTY—George B. Case resigned and the board was reduced from twenty-four to twenty-three.

MARKET AND FULTON—Directors accepted Federal Reserve act.

MECHANICS AND METALS—Stockholders voted to join the Federal reserve system.

MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE — Directors decided to join the Federal reserve.

NATIONAL BANK OF COMMERCE—Allan A. Ryan resigned as a Director, and the board wes reduced from thirty-seven to thirty-six. Special meeting of stockholders called for Feb. 13 to vote on Federal reserve.

NATIONAL BUTCHERS AND DROVERS—Board will act Thursday on Federal reserve.

NATIONAL CITY—Existing vacancy not filled, and board reduced from twenty-five to twenty-four.

NATIONAL NASSAU—Newton D. Alling and Marshal Stearns elected Director to succeed D. Hunter McAlpin and A. Coppel. James C. Bell resigned, and the board was reduced from eleven to ten. Stockholders voted to join the Federal reserve system.

NEW YORK COUNTY—Ormond G. Smith added to the board.

SHERMAN.—Max Radt and Henry B. Quinby elected Directors in place of Clinton H. Crane, resigned, and Dwight A. Jones, deceased.

UNION EXCHANGE—Otto E. Dryfoos and George B. Conley elected Directors. Anton H. Schaefer, Isaac Weingart, Frank E. Vogel, and Henry F. Herrman resigned.

Three banks in Queens at their annual election yesterday came out in favor of entering the Federal Reserve system and the vote of the stockholders will be considered at meetings of the newly elected Boards of Directors within the next few days. The stockholders of the Flushing National Bank re-elected their entire Board of Directors and they cast a unanimous vote in favor of the bank entering the Reserve system, and this vote will be considered at a meeting of the Board of Directors to be held this evening when a president, two vice-presidents and a cashier will be elected.

At the election of the Whitestone Bank the stockholders voted to enter the Federal Reserve system. The stockholders of the Bayside National Bank yesterday ratified the vote of the Board of Directors to enter the Federal Reserve system.

REAL ESTATE MEN UNITE.

Trade Organizations Merge to Fight Unjust Exactions.

The Real Estate Board of New York of 115 Broadway is to absorb the Realty League of 68 William Street. At an executive meeting of the former organization yesterday afternoon it was decided to elect all the members of the Realty League individually, and at the same time to adopt the general policy and aims of the league.

This amalgamation is in line with the recent revival of activity on the part of the Real Estate Board. It has been endeavoring to unite under its leadership all the real estate interests of the city so as to present a united front against attempts on the part of the municipal authorities to interfere with what it considers the justifiable demands of real estate owners and brokers, and to carry on an active campaign against the undue increase of taxation. It has been hampered by the fact that it has been only one of three or four real estate organizations of considerable size which have not always had the same views on the questions which presented themselves.

The officers of the Real Estate Board of New York for the current year are: M. D. Laurence, President; W. J. Vanpelt, Vice President; Elisha Sniffin, Secretary; Frederick D. Kalley, Treasurer; John P. Kirwan, Lawrence B. Elliman, Albert N. Ashforth, E. A. Tredwell, and Warren Cruikshank, Governors. It has about 600 members, of whom 400 are active and 200 are associate. The Realty League has as President, William C. Demorest, and Arthur C. Bastine is its Secretary. A. H. Mathews is Treasurer, and Carlisle Norwood counsel. It has now about 180 members, of whom 125 are expected to join the Real Estate Board.

It has given special attention in the past to considering such matters as the by-laws of the Tenement House Department and the Fire Prevention Bureau, and has kept a close eye on all activities of the city administration affecting real estate. These functions will be transferred to the the Real Etate Board, which already had committees dealing with such matters as the industrial and building codes, the labor law and tenement house law. As among its members were real estate owners, architects, and builders, as well as real estate brokers, it is expected that its union with the board will be of great benefit to both bodies.

They will be able to speak for the realty interests of the city with a great deal of authority, and any proposal, whether of the State or the city, will be considered by the enlarged board with the aid of some of the leading experts in the city.

Moreover, it is expected that this amalgamation is only the first in other similar bargains. The Real Estate Board, as it grows larger, hopes to attract to itself more and more of the men interested in this particular form of property, and it is not unlikely that under the present vigorous administration of the board other unions will take place with similar organizations.

SERGE PRICES ARE LOWER.

Fabrics Are Offered at a Reduction from Former Quotations.

The United States Worsted Company opened yesterday its lines of men's serges for the Fall season of 1914. It was said yesterday at the offices of the company that buyers showed much interest in the offerings and that the orders placed were satisfactory. Three of the numbers, 3644, 241-58, and 244-58 were considered excellent values. These fabrics were offered at a reduction of about 25 cents a yard from the prices of last year.

Only two of the numbers that were offered last year were on sale yesterday. Style 3644, a 14-ounce fabric, opened yesterday at $1.12½ a yard. Last year's price for this number was $1.37½ a yard. Style 3637, a 14-ounce fabric, was offered at $1.07½ at yesterday's opening. This fabric was offered at $1.32½ a yard last year.

The prices of all the new numbers are based on reductions ranging from 20 to 25 cents a yard from last year's equivalent. Opening prices on the various numbers are as follows:

Style.	Fall 1914.
239—58—14½ oz.	$1.22½
240—58—14½ oz.	1.25
241—58—14½ oz.	1.10
242—58—15½ oz.	1.32½
245—58—14 oz.	1.25
246—58—14½ oz.	1.27½
248—58—14½ oz.	1.25
249—58—14½ oz.	1.35
3644—14 oz.	1.12½
3637—14 oz.	1.07½

The United States Worsted Company will open various other lines for the Fall season later. Among these are included mixtures, vigoreaux, and fancies.

3 SEEK VOORHEES'S JOB.

W. E. Kelly May Succeed Voorhees as Brooklyn Postmaster.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—The resignation of Edmund W. Voorhees as Postmaster at Brooklyn was received at the Post Office Department to-day.

There are three very active candidates for the place. One of them is William E. Kelly, President of the National Association of Letter Carriers. He is believed to have the inside track. Henry E. Meyer is also a candidate, but is being opposed on the ground that he was formerly a Republican. Charles H. Fuller, ex-State Senator, is the third candidate.

New Hudson Companies Directors.

Another step in the reorganization of the Hudson Companies was taken yesterday when Russel S. Carter, G. E. Cabot, M. B. Metcalf, T. H. Newberry, and A. S. Wing were elected Directors to succeed A. A. Tingley, P. G. Bartlett, G. B. Schley, K. B. Conger, and W. H. Barnum, resigned. It was voted to increase the membership of the board from twelve to thirteen, and another Director will be elected at the next meeting.

Home Insurance Statement.

The Home Insurance Company, in its one hundred and twenty-first semi-annual statement, reports total assets of $33,139,915. The liabilities include $6,000,000 cash capital, $13,447,976 reserve premium fund, and $1,184,259 reserve for losses. The surplus over contingencies and all liabilities, including capital, is $10,073,019, and the surplus for policy holders $17,873,019.

J. A. Dix Re-elected Bank Director.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 13.—John A. Dix was re-elected a Director of the First National Bank to-day. When elected Governor in 1909 Mr. Dix resigned his directorship in the bank, and his nephew, John D. Coffin, was elected to the vacancy thus created. Mr. Coffin retired to-day.

DENIES THREATENING RIVAL.

Col. Barbour, in Shoe Machinery Suit, Contradicts Witness.

BOSTON, Mass., Jan. 13.—Col. William Barbour of New York, Vice President of the United Shoe Machinery Company, testifying to-day in the dissolution proceedings against the company, denied that he had threatened any one in connection with the proposed sale to the company of the Standard Shoe Machinery Company.

James M. Darragh, a Government witness, had previously testified that Col. Barbour, in a conversation at New York in April, 1900, said that he had a very large interest in the United Shoe Machinery Company, and that he did not propose to have it jeopardized by competition, and added: "We always try to buy out competitors. If we cannot buy them out we force them out. If you don't sell out, we will crush you."

Col. Barbour testified that he had talked about the matter with Mr. Darragh three or four times, but as the conversation occurred thirteen years ago he was somewhat confused about it. He emphatically denied, however, the threats alleged by Mr. Darragh.

COMMODITIES MARKETS

Prices in the commodities markets improved with the exception of corn. Wheat closed with net gains of ¼c in the various options, corn ended ¼c lower, while oats were ⅛c lower to ⅛c higher. Cotton scored net advances running from 6 to 12 points. Cotton oil and provisions were firm.

WHEAT.

The wheat market again gave evidence of underlying firmness, and, notwithstanding a large increase in stocks and lower prices in the Liverpool market, values rallied from a slight early depression and closed at the top, with net gains of ¼c. The upward movement was based largely on a rumor that a cargo of 175,000 to 200,000 bushels of No. 1 Northern Manitoba wheat had been sold to either Lisbon or Oporto, which, coming after the recent liberal sales of American hard wheat, indicated a growing foreign demand for American grades.

Bradstreet's visible showed an increase east of the Rockies of 491,000 bushels, and stocks in America and in and afloat for Europe increased 8,381,000, making the total 212,464,000, compared with 203,465,000 a year ago. A private cable from Argentine estimated the exportable surplus of wheat at 73,000,000 bushels, which was about 21,000,000 bushels below the estimate by the same authority on Dec. 12.

In the local cash market No. 2 hard Winter wheat was quoted at 97¼c, cost, insurance, freight, New York; No. 1 Northern Manitoba at $1, free on board, and No. 1 Northern Duluth, $1.00¾ free on board.

CORN.

The corn market declined ½@⅝c early under quite vigorous selling on the part of commission houses, prompted by expectations of an increase in the movement as a result of the clear, cold weather over the West. The foreign markets were firm, however, and late in the day prices regained part of the loss on covering, closing ¼c net lower. Bradstreet's visible supply showed an increase of 2,367,000 bushels, bringing the total to 16,794,000, compared with 9,126,000 a year ago.

In the local cash market No. 3 yellow corn was quoted at 70¼c, c. i. f., to arrive.

PROVISIONS.

A firm undertone prevailed in the provision market, although price changes were comparatively narrow. Strong interests were again on the buying side and offerings were small, with sentiment influenced by the attitude of packers, notwithstanding fairly liberal receipts of live hogs which are coming in in better condition. Receipts of hogs at Chicago were 32,000, estimated for Wednesday 40,000. Kansas City received 16,000, and Omaha 14,500.

COTTONSEED OIL.

The upward movement noticed in the cottonseed oil market during the last few days was again in progress during yesterday's operations, and the volume of business was substantial. Shorts, who had sold quite freely on the belief that the poor spot trade and large accumulation of crude oil in the South would result in lower figures, were active buyers, prompted by a continued demand from the West and the South.

COTTON.

The cotton market recovered most of Monday's loss during yesterday's trading on covering and scattered buying. March contracts sold up to 12.45, or within 6 points of the best level reached last Friday, and the market closed very steady at a net gain of 6 to 12 points for the day.

The opening was steady at a decline of 4 to 7 points under overnight selling orders and in sympathy with relatively easy Liverpool cables. The active pressure against March and May, which had been the feature of Monday's trading, was not renewed, however, and prices soon firmed up on covering and bull support. The character of the news from the South regarding the spot situation and reports of an improved demand for goods contributed to the advance, which carried present crop deliveries about 9 to 13 points net higher during the late trading. Realizing caused slight reactions at times during the afternoon, but closing prices were within a point or two of the best on active positions.

Private cables from Liverpool again attributed the early decline there to hedge selling, but said that the market had been steadied by continental buying to fix prices. There was also a fair spot demand in the English market. Southern spot markets were ⅛c lower to ⅛c higher.

The local market for spot cotton was quiet and unchanged at 10 points higher, at 12.60 for middling upland.

COFFEE.

The market again showed firmness, and after opening at an advance of 9 to 10 points from the final of Monday the active positions showed further gains of 3 to 5 points in absence of selling pressure, and influenced by firmness in both Brazil and Europe. At the advance values showed gains of about 40 points from the low of Saturday, and were up about ⅜c from the low point experienced at the close of last year. Cost and freight offers from Brazil were 15 to 30 points above Monday's figures, and, according to private cables, there was little coffee left in Brazil for sale at present. The Havre market showed gains of ¾ franc, while Hamburg was ½ to ¾ pfennig higher. According to the public cable the Rio market was firm and unchanged, while Santos spots were 200 reis higher and futures in that market opened unchanged to 50 reis higher.

The local spot market was firmer, with Rio 7s quoted at 9¾c.

COUNTRY PRODUCE MARKETS.

BUTTER.—Receipts for week, 48,263 packages; last week, 25,599 packages. Exports, 656 packages to tropical countries. Immediately following our last weekly report the market for top grades of table butter developed a decidedly easier feeling. The finest goods are down to 33@33½c, but on that basis demand is considerably better. The secondary grades have not declined in proportion to the higher qualities. Packing stock has also gained a little, with demand exceeding the supply. Creamery, extras, 33@33½c; firsts, 25@32c; seconds, 24@27½c; thirds, 22½@23½c; held, extras, 31@32½c; firsts, 28@30½c; seconds, 24@27½c; thirds, 22@23c; State dairy, finest, 31@32c; good to prime, 26@30c; common to fair, 20@25c; process, extras, 24½@25c; firsts, 23@24c; seconds, 20@22c; imitation creamery, firsts, 22½@23½c; factory, held, 20@22c; current make, firsts, 21@21½c; seconds, 20@20½c; thirds, 18@19c; packing stock, held, 19½@20½c; current make, No. 2, 19½@20c; No. 3, 17@19c.

CHEESE.—Receipts for week, 4,788 boxes; exports, 205 boxes to tropical countries. The market has improved during the last week on most styles of whole milk cheese and is closing very firm. State whole milk, held, specials, 17½c; average fancy, 17@17¼c; State whole milk, fresh, specials, 17c; average fancy, 16¾c; under grades, 14½@16½c; State whole milk, Daisies, held, best, 17¼@17½c; State whole milk, Young Americas, held, fancy, 17@17½c; Wisconsin whole milk, Daisies, fancy, 16¾@17¼c; twins and flats, fancy, 16¾@17¼c; Wisconsin whole milk, Young Americas, fancy, 17@17¼c; State skims, held, specials, 13@14c; held, good to choice, 11@12½c; skims, fresh, good to choice, 10½@11½c; skims, poor to fair, 6@10c; skims, full skims or badly defective, 3@5c.

EGGS.—Receipts for week, 50,110 cases; imports, 1,153 cases. The market continued declining up to the close of last week under continued very dull trade, generally mild weather in producing sections, rather liberal receipts, and a lack of speculative support sufficient to carry the surplus on hand. Fresh gathered, extras, dozen, 37@38c; extra firsts, 35½@36c; firsts, 34½@35c; seconds, 32@34c; dirties, 28@30c; checks, 25@27c; refrigerator, firsts, 31@32c; seconds, 29½@30½c; lower grades, 22@29c; State, Pennsylvania, and near by, hennery whites, fine to fancy, large, 41@43c; gathered whites, fine to finest, large, 41@42c; State, Pennsylvania, and near by, whites, fair to good, 39@40c; small or otherwise seriously defective, 36@38c; Western, gathered white, 36@40c; State, Pennsylvania, and nearby, hennery brown, 37@38c; gathered brown and mixed colors, 35@36c; fresh, foreign, 120-dozen cases, fair to prime, 29@32c; held fresh, 120-dozen cases, poor to fair, 24@29c; refrigerator, 120-dozen cases, poor to good, 24@28c; limed, 120-dozen cases, fair to prime, 24@26c.

MISCELLANEOUS MARKETS.

BEEF.—The following are current wholesale market prices for Western beef cuts in New York City: Ribs, No. 1, 15½c; No. 2, 14c; No. 3, 11½c; loins, No. 1, 16c; No. 2, 14c; No. 3, 11½c; rounds, No. 1, 13c; No. 2, 12c; No. 3, 11c; chucks, No. 1, 12½c; No. 2, 11½c; No. 3, 10c.

SUGAR.—No price changes were reported in the refined sugar market yesterday, and trading was only moderately active. The raw sugar market was firm at $3.29 for centrifugal, $2.79 for muscovado, and $2.54 for molasses sugar. The London beet sugar market stood at 9s 2¼d for January, 9s 3d for February, and 9s 6d for May.

MOLASSES AND SYRUPS.—There was a better demand for molasses owing to the colder weather, and prices held well. There was no improvement in the demand for syrups, however, and prices were unchanged.

RICE.—The demand for rice was limited. Buyers were showing a little more interest in future business. Prices were firm.

FLOUR AND MEAL.—The flour market was quiet here yesterday and prices practically were unchanged.

OILS.—Refined petroleum and linseed oil were steady and unchanged.

NAVAL STORES.—Trading in turpentine was quiet. Prices were unchanged. Resin and tar were firm and unchanged.

Referees' Notices

In pursuance of a judgment of foreclosure and sale, duly made and entered in the above-entitled action, and bearing date the 8th day of July, 1913, I, the undersigned, the referee in said judgment named, will sell at public auction, at the Exchange Salesroom, Nos. 14-16 Vesey Street, in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on the 14th day of January, 1914, at 12 o'clock noon on that day, by Joseph P. Day, Auctioneer, the premises directed by said judgment to be sold, and therein described as follows:

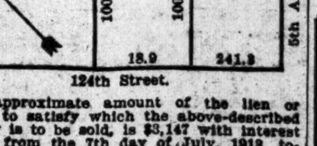
All that certain lot, piece, or parcel of land, together with the buildings thereon erected, situate, lying, and being in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, and bounded and described as follows: Beginning at a point on the northerly side of 124th Street, distant two hundred and forty-one (241) feet and three (3) inches westerly from the northwesterly corner of 124th Street and Fifth Avenue; and running thence northerly parallel with Fifth Avenue and part of the way through a party wall, one hundred (100) feet and eleven (11) inches to the middle line of the block between 124th Street and 125th Street; thence westerly along said middle line eighteen (18) feet nine (9) inches; thence southerly parallel with Fifth Avenue, one hundred (100) feet eleven (11) inches to the northerly side or line of 124th Street; and thence easterly along said last mentioned side or line, eighteen (18) feet nine (9) inches to the point or place of beginning.

Dated New York, December 20th, 1913.

CHARLES E. F. McCANN, Referee.

SPROULL, HARMER & SPROULL, Attorneys for Plaintiff, No. 1 Madison Avenue, New York City.

The following is a diagram of the property to be sold; its street number is 19 West 124th Street.



The approximate amount of the lien or charge, to satisfy which the above-described property is to be sold, is $3,147 with interest thereon from the 7th day of July, 1913, together with the costs and allowance amounting to $199.32 with interest from July 7th, 1913, together with the expenses of the sale. The approximate amount of the taxes, assessments, and water rates, or other liens, which are to be allowed to the purchaser out of the purchase money, or paid by the Referee, is $416.30 and interest; said premises shall be sold subject to a prior mortgage thereon for $14,000 and accrued interest at 4½% from July 1, 1913.

Dated New York, December 20th, 1913.

CHARLES E. F. McCANN, Referee.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—The storm of Monday has passed off the northeast Atlantic Coast, and a severe cold wave prevailed in New England and the Middle Atlantic States, with temperatures ranging from zero to 24 degrees below. Cold weather also prevailed in Ontario and Quebec, and the lowest temperature reading reported during Tuesday was 48 degrees below zero at White River.

In the West temperatures have risen generally and decidedly, except in the Far West and over the central portion of the country and the Northwest, where they range from 10 to 28 degrees above the seasonal average.

There were snows from the lake region eastward, and rains and snows over the middle and northern districts west of the Rocky Mountains.

Elsewhere the weather was fair.

Cold weather will continue during Wednesday in New England and the Middle Atlantic States, followed by rising temperatures Thursday. In the lake region, the Central Valleys, and the South the temperatures will rise Wednesday, and they will probably fall somewhat Thursday over the Northwest.

Fair weather will prevail Wednesday and Thursday east of the Rockies.

Winds for Wednesday and Thursday along the North Atlantic Coast will be moderate northwest to north; Middle Atlantic Coast, moderate north to northeast; South Atlantic Coast, moderate and mostly northeast.

FORECASTS FOR TO-DAY AND THURSDAY.

Eastern New York—Fair, continued cold Wednesday. Thursday, fair, warmer, moderate north winds shifting to southeast by Wednesday night.

Southern New England—Fair, continued cold Wednesday. Thursday, fair, warmer, northwest winds diminishing and becoming variable.

New Jersey and Eastern Pennsylvania—Fair, not quite so cold Wednesday. Thursday, warmer; moderate variable winds becoming southeast and south.

Western New York—Fair and not so cold Wednesday. Thursday, fair, warmer, moderate variable winds, becoming southeast and brisk by Thursday.

Northern New England—Fair, continued cold Wednesday. Thursday, not so cold, north winds diminishing and becoming variable.

	1913.	1914.		1913.	1914.
3 A. M.	21	12	4 P. M.	25	3
9 A. M.	21	6	9 P. M.	26	—3
12 M.	26	6	11 P. M.	28	—4

This thermometer is 414 feet above the street level. The average temperature yesterday was 6; for the corresponding date last year it was 24; average on the coresponding date for the last thirty-three years, 30.

The temperature at 8 A. M. yesterday was 6; at 8 P. M. it was —3. Maximum temperature, 14 degrees at 12:02 A. M.; minimum, —4 degrees at 10 P. M. Humidity, 49 per cent. at 8 A. M.; 46 per cent. at 8 P. M.

The barometer at 8 A. M. yesterday registered 30.17 inches; at 8 P. M. it stood at 30.35 inches.

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

Trick Wine Cups Are Not Toys Nor Rubber Brooches Jewelry.

The Board of United States General Appraisers yesterday overruled a protest by G. Frankel & Sons, under the Tariff act of 1909, on blown glass cups filled with imitation wine. Collector Malone returned the articles at 60 per cent., under Paragraph 98, as blown glass decorated chief value. The importers asked to pay 35 per cent. on toys or 45 per cent. ad valorem on manufactures of glass. The protestants failed to submit evidence.

Davies, Turner & Co. also lost on goods invoiced as druggets for covering carpets and taxed 50 cents a pound and 60 per cent. ad valorem under Paragraph 383 of the old tariff as woolen fabrics, embroidered. Claim for lower duty was made under Paragraph 392, which specifies druggets at 22 cents a square yard and 40 per cent. ad valorem. Judge Brown held that the importers failed to prove that the goods were known commercially as druggets.

The board sustained protests by the F. W. Woolworth Company and L. Mendelson & Co., in holding that rubber brooches were properly dutiable under the old law as manufactures of hard rubber at 35 per cent. ad valorem. Collector Malone wrote that his office erred in returning them at 60 per cent. as jewelry.

Cotton Goods Men Elect Officers.

There was a meeting of the Cotton Goods Association last night for the election of officers. J. A. Forny of Catlin & Co. was made President; J. A. Kurvey of J. Nixon of Converse, Stanton & Co., and William J. Mullin of Frederick Victor & Achelis, Governors.

THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Builder Buys Large Plot on Upper Broadway as Apartment House Site—A New Department Store to be Built in the Bronx—A $450,000 Long Island Trade.

An important deal on upper Broadway that will probably result in the improvement of a vacant plot with a tall apartment house was announced yesterday by William B. May & Co., who sold for the Four West Fifty-fourth Street Company a plot of five lots on the west side of Broadway just south of 125th Street.

The property, which was sold to a well known builder of apartment houses in the upper west side section, is known as 3,101 to 3,109 and has a frontage of 126 feet and a depth of 97 feet by irregular. It is assessed for taxation at $61,000.

This is the property recently given in exchange by August Huckshe for 4 West Fifty-seventh Street, formerly the residence of James A. Roosevelt, which he purchased on Nov. 5, 1913.

Buys Department Store Site.

One of the largest business deals recorded in some time in the active retail centre of the Bronx, around Third Avenue and 149th Street, has just been closed by Harry Weaver, who has purchased from Florence Stolz the property at 2,962 and 2,964 Third Avenue, north of 152d Street, and now covered by old frame buildings.

The plot is 50 feet in width and 185 feet in depth, extending from Third to Bergen Avenues. Mr. Weaver will erect on the plot a large department store to take the place of his present store on the northwest corner of 148th Street and Third Avenue.

Smith & Phelps were the brokers who negotiated the sale.

South Brooklyn Lease for Beef Shipments.

A lease involving several hundred thousand dollars and which will bring one of the largest industrial plants to the South Brooklyn district established there in many years, has just been closed by a syndicate in the leasing of 325 feet of the New York Dock Company's water front, with an option on 200 additional feet on the west side of Furman Street. Four immense warehouses are now on the property. The syndicate proposes to begin in a short time the shipment of beef and other meat products from South American and Australian countries on a large scale, and the docking and railroad facilities along the South Brooklyn water front will aid in quick distribution. The lease was closed by E. S. Nugent representing the New York Dock Company, and he stated that within a year the plant would be ready for handling the heavy shipments of outside beef.

Bronx Borough Sales.

The River Realty Company has purchased from Samuel R. Waldron two lots on the southeast corner of Barnes Avenue and Whitehall Place, a three-story dwelling, on a lot 18.6 by 117, at 2,306 Morris Avenue was given in part payment.

John Gruber purchased from Amelia Moser the two lots on the north side of Fordham Road, (formerly 184th Street,) located 49 feet east of Harlem River Terrace. The plot, which measures 50 by 80 feet, will be improved with an apartment house by the buyer.

The Sons of Israel of the Borough of the Bronx have taken title to the two-story frame building 777 East 178th Street, occupying a plot 45.3 by 81.4.

Long Island.

Former Senator Charles Cooper has sold to E. H. Cuthbert a tract of 150 lots at Massapequa. In exchange the buyer gave 300 lots in the North Chelsea section of Atlantic City. Maurice G. Straus and John E. Henry, Jr., negotiated the trade, which involved about $450,000.

New Jersey.

Hughes & Whitby have sold the three-story residence, on plot 55 by 165, at 10 Clarridge Court, Montclair, for H. B. Cutting to Charles Booth, son of Gen. Ballington Booth, for about $8,000.

S. S. Walstrum-Gordon & Forman have sold for Mrs. A. I. Jantzen of Philadelphia a lot 50 by 150 on Highwood Avenue, Ridgewood. The purchaser, Miss Butler, will immediately erect a residence.

L. N. Nicholson has sold at Lyndhurst to James I. Clark a ten-room house on Riverside Drive, with a half acre of land, for $4,600.

Suburban.

The River View Building Company of Yonkers has transferred to William L. Collyer the newly completed nine-room cottage at 24 Gilbert Place, North Yonkers Heights, on a plot 50 by 150.

Theodore Rogers Brill has sold for the John U. Abel estate a 265-acre farm in the town of Unionvale, Dutchess County, N. Y., to a Mr. Burbank of New York City.

Savoy Theatre Leased.

Henry and Walter Rosenberg have leased to the Glenwood Amusement Company, of which John J. Nolan is the President, the Savoy Theatre, situated on South Fourth Avenue, Mount Vernon, for a term of five years, at a total rental of approximately $25,000.

A Recent Buyer.

Herman Breiting is the buyer of the five-story apartment house 506 and 508 West 170th Street. In part payment the buyer gave a four-story dwelling on the southeast corner of 122d Street and Park Avenue.

Monaton Company Makes Appeal.

The Monaton Realty and Investing Company of Manhattan filed with Attorney General Carmody in Albany yesterday an appeal from the recent decision of the New York City Appellate Division of tht Supreme Court, which held that the company was carrying on an unauthorized banking business.

Leases.

Ames & Co., Inc., has leased for Henry Morgenthau to Wittenberg & Reich the entire building 505 Sixth Avenue, adjoining the Greely Theatre, for a term of years; also the store 23 West Thirtieth Street for P. M. L. Merrill, agent, to Morris Sheingarten; also the store 125 West Twenty-sixth Street for J. A. Weser to J. Margolis; also the store 455 Seventh Avenue for F. Hussey to N. Pappos.

J. G. White & Co. leased to Hanover Lunch, Inc., the store 215 West Forty-second Street.

Another Moving-Picture Theatre.

A moving-picture theatre with a seating capacity of about 500 persons is to be erected at 322 and 324 East 116th Street by Nicholas Conforti. Gross & Kleinberger, the architects, who are preparing the plans, estimate the cost at $8,000.

Real Estate Notes.

The United Real Estate Owners' Association has chosen a special committee to atend the State Taxation Conference, which will convene in Syracuse on Jan. 21, 22, and 23.

A single-tax debate will be held this evening in the rooms of the Bronx Taxpayers' Alliance, 177th Street and Third Avenue. Alan Robinson, President of the Allied Real Estate Interests, will talk against he single-tax theory and F. C. Leubuscher and August Weyman in favor of it.

The Nehring Company negotiated the sale of 507 West 169th Street, reported sold yesterday.

The Commonwealth Security and Mortgage Corporation has been incorporated with a capital of $1,000,000 to operate in New York real estate. Leslie R. Palmer is the President, and the Directors are George Carleton Comstock, Peter Gilsey, B. L. Allen of the Columbia-Knickerbocker Trust Company, Irving Smith, and James A. Hart.

PUBLIC NOTICES.

SEALED BIDS WILL BE RECEIVED BY the Board of Water Supply at its offices, 22nd floor, Municipal Building, New York, until 11 A. M. on Tuesday, January 27, 1914, for Contract 99, for the construction of the Narrows siphon, about 9,800 feet long, in New York Harbor, extending from 79th Street and Shore Road, Bay Ridge, Brooklyn, to the junction of Arrietta Street and Stuyvesant Place, Tompkinsville, Staten Island. The work consists principally of furnishing approximately 3,800 tons of 36-inch, flexible-jointed, cast-iron submarine pipes, dredging a trench across the Narrows, in which the pipe will be laid, refilling over the pipe and furnishing and laying approximately 950 feet of 36 and 48 inch hub-and-spigot cast-iron pipe on the shores.

At the above place and time the bids will be publicly opened and read. Pamphlets containing information for bidders, and contract drawings can be obtained at the above address by depositing the sum of ten dollars ($10) in cash or its equivalent for each pamphlet. For further particulars see Information for Bidders.

NEW BEEF SYNDICATE TO FIGHT THE TRUST

FOUR WAREHOUSES RENTED

Sixteen-Acre South Brooklyn Waterfront Property Leased—Reduction in Prices Expected.

Arrangements have just been completed for the importation into this country of thousands of tons of beef and other meat products from the Argentine Republic, Australia, and New Zealand. Behind this project is a syndicate of American capitalists whose identity has not been disclosed, but the fact that their plan involves direct competition with the American beef packers is seen in the fact that they have rented for twenty-one years, with privileges of renewals, four large warehouses from the New York Dock Company, with an extensive water front, giving facilities for steamship piers and railroad connections with the New York Dock Company's railway, which will be included in the marginal railroad authorized by the city along the South Brooklyn waterfront.

The transaction, which is the largest industrial deal closed in many years along the South Brooklyn waterfront, was effected through E. S. Nugent, representing the New York Dock Company. The final papers were signed yesterday. Mr. Nugent has lately returned from South America, where he went to perfect some of the details. The syndicate, as he stated yesterday, has leased about 325 feet of the company's waterfront property and has taken an option on 200 additional feet on the west side of Furman Street, just south of Fulton Street. The entire property to be utilized will be about sixteen acres. Of the four buildings now there, three are six-story warehouses, and the other is a new eight-story reinforced concrete cold-storage structure, about 124 by 110 feet in dimensions and fully equipped. Contracts have been let to the B. I. Davis Company of Chicago for extensive alterations and machinery equipment, which will involve the expenditure of several hundred thousand dollars.

This is the first organization of importance formed to bring a permanent supply of outside beef and other food products to this country from South American and Australian countries since the new tariff schedule went into effect. Mr. Nugent explained that the syndicate had no connection with any of the large American packers, and within a year, when the big beef shipments begin, it is expected that the competition will cause an appreciable reduction in meat prices.

The shipping importance of South Brooklyn will also be materially enhanced, as a fleet of beef-carrying vessels will be run by the syndicate, and it is the intention to have a boat docking weekly with fresh supplies of meat. In the near future it will doubtless make New York as prominent a centre as is Liverpool for beef distribution. It is estimated that about 65,000 tons of American beef are transported weekly to Liverpool, and American beef there is selling at 9 cents a pound, as against 13 cents here. With the big shipments of South American beef here, it is likely that eventually the price of meat in the world's markets will be equalized.

BROKERS' SOCIETY ELECTION

Nominating Committee of Partners' Association Names a Slate.

The Nominating Committee of the Association of Partners of Stock Exchange Firms selected this slate of officers yesterday, to be voted on to serve in the year following the annual meeting on Feb. 6: President, H. R. Winthrop of Harris, Winthrop & Co.; Vice President, Hartman K. Evans of E. & C. Randolph; Treasurer, Frederick Bull of Edward Sweet & Co.

The candidates chosen for the Board of Governors were Richard H. Swartwout of Swartwout & Appenzeller; Charles S. Sargent, Jr., of Kidder, Peabody & Co.; Robert H. McCurdy of McCurdy, Henderson & Co.; Arthur Hagen of Millett, Roe & Hagen; J. Horace Harding of C. D. Barney & Co.; R. M. Stuart-Wortley of W. R. Craig & Co.; Walter R. Herrick of Herrick, Berg & Co.; Felix Rosen of Hayden, Stone & Co.; C. H. Boynton of C. H. Boynton & Co.; Arthur Turnbull of Post & Flagg; Andrew J. Miller of Boissevain & Co., and E. Townsend Irvin of Shearson, Hammill & Co.

The temporary Board of Governors decided not to take action on the suggestion made last week by Herman B. Baruch that a committee be appointed to handle the proxies of stock held by brokerage houses to aid in correcting errors of management in corporations. This matter was left for the permanent board to consider.

PUTS BAN ON RUG SHAKING.

Washington Square Association Wants Housewives to Reform.

The Washington Square Association at a meeting held yesterday at 7 West Eleventh Street adopted a resolution protesting against the practice which some housewives have of shaking carpets and rugs from windows, so that the dust blows in through the windows of neighboring houses.

The Washington Square folk also made a record of their belief that a street stand is no place from which to sell men's evening suits, and that any person attempting to use a street stand for such a purpose ought to be dealt with.

George McAneny, President of the Board of Aldermen, was the chief guest of the association. "When I was President of the Borough of Manhattan," he said, "I found this association to be the most lively of all similar associations in the city. My life was made busy and miserable by the secretaries of the different associations, and of them all, in the best sense of the word, your secretary was the worst."

Mr. McAneny promised to do all he could to keep the Board of Aldermen from passing ordinances granting newsstand privileges before the Corporation Counsel had an opportunity to pass on the applications.

EXPLOSION IN HOTEL.

Ansonia Lights Out and Elevators Stop Running.

Patrons of the Hotel Ansonia, at Seventy-third Street and Broadway, were startled early yesterday morning by an explosion in the basement, which was followed by the extinguishing of all of the lights in the hotel and the stopping of the elevator service. Investigation showed that a valve on one of the boilers had blown out, with the result that the dynamos were temporarily put out of commission.

Harry Harris, 35 years old, of 341 West 86th Street, a fireman in the employ of the hotel, was struck in the left temple directly over the eye by a flying bit of metal and sustained a bad scalp wound. His injuries were dressed by Dr. Thorne, the hotel physician, and he was sent home.

The accident occurred shortly after 1 o'clock, and it was more than three-quarters of an hour before the damage had been repaired and the electric lights and elevators were again working.

WILLCOX AS SUBWAY EXPERT

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 13.—There is a growing belief in Chicago that William R. Willcox, ex-Chairman of the New York Public Service Commission, First District, who grappled with the Subway problem in New York City, is to become a dominant factor in the solution of similar problems in this city. Opinion is divided as to whether Mr. Willcox is to be selected by Mayor Harrison and the City Council as the official adviser of Chicago in the construction of its subways, or whether he represents Griffiths & Co., Ltd., of London, and the Walston H. Brown Construction Company of New York, which concerns are said to be prepared to submit a proposition for the building of the subway system.

Whatever Mr. Willcox's connection with the situation, it was asserted tonight that by reason of his talks with Mayor Harrison and others the way had been paved for the reception here on Friday of Walston H. Brown of New York and J. Norton Griffiths of London. It has also been intimated that Mr. Willcox is associated with a group of New York capitalists who would assist in financing subway construction in Chicago if Mr. Willcox should be identified with it.

Mr. Willcox, after spending the greater portion of two days in conferences with city officials and traction experts, left for New York this afternoon, still insisting that his visit to Chicago had been on private business. He laughed at the suggestion that he had visited Chicago in the interest of any corporation.

Arthur Havemeyer, Mr. Willcox's brother-in-law, who resides in this city, asserted that Mr. Willcox was the most practical authority on subway construction in the country, and "he would be an excellent man to take charge of the situation in Chicago."

WASHINGTON SQ. COLLEGE.

Chancellor Brown Presides as Acting Dean at First Faculty Meeting.

Chancellor Elmer E. Brown of New York University yesterday presided as Acting Dean at the first meeting of the Faculty of the Washington Square College. The meeting was called for the purpose of organizing the Faculty and beginning the preparation of a four-year curriculum to be put into effect next Fall. Twenty-six members of the Faculty of the new college, in addition to the Acting Dean and the Acting Secretary, attended the meeting.

One of the first acts of the new Faculty was to pass a resolution continuing in effect the rules and regulations of the former collegiate division which was taken over by the new Washington Square College.

Chancellor Brown, in a brief address, called attention to the great educational needs which the Washington Square College expected to meet. One of these needs is that of the thousands of young men and women who are extremely desirous of obtaining a college education but who, because of limited means, are unable to devote all their time to college work. The new college makes a direct appeal to such persons by offering courses in the late afternoon and evening, making it possible to obtain a degree while continuing business during the day.

Another need is that of students who wish to combine cultural courses with specialization along vocational lines. To meet this need the curriculum committee appointed at the meeting yesterday will consider the possibility of offering a two-year course in regular college studies, followed by two years of concentration on accounting, government, banking, law, pedagogy, and similar subjects.

Edward L. Preetorius Injured.

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 13.—Edward L. Preetorius, publisher of the St. Louis Times and of the St. Louis Westliche Post, was injured here to-day when his automobile was struck by a street car. The plate glass in the side windows of the limousine was smashed and pieces of flying glass struck Mr. Preetorius, cutting deep gashes across his face and behind his ear.
